Mandatory Allocation Plan Ready

Canadians Face Rationing If Oil 25 Per Cent Short

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will introduce energy rationing if oil supplies fall 25 per cent below normal demand this winter, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Monday night.

Also, a "mandatory allocation program" will be put into effect if the shortage passes 10 per cent, he told the Commons.

He said the government didn't expect to use either program, but precautionary preparations were being made by a special committee representing all relevant government departments. Industry support had been enlisted through a technical advisory committee set up earlier.

He gave no details of either the rationing or "mandatory allocation" plans, except that the latter would be imposed at the wholesale level.

Under the mandatory scheme, wholesale supplies would be reduced but essential services would be maintained, he said.

In the event of interruptions requiring less serious action than either of these two programs, he said, private citizens and leaders in government and industry would be asked to take voluntary measures.

Consumption might be cut by 10 per cent by a voluntary program, he said.

Meat Wrappers Suffer Asthma

CHICAGO (UPI) — Butchers and workers who wrap pre-cut, pre-packaged meats with vinyl plastic may be exposed to a new disease: "meat-wrappers' asthma," a study indicated Monday.

William Sokol, Yossef Aelony and Gilden Beall of Harbor General Hospital, Torrance, Calif., said the illness was triggered by fumes released when workers cut the plastic wrapper with a hot wire. The report was published in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Right To Sue Pledged—But Not by Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Acting Attorney-General Robert Bork insisted Monday that new special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski would be allowed to sue President Nixon for documents he considered necessary to his investigation, but admitted he had never discussed the matter with Nixon.

Bork gave the assurance after a member of a House judiciary subcommittee read to him from Nixon's last news conference a statement that:

"We will not provide presidential documents to a special prosecutor. We will provide as we have in great numbers all kinds of documents from the White House. But if it is a document involving a conversation with the president, I would have to stand on the principle of confidentiality."

Bork and Archibald Cox, whose ouster as special prosecutor Oct. 20 precipitated more than a dozen bills to create an independent office of special prosecutor, were the last major witnesses before the subcommittee begins writing legislation Wednesday.

Jaworski, meanwhile, was sworn in during a brief ceremony at a federal courthouse. Jaworski said he was meeting with members of his staff and would arrange a conference with Cox in the near future.

Bork said that before Jaworski was announced as Cox's successor, he and Jaworski met with Deputy Attorney-General Henry Petersen, Nixon's chief of staff Alexander Haig and White House lawyers Leonard Garment and Fred Buzhardt.

"I stated to the gentlemen who were sitting with Jaworski and myself that it must be understood he has the power to go to court," Bork said.

Asked by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, (D—N.Y.) what their response was, Bork said they agreed with him.

'Can you turn me into a frog?'

Evidence Killed By Dean

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Watergate prosecutors said Monday that former White House counsel John Dean found and destroyed evidence belonging to bugging conspirator E. Howard Hunt late last January, after Hunt pleaded guilty in the plot.

Assistant special prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste told a federal court hearing that Dean had found the materials in a folder containing President Nixon's personal estate planning file—but he stressed to reporters later there was "no indication" Nixon ever saw the Hunt documents.

The disclosure came at the opening of a hearing before chief U.S. District Judge John Sirica on motions by Hunt and four of his co-conspirators to erase their convictions. Hunt's lawyer Sidney Sachs said the destruction of the evidence was further proof all charges should be dismissed.

"These proceedings are a web of fraud and corruption," Sachs said. "As each day passes, it becomes clearer that this goes to the very top of the government."

Six Months For Segretti

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Donald Segretti, the mastermind of the political dirty tricks program during President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign, was sentenced to six months in prison Monday for violating federal election laws.

Segretti pleaded guilty Oct. 1 to one count of conspiracy to distribute unlawful political material, and two counts of distributing that material.

City's Heart On Fire

Buildings in downtown Indianapolis, Ind., explode in flames as fire broke out in Grant Building during noon hour Monday. The flames were fed by 20-mile-per-hour winds and posed serious threat to other buildings. It took firemen four hours to get the blaze under control. There were no known injuries.

Egyptian Thrust May Light Fuse

UPI

Egyptian infantry backed by tanks carried out a series of attacks along the Suez Canal front Monday and in some isolated cases succeeded in penetrating Israeli lines and holding onto their gains, an Israeli military spokesman reported in Tel Aviv. War talk increased on both sides.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said the Egyptians launched four attacks against Israeli lines—one of them a series of company-sized assaults lasting six hours. Israel protested the alleged violations to the UN truce force.

The Israeli spokesman said the Egyptian army is fully deployed in attack positions along the entire canal front and on the road to Cairo, but would be met and crushed. The Israelis said it was quiet on the Syrian front where Israel told the international Red Cross the Syrians had murdered 12 Israeli war prisoners.

The latest alleged violations of the 12-day-old ceasefire came as U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger, who completed four days of almost non-stop negotiations among the Egyptians, Syrians and Israelis in Washington, flew to the Middle East on a peace mission, and Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir arrived home in Tel Aviv from her Washington visit. Refined Oil Stops If Arabs Insist

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada would cut off the export of refined petroleum products to the United States if Arab countries made it a condition for continuing crude oil shipments to Canadian refiners, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Monday.

"We'd have to in that case," he said in an interview. But he added that Canada would not cut off crude oil exports if an Arab ultimatium were received.

He was quoted earlier in the day as saying Canada would cut off all exports, but he called this a bad misunderstanding.

"No, we wouldn't do that."

He said this is a hypothetical situation but the goverment would not cut off U.S. customers who rely totally on Canadian crude.

He also said there is no indication that any curtailment will be necessary in the level of refined products exported.

He said a weekend report that Saudi Arabia had threatened to cut off crude oil shipments to any country supplying the U.S. with crude or refined products was "not in accordance with reports from diplomatic sources."

Canada exports more than one million barrels of oil daily to the U.S. and imports roughly the same amount to refineries in Eastern Canada. About 30 per cent of the imports come from Arab states.

Strachan Lied, Says Socred

Body To Decide Issue

By BARBARA McLINTOCK
Colonist Legislature Staff

A special committee of the B.C. Legislature will start sitting this morning to determine whether Transport Minister Robert Strachan lied to the house in the question of a B.C. Ferries management study.

The charge of lying to the house is one of the most serious that can be made against a cabinet minister, and the committee's inquiries could conceivably lead to the resignation of either Strachan or the member who made the charge, Socred Robert McClelland.

The Langley member was suspended from the Legislature for Wednesday afternoon's sitting after he refused to withdraw the allegation that Strachan lied, but was readmitted to the evening sitting.

Both McClelland (Langley) and Strachan made public documents which they claimed supported their points of view — McClelland that the minister authorized a mangement study of the B.C. ferry system, Strachan that he had never done so.

The documents will be placed before the all-party committee, which also has the power to call witnesses and examine other evidence. After it has concluded its hearings, it will judge whether Strachan did, in fact, lie to the house.

If it is found he did, Strachan will be in contempt of the house, and it will be up to the house to decide what further action to take.

Legislative sources indicated Strachan could be required to apologize to the house, or he could be censured. But such a finding would make it necessary for the minister to decide whether he could continue as a minister, the sources said.

If the committee finds, on the other hand, that Strachan did not lie, McClelland would be required to withdraw his charges and apologize to Strachan and to the house. But for him, too, the matter might be so serious he would have to consider resigning, said the sources.

Root of the problem is a management study of the system begun, according to Strachan, without his approval early in October.

The minister said outside the house that Ferries general manager Monty Aldous had definitely proceeded with the study without Strachan's knowledge.

Moreover, Strachan said, Aldous had written to him more than a week after the

'Bait and Switch' Outlawed by Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The government launched its new business competition policy Monday with a bill aimed at protecting consumers and small businessmen against unfair pricing and advertising practices.

Introducing the bill in the Commons, Consumer Affairs minister Herb Gray said a second stage will follow — including changes in laws against company mergers.

He told reporters it would be unrealistic to expect that second bill before a year from now. And he called on supporters of the legislation to voice their feeling and help prevent the fate that befell the last competition bill, debated out of the Commons last year.

The bill-amendments to the Combines Investigation Act — would forbid misleading advertising with provisions that officials say are tougher than those in the existing law.

It would provide new protection for consumers in guarantees and warranties.

Following the finding of the food prices review board that some food stores had been la-

If put into effect, temperatures would be lowered three to five degrees in federal, provincial and commercial buildings. Homeowners would be asked to take similar steps, but no one would be expected to keep themostats below 70 degrees.

He said serious interruptions may occur if supply conditions worsen among Arab producers.

But the situation remained unclear.

He spoke during a three-hour emergency debate won by T.C. Douglas (NDP—Nanaimo - Cowichan - The Islands).

He said Arab suppliers, who account for about 30 per cent of the one million barrels of oil imported daly, have broken purchasing countries into three classes in imposing war-related oil sanctions—friendly, neutral and embargoed.

Canada falls into the neutral category, but it is still not clear what this means in terms of long-term supply, he said.

However, if the 25-per cent production cut adopted by Arab producers continued through winter and a further five-per-cent cut is added each month as announced, it will amount to a 21-per-cent cut over-all in shipments to consuming countries, he said.

For Canada, he added, the government estimates this could result in a heating oil shortage of "something under 10 per cent."

To reduce the potential impact the government is stepping up efforts to increase the flow of Western Canada oil to eastern Canada, he said.

Traditionally, all areas east of the Ottawa Valley, have been supplied by imported oil while markets to the west have been supplied by western oil.

The interprovincial pipeline from Alberta now extends to Toronto and there is no capacity to transfer large volumes of crude oil to eastern markets.

However, tankers using the St. Lawrence seaway are expected to move 60,000 to 80,000 barrels a day to Montreal during November, he said. This would continue until normal seaway freeze-up about mid-December.

He said the government is "chartering tanker space" to add a further 10,000 barrels a day to this total, and other steps are being explored to increase the flow.

Department officials have said there is no way enough oil can be moved without a pipeline to offset a serious supply interruption in the east.

There was a brief question period during which Macdonald told Eudore Allard (SC—Rimouski) that the two major railways and other transport companies will meet in Ottawa today to discuss how much oil they can move into eastern Canada if a serious shortage develops.

Refinery Output Hit by Oil Cuts

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Standard Oil Co. Ohio said Monday the worldwide shortage of crude oil has forced it to reduce refinery operations by 10 per cent and its gasoline sales the same amount.

Its Wilmington, Del., subsidiary, BP Oil Corp., would reduce its gasoline sales to 85 per cent of its supply to customers in November a year ago, the firm also announced.

All Sohio gasoline customers were being limited Monday to 90 per cent of their November, 1972, purchases, the Sohio spokesman said.

He said Sohio, "unlike most other U.S. refiners, must buy the bulk of its crude oil from domestic and foreign sources" and so has "been forced to rely increasingly on crude supplies from the Middle East and North Africa . . ."

Both firms indicated further reductions may come.

But Sohio's president, Alton Whitehouse, said his firm has "idle capacity that could produce a substantial part of the products needed if more crude oil were available."

He said Sohio's daily crude oil processing during the past third quarter was about 371 million barrels daily, compared with about 399 million in the third quarter a year earlier.

A spokesmen for BP Oil said that firm's single refinery "depends entirely on foreign crude sources."

Sohio announced recently it would limit wholesale supplies of the distillate fuels—mainly diesel and jet fuel, heating oil and kerosene—to 75 per cent of November, 1972, orders under a federal mandatory allocation system.

BP Oil said it adopted a 67 per cent allocation program for distillates last week because of reduced availability of crude oil.

Fights Flare

The official Iraqi news agency predicted Kissinger's visit to Morrocco, Tunisia, Egypt, Jordan and Syria would be fruitless and said "fighting between the Arab countries and Israel may be resumed at any moment." Iraq, one of Egypt's allies, refused to accept the ceasefire.

In another development, Arab oil producing states cut oil production 25 per cent and an official Egyptian government spokesman said in Cairo an Arab oil embargo would increase until the United States takes an "even-handed" policy in the Middle East. The Arabs have been extremely critical of U.S. military aid to Israel.

Egypt has demanded that Israel return to the Oct. 22 ceasefire lines, a withdrawal that would free the trapped Egyptian 3rd Army.

Strachan Issue

study had begun, asking for permission to start it, saying, "I feel we should not proceed without your specific approval for the study."

However, McClelland and other Socreds insisted that it was impossible that Strachan could not have known of such a major study within a few days after it had begun.

The following is a chronology of events surrounding the charges, determined from documents presented by both sides:

Oct. 1 — Frank Machin of the Victoria management consultant firm of F. R. Machin and Associates, discussed with ferries system employee Tom Mainer a possible management study of the ferry system, and particularly of problems of overtime.

Oct. 4 — Machin met with ferries operations manager Bill Weston to discuss terms of reference for the study. These were all to deal with overtime problems.

The same day, Weston sent out a memorandum "to whom it may concern in the British Columbia Ferries." The memo was designed "to serve to introduce" Machin and his workers, who had "been engaged by British Columbia Ferries management" to conduct the study.

Oct. 10 — Machin wrote to Weston, confirming the assignment, discussing details and estimating a fee of about $39,000 for the study. Machin emphasized that the study would be kept confidential, "and I would like to stress to you the need for confidentiality on the part of those persons whom we have to interview."

Oct. 11 — McClelland raised the question in the house for the first time, and Strachan said he intended to have some kind of a management study done.

Strachan said he took this to mean, however, a conciliation study on employees' grievances—which, he said, he still intends to have done.

Oct. 12 — Weston wrote to Aldous, informing him of the choice of Machin to do the study, and stating that the fee was "not exorbitant." However, he suggested that "some statement, either within the ferry system or even publicly, be made that this study is being undertaken; otherwise the facts could be wrongly reported by the media to the embarrassment of all concerned."

The same day, Aldous wrote Strachan asking for Strachan's express permission to carry out such a study, which he felt was essential. Aldous ended his letter: "I await your instructions as to whether or not to proceed."

Oct. 15 — Strachan received Aldous' letter of Oct. 12, but Strachan ignored it since he did not feel the study should take place. This, he said, is the first indication he has had that such a study is even being considered, and it made no mention of the fact that the study is already underway.

Oct. 30 — Weston again wrote Strachan, asking for immediate approval to undertake the study and urging that, if the survey went ahead, some sort of news release be issued.

Oct. 31 — Strachan received a memo from his executive assistant, Pete Loudon, saying that he had talked to Weston who urgently needed a reply on the whole question. Loudon's memo stated that Aldous had given Weston the go-ahead to conduct the study and "Weston at that point gathered that the project had your approval."

Strachan said this was the first time he was aware the study had been going on. He wrote back to Loudon:

"In view of Aldous' statement (in Oct. 12 memo) that he should not proceed without my okay, why did they go ahead? I think it's asking for trouble at this time. Did I give the okay? I don't recollect doing so."

Nov. 1 — In view of this reply, Loudon phoned Weston telling; him the study was off.

In the meantime, Aldous had been adivsed he would be replaced as general manager as soon as a replacement was found.

All this was brought up by McClelland at the opening of Monday afternoon's sitting, and he accused Strachan of lying in saying that no study had been authorized.

Despite repeated requests by the Speaker and angry charges from Strachan, he refused to withdraw, because, he said, his allegations were the truth.

Because it is against the house rules to call anyone a liar, Speaker Gordon Dowding ordered that McClelland leave the house for the duration of the afternoon sitting. Expulsion from the house is a rare event, even for an afternoon, the last such case taking place under the Socreds in early 1972.

Premier Barrett promised that if McClelland brought up a substantive motion on the subject at the evening sitting, it would be immediately debated, but when the house opened, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald instead brought up a motion to refer the question to a special privilege committee.

Despite angry retorts from Socreds and some Liberals that this was breaking Barrett's afternoon commitment, the motion passed by a vote of 35-12. Conservative Scott Wallace (Oak Bay) and Liberal Allan Williams (West Vancouver-Howe Sound) sided with the government, with all Socreds and the other three Liberals opposing the idea.

It will be the first privileges committee set up in the house in 12 years. The last one, in 1961, investigated some of the dealings of Phil Gaglardi, highways minister at that time.

Later in the evening, the committee was named. It will be convened by Macdonald and consist of 11 members—two Socreds, one Liberal, one Tory and seven government members.

It will begin sitting at 11 a.m. this morning.

Speed Limit Fuel-Saver

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California is reducing its speed limit to 65 from 70 miles an hour on some highways to cut fuel consumption, Lieutenant-Governor Ed Reinecke announced Monday.

Davis, Moores

Two Back Barrett On Oil Talk Bid

Premier Barrett's call for a federal-provincial conference to discuss rising fuel prices has received support from the premiers of Newfoundland and Ontario.

Barrett sent telegrams last week to all provincial premiers and Prime Minister Trudeau, suggesting the meeting.

In the B.C. Legislature Monday, Barrett said in reply to a question that he had heard from Ontario Premier William Davis supporting the idea of a conference, and an acknowledgement of receipt of the telegram from Trudeau's office.

In St. John's Nfld., meanwhile Premier Frank Moores said he was sending a message to Barrett that he would welcome any attempt to relieve the impact of increased gasoline and heating oil prices.

Moores said the federal government could help offset increased fuel costs by reducing the tax on imported fuel products, especially since Ottawa had a budget surplus.

'Bait and Switch'

belling goods with more than one price and charging the highest, the bill would force stores to charge the lowest price marked on a product.

And it would ban or restrict a variety of pricing and selling techniques, including pyramid selling, referral selling and "bait and switch" selling.

It introudced a bill in June, 1971, that also covered mergers.

That legislation, which would have permitted anti-competitive mergers when they promised better efficiency or other benefits, was bitterly opposed by businesses, and was allowed to die on the Commons order paper last year.

The new bill would forbid the making of a claim to the public about a product or service "that is false or misleading in any material respect," say documents accompanying the bill.

That includes "the general impression conveyed" — not just the literal wording of claims. And it includes salesmen's pitches as well as printed advertising.

Phyllis Young, B.C. minister without portfolio responsible for consumer affairs, said she was pleased to see a uniform code across Canada which would beef up protection to consumers and businessmen.

She referred particularly to the unified cross-country ban or restriction on a variety of pricing and selling techniques which covered pyramid selling, referral selling and "bait and switch" selling.

Evelyn Root, a Vanocuver newspaper columnist and one of the chief agitators to outlaw double-pricing in food stores, hailed the proposed legislation as "a real victory for the food prices review board," of which she is a member.

Mrs. Root said the board has been biding its time for this type of legislation and would continue to track down all practices detrimental to "straight forward" consumer shopping.

Another consumer advocate, Ruth Lotzkar, president of the 20,000-member provincial branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada, said she hoped the changes were strong enough to be effective and could be enforced immediately.

"I hope the government will have sufficient inspectors to follow the act through—right up to the courts if necessary."

On the section that deals with added protection to consumers in warranties and guarantees, Mrs. Lotzkar said if certain companies did not comply with government laws, their names should be made public to warn unsuspecting consumers.

At Least 13 Die In Train Crash

KASSEL, Germany (UPI) — The engine of the Kassel-to-Frankfurt express smashed into the last car of a standing train Monday, compressing it into a mass of wreckage, killing at least 13 persons and injuring 65.

Oil Cuts to U.S.

supporting Israel in the latest Arab-Israeli war.

Arab oil-producing countries also have cut production 25 per cent in a pressure move to force Israel to abandon occupied Arab lands.

The reduction, which are to increase five per cent a month, do not apply to countries" but could affect affect them at least partially.

Oil that normally would go to the U.S. is being used to fill "friendly countries" but could say there could be some impact if production cuts exceed the amount available from this source.

Both Macdonald and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday they think Canada will not be labelled "unfriendly" by the Arabs.

One contentious point is the Montreal-Portland, Me., pipeline which carries imported oil to Montreal refineries.

Attempts are being made to explain that the oil "comes in bond" for direct transfer to Montreal and none is used in the U.S., Macdonald said.

Sharp said some Arab countries understand this, but others are not sure and some "certification" could be needed to satisfy them.

Canada does not want to damage relations with the U.S. by shutting off or reducing oil exports, he added. It wants to avoid unfriendly relations with both sides in the dispute.

In the Commons Monday, New Democrat Leader David Lewis said there are reports that Venezuela, Canada's largest crude oil supplier, may be reducing production levels.

Macdonald said later he has heard nothing officially but is checking.

"The entire government is behind the minister," he told the House.

Alberta cut off energy talks with Ottawa Friday after the government raised its controversial 40-cents-a-barrel crude oil export tax to $1.90.

Joe Clark (PC—Rocky Mountain) said Trudeau or some other minister should meet personally with Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed to iron out the matter.

He suggested Finance minister John Turner, but Trudeau turned down the idea, putting his support behind Macdonald.

Waves of Strikes Hit U.S., Britain

CP-AP

NEW YORK — Walkouts by workers in key services—fire protection, newspapers, hospital care and air travel—hit several United States cities Monday.

A strike deadline by New York City firemen was reset for 8:30 a.m. today as contract negotiations continued under court order.

In Milwaukee, Wis., a city of 1.4 million, the state National Guard was called up to deal with what officials said was an emergency created by a firemen's work stoppage.

Hope that a strike against the New York Daily News would come to a quick end was expressed after the New York Times reached tentative agreement with the New York Newspaper Guild. The agreement was reached a few hours after the start of the walkout at The News.

Shortly before 9 p.m., however, the News announced it had cancelled its Tuesday editions because not enough employees reported to work.

Also in New York, 30,000 non-medical workers went on strike at 48 private, nonprofit hospitals and nursing homes over the government's failure to approve a 7.5-percent wage increase.

Trans World Airlines flights were cancelled across the country by a walkout of flight attendants that began at midnight Sunday night.

In Milwaukee, officials estimated that about 40 per cent of the city's firemen did not show up for work Monday, about the same number as the day before. Their contract expired Saturday, and the so-called "red flue" epidemic was seen as a pressure tactic aimed at city negotiators.

The TWA dispute, involving about 5,000 members of the Airline Stewards' and Stewardesses' Association, halted all the airlines' operations. Ticket agents in New York were instructed to remain open but to book no reservations for flights before Nov. 10.

Britain was also hit Monday by a round of strikes which many union and civic officials warn is but a foretaste of what promises to be a long, cold and troubled winter, particularly in the London area.

Sir Reginald Goodwin, head of the Greater London Council, says the combination of a critical shortage of workers and low pay has in fact already placed London's vital services in danger of collapse.

"Education, law and order, housing and health, these hallmarks of our civilization, are under threat," he said, and many others agree the situation is bleak.

London already faces disruptions in its fire and ambulance services, dozens of schools have been put on part-time because of a shortage of some 263 teachers, the police force is drastically undermanned and a number of subway stations have been closed for want of workers.

The one-day strike Monday of engineering workers hit the motor industry and shipyards and forced suspension of publication of the eight national daily newspapers and many smaller ones.

Although the 1.4-million strong union struck to protest a £75,000 ($187,000) fine for refusing to attend an industrial court hearing, most of the threatened industrial actions are over pay and bonuses.

Some 20,000 post office clerks went on strike at midday in support of wage claims and the city fire department — already 500 men short — has been warned firefighters will answer only emergency calls soon if their pay demands are not met.

In another development British Rail says it is at least 5,000 men short in the London area despite a £50,000 recruiting campaign and this may mean interrupted rail commuter services during the winter.

Soviet Crop Forecast 'Highly Exaggerated'

MOSCOW (UPI) — Western experts said today they were viewing with some skepticism Leonid Brezhnev's prediction of a record 215 million-ton grain crop in the Soviet Union this year.

The figure he gave is well above the Soviet goal of 197.4 million metric tons.

"They obviously are having a record crop," one western expert said. "But it will be quite a bit less than 215 million tons when they get down to what they can actually eat."

Money for the Lazy

MANPOWER MINISTER Robert Andras introduced a bill in the House of Commons last January to reduce unemployment insurance waste and fraud. The minister estimated that the saving for the taxpayers would be $100 million a year. The bill has been pushed aside and left to die. And the taxpayers will lose unnecessarily not $100 million, but apparently much, much more.

The legislation proposed by Mr. Andras would have been eminently fair. It would have denied unemployment insurance benefits to those quitting work "without just cause," or having been fired for misconduct, or refusing to take suitable work without a valid excuse. It provided that a board of referees would be on call for anyone who felt he had suffered an injustice. For those disqualified, eight weeks of work would be sufficient to gain eligibility for assistance again.

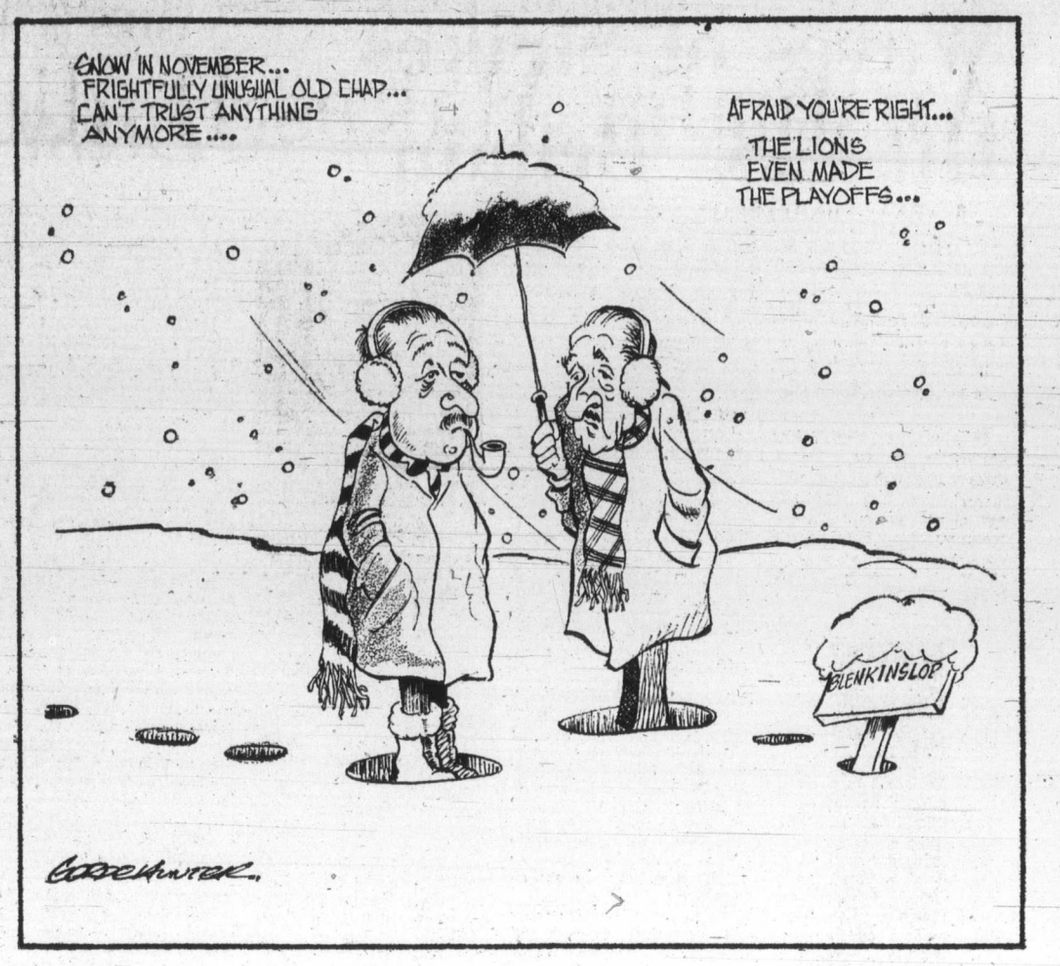

But the rip-off continues. And the taxpayer pays for it. The unemployment insurance program is designed to pay its own way from employer and employee contributions as long as the unemployment rate is no more than 4 per cent of the work force. After that, the cost must be met out of general revenue. The average unemployment rate this year has been around 6 per cent.

Moreover, according to Jack Ellis, Progressive Conservative MP for Hastings, Ont., who has made a four-month study of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, the benefits total is not the only cost rapidly rising.

Mr. Ellis says that administrative costs for the commission will be 50 per cent higher this year than in 1972, when they came to $120 million. This is not much, however, compared with the benefits payments, which last year amounted to about $2 billion, and which according to Mr. Ellis are heading this year toward $2.5 billion. Fully a third of this sum will come directly from the taxpayers, in all likelihood, but the government lacks the political courage, in its minority position, to try to pass a measure that would have saved them $100 million last year by the minister's own estimate and who knows how many more millions now.

In the third quarter of this year, as we noted recently, there was an unusual change in the relationship between unemployment figures and the volume of help-wanted advertising. The help-wanted index rose 21 per cent. Unemployment should have shown a corresponding sharp drop. Instead, it rose.

It seems rather obvious that for some people, summer is a nice time to be jobless but financially taken care of by the federal treasury. Declining to close the loopholes that permit the unemployment insurance program to be abused in this fashion is one of the Trudeau government's most shocking failures.

A Greater Say

FROM A STUDY of the problems surrounding a six-square-mile piece of land comes a proposal encompassing an area 500 times greater. This doesn't mean multiplication of difficulties by anywhere near that amount, although new points of conflict undoubtedly will arise in the wider scheme of things. They are expected, as a matter of fact, by the proposers of a 3,000-square-mile park on the B.C.-Washington coast. But support for the proposal should outweight the complaints, and should come from afar, and not only the residents of Point Roberts who started the whole thing.

They should be leading the cheering. The plan would appear to be the answer for them in their unhappiness over a number of things, not the least of which are water supply and sewage disposal. Cut off by land from the rest of the United States by the 49th parallel running where it does, Tsawwassen's American neighbors have had to call over the fence for help at times. And it hasn't always been given because B.C. has enough "problem children" of its own. But by including Point Roberts in an international park, some of the say in its development would be given to Canada which, under the circumstances, should be more willing to lend a helping hand.

It is this same involvement that should win favor for the setting of wider boundaries of the park — from Gabriola Island off Nanaimo in the north, to Whidbey Island in Puget Sound in the south, and including, between Vancouver Island and the Washington state mainland, parts of the Gulf Islands and San Juans.

It is encouraging that federal Environment Minister Jack Davis sees this in the proposal. He welcomes it as a means of conserving the ecologically fragile waters of the straits between Vancouver Island and the Canadian and U.S. mainland. His concept of an ecologically protected waterway would tolerate a certain amount of shipping. "But I hope the big tankers would be banned from this proposed park area's waters."

He sounds much more convincing than he and his colleagues at Ottawa have in the past. They have been talking for months about stopping the tankers one way or another but the plans for the big ships goes ahead.

And as the super tanker traffic draws closer, there has been little sign of a speed-up in establishment of the radar-tracking and aids to navigation that was expected.

Complaints are coming out of Vancouver of a lacking in government contingency plans for oil spills, too. The clean-up of the September 25 fouling of the shores with bunker oil in the collision of two freighters off English Bay has not yet been completed.

It can only be hoped that Mr. Davis is as enthusiastic as he sounds over the international straits park plan with the oil shipping safeguard it contains, and is able to convert that enthusiasm into something concrete.

To Syrians at War

The Importance of Pride

To some, other people's talk of pride, honor, fighting on, is so much florid hot air. But when such talk determines political realities it takes on a more solid property, perilous to ignore.

"Is the war over, is the peaceful settlement possible?" The quiet Syrian girl in a headscarf thought a while and then answered her own question. "Perhaps not actually impossible. But Israel was born and thrives on intransigence and treachery, so . . ."

We sat together in Damascus University on the first day of the new "peace" in the Middle East—a peace bruised and dusty with flurries of battle after only a few tentative hours of birth. Several male students were with us. Sometimes the conversation was interrupted by the roar of a Syrian MIG overhead or army trucks passing in the street.

Across the road, the university hospital gates, manned by student vigilantes, opened and closed to let in the odd jeep or truck that discharged a wounded soldier or two. Doctors and interns stood chatting, having a cigarette break from the work inside. Some told me they had returned post haste from studies, research work, or even practices in Europe and the United States to help their country's war effort.

So, I asked, was the cease-fire a mistake? Should the Syrians have fought on? Could they have?

"I think most people—most people I have spoken about it, at least—were surprised by the cease-fire acceptance by the Arabs." This was an American-trained surgeon. "I think we were doing well. Maybe we had not held Golan but we had shown we could hold off the Israelis and hurt them. We had made sacrifices and we were prepared to make more. You look around Damascus or elsewhere — you will not see a city on its last legs. You will not see a city that shows any real sign of hardship, will you?"

By GAVIN YOUNG from Damascus

"No," I said. It was quite true. Apart from the soldiers and the trucks and jeeps, Damascus, this beautiful, old city, sat at apparent ease in its green oasis, even with Israeli tanks 20 or 30 miles up the road.

The shops are full of food. There is no rationing of that, only of gasoline. "But the casualties, human lives . . ."

"Yes, we have lost many. But we expected to lose men. That's war. We could have gone on and on, even so."

"But the Israelis might have really driven on Damascus. Do you think they could have got here?"

"That's not the point. We don't mind if they get here, don't you see? Let them come. Can they stay? How can they maintain an army of occupation? They can't. But the effort would seriously weaken them and their domestic economy. For that, we would welcome invasion."

Earlier, a professor of humanities who had studied in London told me: "Israel tends to benefit from cease-fires — take 1967. But we aren't happy about wars. So if the cease-fire works, good."

But scepticism after all these years of disappointment is deep. No Syrian I met had much, if indeed any, faith in American intentions to pressure Israel into withdrawals and concessions that would effectively implement United Nations Resolution 242, on which every eye — for the millionth time, perhaps — is again turned. "Effectively implement" of course, to Arabs, means according to Arab interpretations of a vague resolution — a clear-cut, no-nonsense withdrawal from most occupied land with safeguards.

"The war was forced on us, like the past ones. It was forced on us by Israel, naturally, which refused to compromise, with America's active support," an Iraqi student said. "The cease-fire is not a mistake because we want to show that we want to be friends with Israel. But if they go on and on despising us and contemptuously skirting a settlement — with an attitude that amounts to racism — what are we to do?"

This is a permanent theme. A professor added: "There's nothing antagonistic between Jews and Arabs here — or at least there never was. Palestine was a multi-racial place, no problems, no strife. Who brought race strife in? The Europeans. That means those European Jews, who even look down on Oriental Jews in Israel."

Someone got onto the matter of pride. Why could Americans suppose — it has been suggested seriously — that Palestinians removed from their homes by force would accept as compensation several million dollars and for that price Arabs would forget their lost lands? Arabs had all the money they needed, if it came to that. "But it's a matter of pride and justice. Can't Americans understand that any more?"

Pride came out again when we talked about the war. "Arabs are fighting at last, contrary to the impression of Americans and Europeans," an electrical engineering student said.

And to sum things up for the moment, someone said: "Three things: Arabs have shown they can get together; Israelis are not invincible; the Israelis may occupy Damascus, but as our people are prepared to lose everything and spend endless time and never forget, how can the Israelis win?"

The young students who said these things were not talking like fanatics. Their voices were muted and thoughtful. They were friendly and relaxed. But that is how they, and countless Arabs, talk and think. And that is how things are in this fourth Arab-Israeli war.

Row in Sweden Over Spying Claim

By ROLAND HUNTFORD from Stockholm

Five journalists who revealed the existence of a secret branch of the Swedish intelligence services which spied for Israel have been arrested on suspicion of espionage. They are alleged to have endangered national security and they have undoubtedly raised a hornet's nest.

The revelations were originally made during the summer in a Maoist publication called Folket I Bild — Kultor Front (People in Pictures — Cultural Front), commonly known as FIB. The intelligence organ whose existence they uncovered is called "Information Byra" ("Information Bureau) called IB for short.

On the other hand, it is not inherently improbable that IB agents might have been involved. Officials here say that it is impossible to secure absolutely reliable employees in intelligence work of this nature. IB is involved in counter-espionage, notoriously one of the murkier branches of the trade.

"You get some very strange characters working for you," said one source. He suggested that work for IB would be an excellent cover for freelance activities. Thus, he said, you might very well be dealing with a kind of double agent, in the sense of someone who was working for two masters, although not necessarily hostile. He implied that Israeli agents might well have infiltrated IB. A neutral capital such as Stockholm is, after all, likely to be a centre of espionage: and a neutral government might well provide avenues of research difficult to obtain elsewhere.

In the light of subsequent events, one aspect of the IB affair has taken on an interesting completion. FIB alleged that a Swedish captain in the merchant marine had made certain intelligence reports on Alexandria harbor at the request of IB and the officer in question admitted having done so in a Swedish TV program.

Judging by what has leaked out, IB seems heavily involved in Middle Eastern affairs. One of its main duties appears to be that of maintaining surveillance over the activities of Arabs and Arab sympathizers in Sweden. Understandably, it has been investigating the connection between the various Palestine resistance organizations and Arabs living in Sweden.

FIB's offices were raided at the same time that the journalists were arrested. Amongst the documents taken by the police was a members' list of "the Palestinian Movement" in Stockholm.

FIB supports the Palestinians against the Israelis, the conventional Maoist viewpoint, at least in Western Europe. But its connections appear to be a little more profound than journalistic sympathy.

The editor, Jean Guillou, who is French-born, is alleged to have fought with the Palestinian guerrillas in the Middle East. According to newspaper reports here, he is alleged to have met an IB agent in the Middle East, and to have been wearing a guerrilla uniform at the time. The same reports claim that Guillou used that meeting to bring pressure on the IB agent back in Stockholm in order to extract information for his articles.

M. Guillou is one of those arrested and the Swedish police are reported to have discovered illegal electronic bugging devices in FIB's possession. What the Swedish authorities appear to have on their hands is an unwelcome and embarrassing ramification of the Middle East conflict. FIB is accused of having caused the Swedish intelligence services considerable damage and it is understood that an expensive reorganization has been necessitated by their exposures.

American SST Project Defended

By DEV MURARKA from Moscow

A Soviet space expert says that the fears of high-altitude pollution by supersonic transport planes, which helped to cause the abandonment of the American SST, have been greatly exaggerated. Professor G. Cherny, a corresponding member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, made this claim in an interview as the 24th International Aeronautical Congress in Baku, capital of Soviet Azerbaijan, was getting under way.

This unusual defence of an American project, generally held to rival the Soviet TU 144, as well as the Anglo-French Concorde, is puzzling. Earlier in the interview, Professor Cherny outlined the pollution risks of supersonic flights. He mentioned, for instance, the argument that pollution of the upper strata of the atmosphere, resulting in greater absorption of solar heat, will cause global changes in the earth's climate. He also noted that in one flight from America to Europe an SST will consume about 50 tons of oxygen and discharge the same amount of exhaust gases. But nevertheless, he concludes that the data collected so far shows that fears of supersonic pollution have been greatly exaggerated.

This bold defence of a controversial American project by a Soviet scientist may be calculated to reduce the opposition in America to flights by foreign supersonic planes. The Soviet Union is naturally extremely interested in any American decision on such flights.

Professor Cherny also discussed the benefits of space technology in every-day sciences. He said that the telemetric equipment developed to monitor the condition of cosmonauts in space is now beginning to be used on gravely ill patients in hospitals. Similarly, heat-resistant materials and effective cooling techniques first developed for space rockets are being used in generators for direct transformation of thermal energy into electric power.

The professor attached the greatest importance to developing cheaper space transport. This project was next in line for attention after solutions have been found for long-duration orbital stations. At present, he said, space exploration is so costly because the first and second stages of carrier rockets are jettisoned and destroyed during launching.

If these can instead be returned to earth for repeated use, the cost of exploration will diminish considerably.

He added that near-earth space was becoming saturated with operational as well as discarded satellites. This could not be allowed to go on without some check. The best solution would be to find means of flying regularly to orbiting stations to replace defective instruments and carry out repairs.

In such a new system the function of the first-stage rocket would be taken over by a hypersonic booster aircraft, while a winged spacecraft would do the job of the second stage. The aircraft would take the spacecraft to the altitude of some 30 to 40 kilometres, build up to five times the speed of sound and then the winged spacecraft would fire its engines and separate from the aircraft, which could return to earth. The spacecraft would go into orbit, carry out its assignment and glide back to earth.

Professor Cherny's interview shows that Russians are very concerned about the cost of space research, even more so since the lead in this sphere has passed to the United States. Such interviews serve to reassure the Soviet public that its interests are not neglected and that the economics of space exploration are taken into consideration as well so that public funds are not wasted.

Rocketing Prices Hit Amin's People

By DAVID MARTIN from Dar es Salaam

A popular joke in Kampala at the end of last year, as the remaining Asians expelled by General Idi Amin jetted out to Britain and elsewhere, was that "the economic war is on, but the war is winning." Today that is anything but a joke for Uganda's consumers.

The prediction was that once the "black Patels," as the Africans who took over Asian businesses were quickly dubbed, moved into the deserted Asian "dukas" (shops) the reality of Amin's racial economic war would be really felt. Of the 50,000 or more Asians and Europeans in Uganda a year ago, fewer than 3,000 remain. Spiralling prices and shrinking supplies today affect only the African.

A survey carried out last month compared prices in Dar es Salaam, where precious few consumers would admit the cost of living is cheap, with those in Kampala. It revealed that the Ugandan is paying up to 400 per cent more than his Tanzanian counterpart.

The survey, based on African needs only, gives a number of examples. In Kampala a Chinese-manufactured cup and saucer costs 62 pence against 15½ pence in Dar es Salaam. Vitenge, a printed cloth which African women wear, is £2.75 in Dar es Salaam, but £8.06 to £9.30 in Kampala.

Meat and bread are double the price in Kampala and so are children's shoes. Chickens, which cost no more than 74 pence dressed, are up to £2.48 in the Ugandan capital, and sugar, when available at exorbitant black market prices under the counter, costs 250 per cent more.

Rice, wheat flour and spare parts for cars are not available. Even water is scarce in Kampala.

General Amin has faced assassination attempts, an invasion a little over a year ago and several instances of open dissent within his unruly army. His defeat may finally lie in the hands of the country's increasingly resentfull consumers.

Untapped Mineral Wealth Cornerstone of Alignment with Japan and China

Australia Makes Radical Foreign Policy Shift

By FRANK CHAMBERLAIN, from Canberra

"Nara" is the new word in Australian foreign policy, emerging from the developing pattern of overseas visits by Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam. The Nippon-Australian Relations Agreement (NARA) is the strongest tangible evidence of Australia's changing and increasingly independent foreign policy line.

The NARA agreement goes beyond a routine bilateral threaty of friendship and commerce. It accepts Australian control of "as yet untapped resources of minerals, including uranium and natural gas" as the basis of a new foreign policy.

BACKGROUND

The new foreign policy involves a significant shift away from reliance on the United Kingdom and the United States for Australia's defence.

Great Britain was Australia's defender until the fall of Singapore in the Second World War, and the U.S. took up the burden until December, 1972, when the left-leaning Whitlam government replaced a conservative regime.

The details will be worked out over the next year. The official reaction in Australia, even among the government's critics, accepts NARA as an Australian-Japanese attempt to strengthen defence, trade and understanding across the Pacific without any guidance or direction from the two superpowers.

During the last election campaign, Whitlam denounced the previous Australian government for rebuffing the Japanese request to make it easier for Japanese executives and skilled workers to enter Australia and ease other Australian restrictions on Japanese visitors.

★ ★ ★

The new treaty, while emphasizing the Australian wish that Australians should be employed by Japanese enterprises in Australia "to the maximum extent possible," has agreed that Japanese with special skills will be allowed to enter Australia more freely.

Whitlam

It is expected here that liberal adjustments will be made in return for guarantees of more Japanese-Australian enterprises, such as car factories, being established with substantial Australian equity.

The current Whitlam visit to Asia is seen here as the construction of the third leg of an Australian-Japanese-Chinese triangle. The triangle's purpose is to develop the resources of the comparatively untapped northwest shelf and northwest area of the Australian continent.

The meeting with Japanese ministers was attended by the largest ministerial delegation ever to visit Tokyo. Next year the Japanese will return the visit in Canberra. The full details of the treaty are scheduled for completion by then. Before then, there will be keen debate in the Australian parliament, beginning this week.

The Australian ministerial visits to Tokyo and Peking come against a background of changes in Asia in which Australia sees itself as a middle power of growing influence, and in which Japan is becoming progressively more involved politically as well as economically.

In the official Australian view, an efficient troika involving Canberra, Tokyo and Peking could guarantee the security of the region when interlocked in friendly terms with other Asian areas where political leaders do not want American or Russian "guidance."

Australia's foreign policy under Whitlam is based on two fundamentals: first, that Australia intends to retain control and majority equity in its mineral resources, especially uranium, oil and natural gas, in a world on the brink of an energy crisis.

And second, that Australia, while valuing its membership in the British Commonwealth and its activities in the United Nations, insists on a new emphasis of independent thinking in foreign policy after 23 years of conservative government.

Many observers in Britain and the United States, who have been accustomed to take Australia for granted, try to dismiss Whitlam's leadership as "posturing." Nothing could be further from the fact, as the Japanese have learned.

The Chinese leaders in Peking are being told that while Whitlam values highly his new detente with China, he is not planning to abandon his long association with other Asian countries nor former allies in Europe.

There has been a pattern to Whitlam's visits abroad since taking office last December, and from the activities of his assistants in making direct ministerial contact with African nations in Africa and in the United Nations.

Whitlam's first visits were to Australia's immedite neighbors, New Zealand, Papua-New Guinea and Indonesia. Then followed visits to Asia for the Pacific forum to underline Australian interest in the emerging Pacific community and India, the most populous democracy in the world and the major power in West Asia.

This month, using the annual ministerial exchanges with Japan as its forum Australia has been proclaiming its new friendship with Japan and China, the two major powers in the North Asian area.

In three months, Whitlam will visit Malaysia, Singapore, Thailand, The Philippines and Burma. These countries in Australia's immediate region are all active in Canberra diplomatic circles.

By mid-February 1974, Whitlam will have visited all the major powers in the Asian region, the Asian countries and Burma, the United States and the United Kingdom, underlining both the continuing importance the Australian government attaches to better relations with Australia's immediate neighbors and the more diversified foreign policy which the government seeks to pursue.

By next April, it is expected that Whitlam will visit several European countries as prime minister. Although he is shedding the title of foreign minister to his chief assistant, Sen. Donald Willessee, he will retain the power and the responsibility on major matters.

Kissinger Weigher of Odds

Architect of Nixon's Global Strategy

By DANA ADAMS SCHMIDT, from Washington

Somewhere on the stony road from the Golan Heights to Damascus at the extreme limit of the Israeli advance, the Israelis have put up a sign reading, "Kissinger Line."

That sign symbolizes the pervasive role in the quest for Middle East peace of Dr. Henry Kissinger, the former Harvard professor who became President Nixon's diplomatic strategist.

Nixon's summit diplomacy — detente with Moscow, restoring relations with China, playing off the one against the other, global strategy linking U.S. policy in the Far East with policy in Europe and the Middle East — all have largely involved Kissinger's thinking and doing.

By the same token, if a settlement, or an approach to peace is extracted from the fourth Arab-Israeli war, it will be chalked up as Nixon's achievement but Kissinger will once more be credited as the president's architect.

It was he who flew to Moscow to arrange the terms of the security council resolution which stopped the fighting. He is the man with whom Prime Minister Golda Meir met in Washington last week.

And he is now in Cairo seeing President Anwar Sadat. On this trip, Kissinger will also visit Rabat, Morocco; Cario; Amman; Riyadh; Saudi Arabia; Tehran; Islamabad; Peking; and Tokyo. A part of his staff also will stop at New Delhi, India; Kuwait City; Beirut; Tel Aviv; and Brussels.

The Russians have as much interest in this settlement as the United States. Kissinger's style, however, is more dramatic: an amalgam of thorough analysis and planning, careful calculation, and a specifically Kissinger willingness to get tough and take risks.

In a very important sense Kissinger is a weigher of odds: For instance, the secret Cambodian bombings which balanced possible military effect against the dangers of exposure; the mining of Haiphong harbor which might have dangerously provoked China and the Soviet Union; and the bombing of Hanoi which defied a large segment of U.S. public opinion. Nixon had to make these decisions, but reportedly it was Kissinger who offered the alternatives.

So far Kissinger has won, in the view of most observers.

He has his detractors, as well, those who see an element of personal vanity reflected in his interview with the Italian journalist Oriana Fallaci, in which he likened himself to a lone cowboy riding into town and overcoming all the desperadoes.

They claim that he was indifferent to his students and lacks loyalty to his subordinates. This school contends that Kissinger has a habit of telling whoever he is dealing with that he really agrees with them but is under great pressure from others.

Kissinger's detractors question the long-range viability and desirability of the Vietnam settlement, the Moscow detente, the wheat deal and the rest.

Be that as it may, in the Middle East Kissinger faces his toughest challenge. He must reckon not only with the two belligerents but with the Russians and a heavily pro-Israeli congress. The foundation of his strategy appears to be agreement with the Russians.

Israel Gets Last Chance

By JOSEPH C. HARSCH, from Washington

The manner of the military ending of the fourth Arab-Israeli war is not ideal from anyone's point of view. But it does lay the groundword for probably the best, and perhaps the last, chance for a long-term settlement between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

It is the best chance yet and perhaps the last for the same identical reason. The war has disclosed a decline which is bound to continue in the relative power of the Israelis versus their Arab neighbors.

The Arabs are yet far from being an even match, man for man, against the Israelis. an American Pentagon estimate of relative losses put the Arabs at three to every one for the Israelis.

But the ratio of losses in the 1967 war was very much more to the advantage of Israel. The Arabs fought much better and used their imported weapons more skillfully than in 1967. And the Arabs outnumber the Israelis by a lot more than three to one.

The Pentagon estimates Arab losses, in killed and wounded, at 15,000 as against 5,000 for the Israelis. But the population of Israel's three Arab neighbors (Egypt, Jordan and Syria) is 45 million as against an Israelis population of three million, or whom nearly a half million are non-Jews.

So the immediately neighboring Arabs outnumber the Israelis by more than 15 to one. They can afford a war with losses of only three to one, particularly when their own Arab neighbors are ready to pick up the cost out of their oil revenues.

The Arabs can mount a war like this every six to 10 years. The losses in people are acceptable. The losses in equipment can be made up. And in every war they improve in military proficiency.

Israel has been at peak of military proficiency for nearly a generation. Israel is also at the limit both of population and funds.

Israel can improve its techniques a little, and its manpower a little. But financially, Israel is living on the edge of its resources.

In order to make good its equipment losses in this last war it has turned to President Nixon who has asked congress for a grant of $2.2 billion to Israel.

But how many more times will the American congress be willing to pick up the tab for Israel's losses in still another war, particularly when it means the loss of Arabian oil?

Just about a year ago Israel was in an ideal bargaining position. It was still the spectacular victor from the 1967 war.

Egypt and Syria were disillusioned with the Russians. Egypt had thrown them out in July, and asked the United States to try to get peace talks going. Israel was the poker player with all the blue chips. A wise poker player pulls out when ahead of the game.

Israel's bargaining position to day is not as good as it was a year ago. It is still very good, but it is declining.

It is bound to go on declining, year by year, partly because the Arabs have so much higher limits on growth, and partly because the United States is going to become less and less willing to pay for Israel's wars.

A year ago Israel held back from serious peace talks because of bemusement with the idea of annexation. It passed up the moment when its bargaining position was at an all-time high.

Now its bargaining position is down a little, not disastrously, but still down. Israel can still get excellent terms.

This is its best chance in the sense that it still has a good bargaining position and the warning of an expensive war which it cannot afford to repeat every six to 10 years.

It may well be the last chance because if the Arabs don't get a settlement out of this round, and their power improves with each passing year — why bother? In the end they win?

Won at International Expositions held throughout the world for over 40 years.

In 1846, John Dewar went into business for himself as a spirit merchant at 111 High Street, Perth, Scotland.

Special, because the single whiskies are not shocked by being dumped together at once. We let them rest quietly awhile, so that the blend will have greater uniformity and more dependable consistency.

In this Scottish city, on the banks of the River Tay, nothing much has changed. The castle is still there, and every year, from January to December, when the air is chill and pure and the water is cold, the people of Perth make Dewar's Scotch Whisky.

Son Tommy Dewar looked for new markets at the 1885 Brewer's Show and used a bagpipe to entertain. (The first commercial use of music?)

Sir Thomas Dewar became famous for such terse comments as, "Do right and fear no man; don't write and fear no woman".

Before you say Scotch, say Dewar's.

This 40-foot Miami fishing cruiser was chartered by press photographer Sunday to cover President Nixon in case he took a boat ride from his Key Biscayne compound. The Watergate was investigated and boarded by U.S. Coast Guard men soon after it arrived off Florida White House. However, Coast Guard took no further action.

Grain, Farm-Product Exports Soar

Mideast Fertile Ground for U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of United States grain and other farm products to the war-torn Mideast are expected to jump 50 per cent in 1973-74 to a record $600 million, the agriculture department sail Sunday.

"The Mideast is as large a market for United States grains as eithr the Peoples Republic of China or India," the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said in a report written by John Parker, a Mideast expert in the department's Economic Research Service.

In the three months prior to the October war, shipments of wheat to Arab countries alone totalled 645,000 tons, 5½ times the quantity sold in July-September last year, the report said.

It added: "The large July-September shipments resulted from smaller harvests in some countries and difficulties in obtaining wheat and rice from other suppliers."

Parker told a reporter he did not think recent hostilities would affect seriously the overall United States farm sales to the Mideast during the fiscal year which ends next June 30.

Part of the large increase has resulted from poor wheat and other grain harvests in Iraq, Syria and Jordan, Parker said.

He estimated that a $600 million volume in 1973-74 would be broken down roughly as: Israel $200 million; the Arab countries $300 million; Iran $100 million.

During the last July-September quarter, sales jumped to $175 million, compared with $71 million in the same period last year. Egypt took $34.1 million of the first-quarter total, including wheat, corn and vegetable oil, compared with $15.2 million a year earlier.

Israel's purchases soared to $53.9 million in the quarter, up from $26.1 million a year earlier, and included soybeans and grain sorghums in addition to wheat and other products.

High Rate in Tight Labor Market

Unemployment 'Puzzling'

REGINA (CP) — Despite a seasonally-adjusted September unemployment rate of 6 per cent, Canada has a "tight" labor market, the senior deputy governor of the Bank of Canada said Monday.

Speaking to the local chamber of commerce, deputy governor R. W. Lawson said:

"There are nearly always shortages of some skills in Canada, but in recent months the shortages have been widespread and have included less-skilled as well as skilled workers."

Noting the 6-per-cent unemployment rate "has hitherto been regarded in this country as indicating a good deal of slack in the economy," he said it is a "puzzling question" how the rate can be high when the labor market is generally tight.

"Whatever the answer to that question, it seems clear to me that the circumstances of some of those who are today being recorded by the labor force survey as unemployed are quite different from the circumstances that are usually thought of as being involved in unemployment.

"The over-all unemployment rate has become difficult to interpretan d it is at present a much less useful guide than it used to be to the amount of slack in the economy."

Lawson said "there is no doubt that in virtually all of the more developed countries of the Western world the most urgent current economic problem is seen to be the containment of inflation.

"It is from inflation that the major threat to sustained high levels of trade, employment and output is seen to come."

He predicted that external pressures contributing to Canadian inflation would ease as worldwide supply of commodities came closer to world demand for those commodities, but warned that "the current surge of price inflation" should not be allowed to be built into the Canadian economy.

Docker Chief Out of Race

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lou Kaufman, the president of the Vancouver longshoremen's union local, said he will not run for re-election this month. Kaufman said he has fought for four years to get local control of negotiations for the 3,000 longshoremen in B.C. but without success.

Border Beef-Up By Eire

DUBLIN (UPI) — The Irish Republic has began a recruiting campaign Monday, to strengthen security forces along the Northern Ireland border.

The recruiting drive is part of Premier Liam Cosgrave's reaction to the growing militancy of IRA members, who sometimes hide out in the Irish Republic after terrorist operations in Northern Ireland.

It is also an answer to the sensational helicopter escape from a Dublin prison by three IRA leaders last week.

At least 1,000 extra troops will be recruited for duties along the 200-mile border, a spokesman for the defence forces said.

At a news conference Sunday, Defence Minister Patrick Donegan said the current Irish army of 14,000 was at least 3,500 men under strength.

An army spokesman said a new military barracks would be built near the border town of Monaghan and other border camps would be enlarged.

In Belfast, British officers said they feared the escape of the three IRA men would spur a new IRA offensive in Northern Ireland.

Crew Dies In Jet Crash

BOSTON (AP) — A Pan American World Airways 707 cargo jet, smoking from a fire in a hold, crashed Saturday at Logan International Airport, killing the three crew members and spewing debris over a wide area.

The four-engine jet, which turned back from a planned New York to Prestwick, Scotland, flight because of problems, crashed on the gravel approach to the runway, short of the asphalt.

The pilot turned around when his plane was over Sherbrooke, Que., and requested permission to land at Logan. It crashed in clear weather marred only by gusting winds.

The U.S. Coast Guard said the plane, capable of carrying a cargo of 47 tons, was carrying mail and pressurized cylinders of nitric acid.

John Williams, who lives on the 25th floor of an apartment tower directly across the harbor from the airport, said, "The burst of flames was enormous. They were sky-high."

South Korean Trade Visit

OTTAWA (CP) — Nak Sun Lee, South Korea's minister of industry and commerce, arrived with a trade delegation for a week-long visit to Canada. He was met at the airport by Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie. The nine-man delegation will discuss trade and economic affairs during their stay.

From the Wizard of Avis: some practical magic for people who don't rent cars.

If you don't rent cars, chances are it's because you think you can't afford to. Well, that's where the Wizard of Avis comes in. He has a flat daily rate with no mileage charge. It's a little magic that turns car renting from something that's too expensive into practical, affordable transportation for everybody. Here's how you could experience a sparkling new Avis car.

Let's say you're a businessman who does a lot of flying. When you arrive at your destination, you use a limousine to get downtown, cabs to go from meeting to meeting, then when it's time to go home, you take another limousine back to the airport. This adds up to a lot of money so instead you rent a sparkling new Plymouth Fury III for a day, cover all your calls, drive 87 miles and pay just $17.00 plus gas. That's less than you'd probably pay for limousines and cabs.

$17 1 day and 87 miles for just $17.00 plus gas.

Or suppose you live in a big city high-rise. You don't own a car, but you do like to get away to the country at weekends. You used to take the bus or train to get to there until you heard about the Wizard's flat daily rate. So you pick up a new Plymouth Satellite on Friday noon, keep it until Monday 9 A.M. and drive all the miles you want for just $32.00 and gas. (That's 2½ days for the price of two—with no mileage charge in the bargain.)

$32 2½ days and 420 miles for just $32.00 plus gas.

Maybe you're a salesman. You have your own car which you normally drive on all sales calls. But then you hear about the Wizard's flat daily rate with no mileage charge. It doesn't take you too long to figure out that driving a new Avis car on long trips makes a lot more sense than using the family car. So you rent a new Plymouth Duster, make seven calls, do 410 miles and keep the car for two days for just $30.00 and gas. Aside from the extra convenience, you even find that your mileage covers the best part of the rental!

$30 2 days and 410 miles for just $30.00 plus gas.

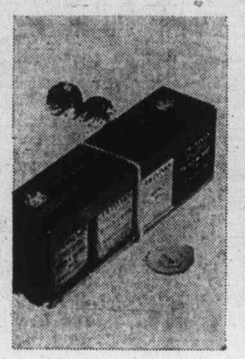

The Wizard's Flat Daily Rate. So economical, it can make car renting practical for you. Shouldn't you phone the number at the base of this ad for a reservation?

Avis rents all makes of fine cars, features Plymouth and Dodge. These rates available in major centres across Canada.

Canadian Mission

Japan's Housing Lumber Target

OTTAWA (CP) — A group of Canadian lumbermen are in Japan this week, sounding out what they and government officials predict could become a vast new market for this country.

"There is a tremendous revolution in housing going on in Japan," said Hans Roine, the Canadian Wood Council's new president, and his delegation hopes to persuade the Japanese to do much of their building with British Columbia lumber.

The Japanese, who increased imports of Canadian lumber from $55 million worth last year to $64 million in the first seven months of 1973, have placed a top priority on new housing for their country's burgeoning population.

"We can see at least a doubling and maybe more" in Japan's imports of Canadian lumber in the next few years," said E. W. Smith, chief of the primary wood products division of the industry, trade and commerce department.

The federal department is working closely with the mission of Roine and other prominent west coast lumbermen to seek a sharp expansion in Japanese purchases from new development in the Prince Rupert Forest district of British Columbia.

"This mission has been given the full support of this department," Smith said.

"The housing demand in Japan is approximately equal to the U.S. demand—an enormous incentive to our industry," Roine said before leaving on the mission from Prince George.

Smith said in Ottawa that Japan has set a goal of 1.9 million new housing units a year for the next five years, exceeding even the big U.S. target of 1.8 million units next year.

The $1 billion or more a year in U.S. purchases of Canadian lumber dwarfs all other world customers, but Japan has already become a strong second place importer.

Smith said the forests being opened up with new rail lines and port facilities in the Prince Rupert area will provide some 2 billion board feet of lumber a year that could "logically" be aimed at the Japanese market.

In addition to just selling lumber to Japan, Canadian lumbermen are also helping introduce western techniques of construction.

Roine, president of Clear Lake Sawmills in Prince George, said the Council of Forest Industries is introducing Canadian lumber standards and mass production techniques that differ from conventional Japanese building methods.

Smith said the use of standard Canadian lumber sizes in Japan will facilitate Japanese purchases here and save money for both sides in the transaction in comparison to cutting special sizes for the Japanese.

Smith cautions a big boost in Japanese purchase of Canadian lumber is dependent on working out satisfactory deals.

"Japan has access to wood from other parts of the world," he said, including the Soviet Union, with which it has a lumber trading agreement, Malaysia, the Far East and South America.

But Japan has over-cut its own forests and nearby countries are reluctant to sell raw logs to Japan because they want to develop their own lumber industries.

Canada, which can absorb only about one-third of the 14 billion feet of lumber it cuts a year, is therefore in a good marketing position and can compete in terms of world prices, he added.

Court Says Liquidate

FREDERICTON (CP) — The New Brunswick Supreme Court Monday ruled that IOS Ltd., an international mutual fund company which once controlled more than $2.5 million, should be liquidated.

The court ruled that IOS, founded in the mid-1950s by Bernard Cornfeld, was incapable of carrying on any kind of business and that it had no income. The company also was incapable of opening a bank account and was unable to find an auditor qualified and willing to act on its behalf.

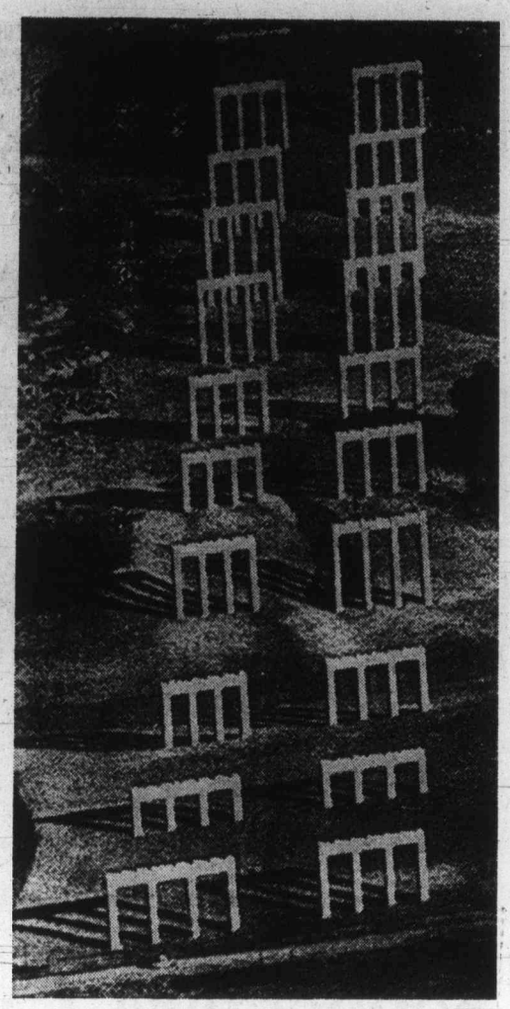

The ruling-subject to appeal —would place the company in the hands of a liquidator to be named when the court next sits in the complex case here Thursday.

GM Canada Names New Chief

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — General Motors of Canada Ltd. announced Monday the election of David Collier as president, chief executive officer and general manager.

Collier, a 44-year-old native of Hardisty, Alta., previously was treasurer of the parent General Motors Corp.

He succeeds John Baker, who becomes general manager of GM's Oldsmobile division at Lansing, Mich. Baker had headed GM Canada since December, 1971.

Summary Lists Insider Trading

First publication of insider trading is carried in the B.C. Securities Commission's weekly summary dated Oct. 26 and which appeared in the mail a week later.

The report carries the insider trading of 359 companies and securities and covers 27 pages of the summary. Trading reports cover the period from February of this year through September, and also contains three transactions in October.

Superintendent of brokers William Irwin writes in the summary that the previous month's trading will be carried in the last summary of the month following.

Irwin added that it is the intention of the commission, in the near future, to publish details of orders made under the reporting company provisions of the new Companies' Act which came into effect last Oct. 1.

Notice of the filing and financial statements and quarterly reports will also be carried.

"We hope that the publication of the insider trading data and our plan to publish notices of filing of financial information will make some contribution towards developing a more informed investor in B.C.," Irwin stated.

Quebecer Accused

Italian Swindle Totals $17 Million

SAN REMO, Italy (AP) — Italian police Monday accused 16 businessmen, including four Canadians and two Americans, with swindling 10 billion lire (17 million) out of shareholders in Italy and abroad. One of the Canadians was identified as a former chairman of the Quebec Securities Commission.

The 16 were charged with aggravated fraud and ganging for criminal purposes. They are all at large, police said.

All those charged, police said, held posts in five companies whose Italian offices have been closed down by authorities.

The companies were identified as Biozynes International of Montreal; Pan American Mines of Panama; Inter-Invest Trust of Geneva, and Borsa Invest and Holland Andreus, both of Milan, Italy.

One of those charged was identified as Marcel Lajeunesse, 52, described as a former chairman of the Quebec Securities Commission.

The other Canadians charged were identified as Michael Birkwood, 46, Alain Perier, 51, and Naughton Andrews, 60, all from Mintreal.

The two Americans were identified as Patrick Bowbey, 40, and Stefano Schow, 47, both from New York.

Police said the five companies attracted money from small investors through much publicized plans to build a plant to produce an anti-cancer drug at Trento, in the eastern Italian Alps.

Police said they first investigated the case two years ago following up a complaint by a 61-year-old Italian from Genoa who had paid 50 million lire ($85,000) for shares of one of the companies. Police arrested several businessmen but the charges were dropped by an investigating judge.

Police resumed the inquiry later searching offices in Milan, Genoa and other cities and seizing documents.

Oil Problems Boost Dollar

LONDON (Reuters) — Fears of an oil crisis in Western Europe prompted Monday heavy buying of United States dollars, which rose sharply in value against European currencies.

The dollar closed at 2.4770 West German marks compared with 2.4460 on Friday and at 3.0955 Swiss francs against 3.0752.

But the hardest hit European currency was the Dutch guilder, which traded at 2.666 to the dollar compared with a Friday closing rate of 2.555.

Foreign exchange dealers said there was a growing feeling in the market that the Arab oil embargo on Holland would be of considerable duration and would have repercussions on all West European countries.

Dealers said some market operators took the view that the U.S. is only marginally dependent on Middle East oil and that its export industries would therefore gain from industrial slowdowns in Europe and Japan resulting from fuel shortages.

Market sources also took the view that the U.S. can relatively soon earn substantial revenue as an exporter of oil products to Europe.

The British pound also moved lower against the dollar, closing at 2.4310 dollars compared with 2.4342 on Friday.

Fink Posts Third Win In Evergreen Tourney

VANCOUVER — It's three times in seven years for George Fink in the Evergreen Tournament of Champions.

The Calgary skip, who previously took top money in 1970 and 1971, picked off the $2,400 first prize Monday night when he bested 1972-champion Brent Giles of North Vancouver, 8-7, in an extra-end thriller at the Vancouver Curling Club.

Fink, who called the shots for a powerful combination which had Ron Northcott throwing third rocks, Don Nelson at second and Fred Storey leading off, barely escaped defeat on the 12th end.

Giles, who had brothers as vice-skip (Brock) and lead (Brad) and Craig Rampton at second, started home a 6-7 trailer but had last-rock advantage, and he seemed to be in command when it got down to skips' rocks.

He had three counters in, but Fink made it tough with a near-freeze. Giles chipped that one away, and Fink again drew up to get shot rock. Giles moved Fink's rock, but it hit another rock in the rings and stayed for second shot.

On the 13th end, Giles drew against two with his last rock, and pulled behind cover close to the four-foot ring. But Fink made a better draw, and the defending champion had to settle for the $1,200 second prize.

Glen Harper of Duncan, supported by steady rinkmates in Gwyn Hughes, Ralph Fulford and Vern Kaspick and showing some of the form which brought him two provincial championships, took third prize of $700. He bested Ron Braunstein and his rink of former Manitobans—Vic Wood, Bob Ward and Bob Dickson—by 8-5 in the consolation final. Braunstein won $500 for finishing fourth.

Eight rinks out of the 32 which started on Friday qualified for the finals. Two came out of the "A" and "B" events and four came out of the "C" event.

First to qualify were Giles, who was unbeaten in six starts when he ran afoul of Fink in the final, and the surprising Chuck Lundgren of Seattle, who was skipping in this event for the first time.

Braustein and Glen Pierce, now curling out of New Westminster, made it out of the "B" event while Harper, Fink, Bernie Sparkes of Richmond and Herb Van Grootel of Vernon took the long road and came out of the third event.

Harper, who had a 10-5 lead at one time, had to go an extra end in the championship quarter-finals before he could eliminate Lundgren (Gary Schnee, Jack Foster, Phil Thom). A first-rock draw behind cover on the 13th end won it, Lundgren failing to better the shot and making it unnecessary for the Duncan skip to throw his last rock.

Sparkes, who was skipping the reigning B.C. champions in place of Jack Tucker, and had Jim Armstrong, Gerry Peckham and Andy Chambers as his supporting cast, lost to Giles in the first championship round.

Braunstein beat Van Grootel (Dick Gibb, John Taporowski, Doug Green) in the championship quarter-finals and Fink evened the score with Peirce (Bert Gretzinger, Brian Bettesworth, Ron Miki). Pierce took a 9-6 decision in the quarter-finals of the "B" event on Sunday afternoon.

Fink then moved to the final by edging Harper, 9-8, and Giles made it by routing Braunstein, who led, 4-3, after four ends, 11-4.

Steeler s Terry Hanratty sacked by Verlin Biggs of Redskins

Sophomore Guides Steelers To Slim Win Over Redskins

Pittsburgh Steelers not only passed their first test without Terry Bradshaw but they were without Terry Hanratty for almost half of it.

It was against Washington Redskins in the National Football League's Monday night game, and the Steelers hung on to record a 21-16 win in a game which produced eight turnovers, and was in doubt until the last of them.

That came with less than three minutes left and the Redskins apparently having the go-ahead touchdown. Larry Brown picked of a pass from Bill Kilmer on the Pittsburgh goal-line, but the ball popped up about a foot when he was hit by one of two defenders. The second, Glen Edwards, alertly intercepted and started upfield.

Edwards fumbled, but a teammate recovered on the seven-yard line and the hard-running Franco Harris got the first down which was needed for the Steelers to run out the remaining time.

Hanratty, starting in place of the injured Bradshaw although suffering from bruised ribs, tossed touchdown passes to Preston Pearson and Ron Shanklin. But a hard tackle forced the former Notre Dame star to the sidelines, and the Steelers had to call on Joe Gilliam, a black sophomore pro from Tennessee State University.

It was 14-9 when Gilliam came in, and the youngster got what were to be the winning points when he hit Pearson with a perfect pass and had the speedy back spring 30 more yards for a 45-yard scoring play. But the second of the two interceptions he threw was turned into the only Washington touchdown and left Redskins with almost seven minutes for the other major score they needed.

Results forced Redskins to share first place in the National East and moved the Steelers two and a half games out front in the American Central.

An eighth straight victory for the unbeaten Minnesota Vikings vied for Sunday attention with a number of upset victories and the end of a losing streak at 18 games. The highlights:

● An awesome defence took the Vikings past Cleveland Browns, 26-3. The Browns were held to four first downs, 70 yards running and 75 yards in the air while completing 12 of 32 passes. And they turned the ball over three times, twice on interceptions;

● Houston Oilers, winless in their previous 18 games, seven of them this season, and without a victory on the road since Dec. 12, 1971, finally ended their frustrations by sneaking by Baltimore Colts, 31-29. Lynn Dickey, who wound up with 22 completions, in 32 throws, for 340 yards and three touchdowns, won it 32 seconds from time with a 13-yard scoring strike to Fred Willis;

● Quarterback Bobby Douglass, who actually completed 10 of 15 passes for 118 yards, ran 19 times for 100 yards and four touchdowns to give Chicago Bears a 31-17 upset victory over Green Bay Packers;

● Jim Turner, who had missed on three previous field-goal chances, made good from 12 yards with one second left and brought Denver Broncos a 17-17 tie with St. Louis Cardinals;

● Nick Mike-Mayer, a Hungarian who came to the U.S. from Italy 11 years ago, and attended Temple University, kicked five field goals as Atlanta Falcons made it four wins in a row by edging Los Angeles Rams, 15-13. Rams, who would have practically clinched division honors by winning, were 10-0 before the game was 10 minutes old;

● New Orleans' surprising Saints, who the week previous held Washington Redskins to 24 yards running, shut off O. J. Simpson at 79 yards and shut out Buffalo Bills, 13-0, for their fourth win in five games;

● San Diego Chargers, now 1-6-1, were shut out for the third time this season, losing 0-19 to Kansas City Chiefs. The disenchanted 52,035 fans saved their biggest cheer for a private plane which flew over the field with a banner reading "Four More Years." That's the time left on coach Harland Svare's contract. Svare made the fans happy Monday by resigning;

● Veteran-linebacker Lee Roy Jordan intercepted each of the first three times Cincinnati Bengals had the ball, and Dallas Cowboys buzzed off to a quick 17-0 lead in a 38-10 rout;

● Ken Stabler continued the great passing which has made a backup quarterback of Daryle Lamonica, completing 16 of 21 passes for 212 yards and tw touchdowns to lead Oakland Raiders to a 42-0 rout of New York Giants. Stabler started the game with a 68.8 per cent completion average;

● Bill Munson started for the first time in four seasons and completed 14 of 27 throws for 234 yards and two touchdowns as Detroit Lions upset San Francisco 49ers, 30-20. John Brodie replied with 23 completions, out of 47 throws, for 254 yards but six interceptions slowed down the San Francisco attack;

● Philadelphia Eagles started the last quarter 0-17 but managed to edge New England Patriots, 24-23, when Tom Dempsey kicked a 12-yard field goal with 12 seconds left. Roman Gabriel started the rally with two touchdown passes to Charlie Young, and the Eagles went ahead when Bill Wynn went in from 24 yards after picking up a fumbled ball. Patriots got a late touchdown to regain the lead, 23-21, but failing on the convert set them up for defeat.

There's no use standing pat with a losing club.

Victoria Cougars haven't performed to expectation in the Western Canada Hockey League and, following a meeting today, could be in for an extensive shakeup.

That's the word from general-manager Eric Bishop, who Monday expressed disappointment with his club's showing in weekend games against Edmonton Oil Kings and Kamloops Chiefs.

Cougars, beaten 6-3 by Edmonton here Saturday, were thrashed, 7-2, by the Chiefs in Kamloops on Sunday.

"There's no excuse for our performance Sunday," Bishop said, "As soon as coach (Ollie) Dorohoy gets back, we'll be sitting down and trying to work it out."

Dorohoy, who was with his hospitalized wife in Vancouver on Monday, was expected to be back in Victoria late Monday evening.

Bishop, who didn't go with the team to Kamloops, couldn't say what action would be taken but he indicated there could be some players recruited from Nanaimo Clippers for Saturday's game here against Flin Flon Bombers. Clippers, the Cougar affiliate in the B.C. Junior Hockey League, are holding down first place in the Coastal Division.

"We lack team spirit and leadership," Bishop said, "and we can't go on losing games this way if we hope to make the playoffs. If the coach feels changes are necessary, changes will be made."

Cougars fell behind 0-6 to Kamloops before rookie Derek Haas scored his sixth and seventh goals of the season.

Cougars and Chiefs are tied for fifth place in the Western Division, only one point behind the Oil Kings. But the Alberta club has two games in hand on Victoria.

Oil Kings were thrashed, 9-1, by the Bruins in New Westminster on Sunday in a game marred by first-period brawls.

New Westminster-coach Ernie McLean received a broken jaw when he was hit by a puck deflected in the Bruin bench.

In other games, Calgary Centennials stopped Flin Flon, 5-1; Regina Pats thrashed Winnipeg Clubs, 7-2; and Swift Current Broncos posted an 8-4 decision over Saskatoon Blades.

Victoria Maple Leafs missed a chance at a third-place tie in the Pacific International Junior Hockey League on Monday, bowing, 7-2, to Surrey Stampeders at Memorial Arena.

Maple Leafs, only two points behind third-place Coquitlam Comets, fought through a scoreless first period against the league leaders.

Surrey then exploded for five goals — two on power plays — in the second session while Victoria could only counter with goals by Bruce McLean and Larry Hansen.

Glen Schwarz, Steve Bradford, Clark Kavolinis, Ron McKay, Rob Gurr, Ken Brandle and Pete Titchner scored for Surrey, which held a 38-18 edge in shots on goal.

In the only other game Monday, Ray Lorentz scored with less than a minute to play to give Richmond Sockeyes their first win, a 6-5 decision over the visiting Seattle Totems.

In Sunday's action Surrey edged Seattle, 6-5, and Coquitlam scored an 8-0 win over Portland Buckaroos.

Playland Spiel Talent-Laden

Defending champion Jack Tucker and beaten-finalist Leo Hebert have entered the annual Playland Invitational cash bonspiel which offers $5,400 in prize money.

The four-day spiel gets under way Friday with draws at 1:00, 3:30 and 6 p.m. Tucker's Vancouver rink meets Jim Gislason's foursome from Port Alberni and Hebert, also from Vancouver, meets Victoria Curling Club's Keith Dagg in opening draws of the 32-rink spiel.

All rinks start in the "A" event and after two days of play the two finalists in "A" and "B" events plus the final four rinks remaining in "C"; event will advance to the final round.

The winning rink will split the first prize of $2,500 while the losing finalist will pick up $1,200.

Among the strong contenders from out of town are Vancouver's Glen Pierce, a former winner, Trev Fisher of New Westminster, a beaten semi-finalist last year, and the youthful Brock Giles rink of Vancouver, winner of the Evergreen spiel a year ago and a losing finalist this year.

First draws for all rinks:

McRae Wins Grand Prix

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Former world driving champion Graham McRae of New Zealand outduelled John McCormack of Australia and won the Australian Grand Prix Sunday at the rain-swept Sandown Track.

McRae, driving a new McRae GM2, won the 100-mile race by 1.7 seconds at an average speed of 103.9 miles per houd. He also set a lap record of 61.6 seconds, an average of 112.68 m.p.h.

Victoria Bid Fails

Wilf Sadler of Victoria said Monday that Abbeville, Louisiana, has been awarded the 1974 Babe Ruth baseball world series.

Victoria and Pueblo, Colo., had also been in the running for the annual event, which brings together eight regional champions from across North America for an eight-day series.

Sadler and the Victoria committee had raised more than $10,000 in ticket pledges to support their application.

Next game: Today — LBC Juniors vs. Merchants, St. J. Willis.

London Boxing Club Seniors came back strong in the second half Monday and captured first place in the Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League.

The Seniors outscored Hotel Douglas 35-25 in the second half and earned a 77-69 victory at Royal Oak Junior High.

Hotel Douglas had led by 44-42 at halftime, but Boxing Club took the lead with four straight baskets at the start of the second half and when the Hotelmen got close in the fourth quarter they strung out another eight straight points.

Bob Wiley (28 points) and Jim McKay (23 points) supplied most of the offence, while Tom Hatcher led the Hotelmen with 19 points.

In the other game Monday, Arctic Installation picked up its first win of the season by downing Independents, 69-49.

Hans de Goede led Arctic with 15 points, while Rob Marshall was tops for Independents with 19 points, 17 of them in the second half.

Seattle SuperSonics, who started to go wrong when Len Wilkins was replaced as coach, haven't got things straightened out under Bill Russell.

Russell, signed before the start of the current National Basketball Association season, has been a demanding coach. But the Sonics are 4-10 and looking as if a playoff spot is out of their reach.

Their tenth defeat came at home Sunday night when they passed up an excellent chance for their fifth win. New York Knickerbockers were playing their third game in three nights, but they managed to stagger to a 111-105 decision with the Sonics again coming up with a poor defensive display. To make it worse, the second largest crowd of the season—13,772—watched the inept Sonics lose.

Defeat dropped Sonics five games behind Los Angeles Lakers, who lead the Pacific Division with an 8-4 record.

Without Wilt Chamberlain in a changed lineup but still with Jerry West, the Lakers got their eighth win Sunday by knocking off Houston Rockets, 106-93. West had 30 points, and Elmore Smith, who replaced Chamberlain, blocked 14 shots.

Playing in Toronto, where 6075 fans showed, Chicago Bulls stayed in hot pursuit of Milwaukee Bucks, the 11-1 Midwest Division leaders, by taking Buffalo Braves, 101-95, in overtime. Braves led, 89-86, with 30 seconds left but Chet Walker, who finished with 29 points, tied it up with a three-point play.

Finley Fighting Tax Battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles O. Finley, whose Oakland Athletics won their second consecutive world championship last month, now is trying to win a battle in the tax courts.

Records of the U.S. tax court here show that the Internal Revenue Service is trying to collect more than $546,000 in back taxes which it alleges are owed for 1967 and 1968 by Charles O. Finley and Co. Inc., of which Finley is president.

In a second case, the IRS contends the Finley corporation also owes taxes on accumulated earnings for 1960, 1963, 1964, 1965 and 1966.

Finley contends his corporation doesn't owe the money and has filed a counter-claim against the IRS for a refund on alleged over-assessment of $97,889 in 1967 and $237,045 for 1965.

Both cases are to be tried in Chicago, where the Finley corporation maintains its headquarters. No date for the trial is recorded here.

At issue in the two tax cases is whether Finley owes taxes on accumulated earnings of his corporation, which the IRS contended was created to avoid income tax payments.

But in that case, the IRS contends the Finley corporation did not declare a single dividend during those years to holders of its stock, all of which was owned by Finley and members of his immediate family.

Because no dividends were paid and no taxes were due on them, the IRS said, the "stockholders avoided income taxes is substantial amounts" for those years.

Bruins Assign Sanderson To American League Club

Boston Bruins have assigned Derek Sanderson to Boston Braves but it's doubtful if the colorful centre will report to the American Hockey League club.

Managing director Harry Sinden said Monday that Sanderson cleared waivers by all other National Hockey League teams and was expected to start working out with the Braves today.

But Sanderson, who has been rumored to be on the trading block, was reported to be in New York on Monday and his attorney, Bob Woolf, said Sanderson had no indication he was to be sent to the Braves. It is believed Sanderson, Woolf and Sinden will meet today.

Next game. Tonight — Buffalo at Vancouver.

The six-foot, 174-pound Sanderson injured his back in a scrimmage during training camp this year and spent some time in Massachusets General Hospital.

He has not played in any of the Bruins' 12 games this season.

The announcement gave no reason for sending Sanderson to the Braves but Sinden said that "Derek's back is okay now. However, he's not in shape to play in the National Hockey League."

"We're hoping he'll go down and play himself into shape with the Braves."

Sinden added that Sanderson "cleared waivers" last weekend and, although several teams entered claims, "they were withdrawn before the waiver period expired."

There have been rumors that Sanderson was to be traded to New York Rangers but these were never confirmed or denied by the Bruins.

Sanderson also spent some time with the Braves last season after jumping back to the Bruins from Philadelphia Blazers of the World Hockey Association.

The 27-year-old Sanderson's best season was 1970-71, when he scored 29 goals and drew 34 assists in 71 games. In 1971-72, he had 25 goals and 33 assists.

After that season, Sanderson jumped to the WHA, signing a $1 million contract with the Blazers. But after a back injury and problems with the Blazer front office, Sanderson moved back to the Bruins.

Even with Sanderson out of the lineup, Bruins have been near the top of the East Division for all of the young season and presently hold a one-point edge over Montreal Canadiens.

With Phil Esposito counting his 15th and 16th goals of the season, Bruins trimmed California Golden Seals, 4-1, on Sunday.

The goals boosted Esposito into a seven-point lead over linemate Ken Hodge in the individual scoring race. Esposito, scoring at least one point in each of the first 12 games, has 28 points.

In other games Sunday, Canadiens and Buffalo Sabres tied, 1-1, Philadelphia Flyers blanked Pittsburgh Penguins, 7-0; Atlanta Flames shut out Detroit Red Wings, 2-0; and Chicago Black Hawks scored a 4-1 win over the sagging Rangers.

At Buffalo, Rick Martin scored his 11th goal of the season, early in the second period, to pull the Sabres into the tie.

In Philadelphia, goalkeeper Bernie Parent posted his fifth shutout in 12 starts, lowering his goals-against average to a phenomenal 1.25. Parent also tied the Philadelphia season shutout record set in the 1971-72 campaign by Doug Favell.

Eskimos Trim Roughriders For Bye Into Western Final

The stumpy quarterbacking veteran who last year took over from the injured Bruce Lemmerman to guide the Eskimos into a first-place point tie in the Western Football Conference, Sunday led them to the conference championship.

Using the pass only sparingly but connecting for three touchdown throws as a crunching ground game kept the Saskatchewan defence in trouble, Wilkinson was in charge all the way for a 28-16 triumph over the Roughriders.

It brought the Edmonton club their second successive point tie for the lead, but this time it was good enough to bring the official first-place rating because of a 2-1 series edge over Riders. A year ago, Winnipeg Blue Bombers were the official winners.

Sunday's victory, gained before 21,234 fans who ignored the near-zero temperature and the 20-mile-an-hour wind in Edmonton, gave Eskimos a two-week layoff. Riders and the B.C. Lions meet in Regina next Sunday to decide the other team for the conference final, scheduled in Edmonton on Nov. 18.

It looked for a while Sunday as if the Riders, beaten Grey Cup finalists last year, were going to take over. But it turned on two plays, the first late in the first quarter and the other early in the second quarter, and the Saskatchewan team never recovered.

Riders led, 3-0, and were on the move when George Reed fumbled on the Edmonton 22-yard line late in the first quarter, and Sam Britts, a key man in the tough Edmonton defence, got the ball back for his side.

Eskimos didn't take over then, but Riders never recovered after Ron Estay broke through early in the second quarter to dump quarterback Ron Lancaster for a 17-yard loss. It was 25-3 before the Riders, desperately throwing the ball, got on the scoreboard again.

In the meantime, Wilkinson used the blocking of Calvin Harrell and the running of Roy Bell to play a possession game which left Riders helpless. Bell, leading ground-gainer in the CFL this year, pounded for 174 yards in 27 carries and also also contributed a 64-yard kickoff return. Harrell got 31 yards in five carries and caught three passes for 43 yards when he was given time off from his blocking duties. And one of his receptions, a 13-yarder, brought Eskimos their first touchdown.

Gary Lefebvre and Tyrone Walls, on plays covering 41 and eight yards respectively, pulled in the other scoring passes thrown by Wilkinson. Dave Cutler, who set a CFL record of 32 field goals for a season, provided the other Edmonton points with three-pointers from 49 and 46 yards, three converts and a single point.

Riders, who got only 48 yards rushing with Reed stopped at 22 yards for 10 carries, piled up good air yardage, but most of it came late in the game in the losing effort to come from behind. Reed scored from one yard four minutes into the fourth quarter to get them to 9-25, and Bob Pearce pulled in an eight-yard touchdown pass from Lancaster with less than three minutes left.

Miscues Costly For Als in East

During the last few Canadian football League seasons, one of the biggest problems plaguing Montreal Alouettes has been turnovers.

They lost the ball five times Sunday — three in fumbles, once on a blocked kick and the other on a pass interception — and lost, 25-13, to Hamilton Tiger-Cats before 30,240 fans at Ivor Wynne Stadium.

The loss cost the Alouettes second place in the four-team Eastern conference and the home-field advantage for the EFC's sudden-death semi-final next Sunday.

Montreal will have to travel to Toronto to meet the Argonauts. The Argos moved into second place Saturday with an 18-3 win over Winnipeg Blue bombers of the Western conference in the final interlocking game of the year.

The outcome of that game eliminated Hamilton from the playoffs and Tiger-Cats became the fourth straight Grey Cup champions to miss playoffs the following year.

Ottawa won it all in 1969 and missed the playoffs in 1970. Montreal followed by winning in 1970 and missing in 1971. And then Calgary won in 1971 and missed in 1972.

On Sunday, the Tiger-Cats converted the blocked punt and two fumbles on three successive Montreal sequences into a pair of touchdowns and a field goal in the fourth quarter to erase a 13-8 deficit.

Back up quarterback Steve Etter put Hamilton ahead to stay when he barged over from two yards out after John Williams had blocked Wally Buono's punt and Hamilton took over on the Montreal 12-yard line.

Hull Fires Four Goals As Jets Top Quebec

Bobby Hull had his burners turned up full Sunday and the Quebec Nordiques got scorched.

The Golden Jet scored four goals to spark Winnipeg Jets to an 8-2, World Hockey Association victory over the Nordiques before 8020 delighted fans in Winnipeg.

The victory put the Jets in second place in the West, three points behind Edmonton Oilers, who edged Minnesota Fighting Saints, 4-3, in Minnesota.

In other games Sunday, New England Whalers recaptured first place in the East by blasting Cleveland Crusaders, 7-5, at Boston; visiting Toronto Toros dumped Los Angeles Sharks, 6-3; and New York Golden Blades beat Vancouver Blazers, 4-3, in a battle of cellar-dwellers in Vancouver.

Hull added one assist to his four goals and moved into a four-way tie for fifth place in the WHA scoring race, five points behind leader Serge Bernier of the Nordiques.

Bernier has eight goals and 13 assists, while Hull has 11 goals and five assists.

At Winnipeg, both clubs started fast, scoring four goals in the first 12 minutes. Hull scored on his first shot and then the Nordiques beat Winnipeg goaltender Joe Daley with their first two shots.

After the close first period, however, the Nordiques began to tire and rookie Ron Snell broke the 2-2 tie at 2:11 of the second period.

Hull got two goals in succession in the second period and then added another in the third period.

At Vancouver, the Blazers were all over the Golden Blades, firing 55 shots at New York goalkeeper Joe Junkin but Mike Laughton's second goal of the game at 16:02 of the third period gave the Blades the win. Vancouver defenceman Dave Hutchison hit the goalpost just seconds before Laughton scored.

The loss was the seventh straight for the last-place Blazers.

Suspensions Recommended

TORONTO (CP) — Referee-in-chief Vern Buffey of the World Hockey Association says he will recommend suspensions for two players involved in a stick-swinging duel during Sunday night's game between Toronto Toros and Los Angeles Sharks.

Buffey was in the stands to watch the third-period skirmish between Toronto's Guy Trottier and Los Angeles' Ted McCaskill.

Trevino Fires 69 For Aussie Win

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Colorful Lee Trevino played his second straight round without a bogey, shooting a five-under-par 68 Sunday, and scored a four-stroke victory in a $74,500 international golf tournament.

Trevino, who had shared the third-round lead with fellow-American Jim Colbert, finished with a 72-hole total of 277, 15-under-par over the rain-inundated, 6850-yard, par-73 Lakes Golf Course.

Stewart Ginn of Australia, one stroke back starting the final round, recorded a 71 and was second at 281. Australians also took the next two places, with Graham Marsh third at 285, followed by Bill Dunk at 287.

The 32-year-old Colbert staggered in with an 80 and wound up in a tie for seventh at 289.

Trevino, the favorite with the gallery of 2000 as he entertained them with constant conversation, vaulted into command with birdies at the par-four, 420-yard 12th hole, the par-four, 376-yard 13th and the par-five, 544-yard 14th hole.

Trevino received $14,900 plus a new car. Scores of other Americans included Gay Brewers at 292, Jerry Breaux at 293 and Cesar Sanudo and 61-year-old Sam Snead, each at 294.

Surprise Snowfall Hits Area Sports

All matches in the Lower Island Juvenile Soccer Association, the Vancouver Island Soccer League, the Victoria Rugby Union and the men's and ladies' Island Field Hockey Associations were postponed because of poor field conditions.

The annual Greater Victoria age-class cross-country championships were rescheduled for Nov. 18 at Beaver Lake Park.

And two South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League games, involving up-Island teams, were postponed because of poor driving conditions on the Malahat.

VANCOUVER — Victoria Saints scored their initial victory of the season Sunday and created a four-way tie in the Inter-City Senior "A" Women's Basketball League.

The Saints blew an early lead and had to come from behind to down the UBC Jayvees, 43-36.

Victoria led, 23-14, at halftime, but UBC hit for 10 straight points in the second half to take a 24-23 lead, before Wendy Wallace broke Saints' scoring slump.

The Saints lost three players to fouls in the fourth quarter but Marg Mainwaring scored all nine of her points in the last 10 minutes of the game to stretch the Victoria lead.

All four teams in the league have one victory each, but Simon Fraser is undefeated, Victoria and Vancouver have lost once each and UBC has lost twice.

Miss Mainwaring, who topped the Saints scoring in their 51-37 loss to Vancouver on Saturday, led the balanced Victoria attack Sunday with her nine points, followed by Diana Brozuk with eight points.

Shawnigan Side Blanks Visitors

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Shawnigan Lake Boys School scored a convincing B.C. Independent Schools Rugby League match Saturday.

Shawnigan Lake trounced St. Michael's University School of Victoria, 32-0, in one of four matches played.

In exhibition matches, Shawnigan seconds won, 10-6, and Shawnigan Colts scored a 27-0 victory. St. Michael's drubbed the hosts, 44-4, in junior-colt play.

Next games: Saturday — Pegasus vs. Victoria London Boxing Club, Royal Athletic Park, North Shore vs. Columbians.

VANCOUVER — It took a second-half penalty goal to defeat Victoria London Boxing Club on Sunday and it preserved Vancouver Italia's unbeaten record this season in the B.C. Soccer League.

Sam Lenarduzzi scored from the spot to give the former-Columbus squad a 2-1 win at Empire Stadium — the fifth win in six games for Italia, which tied in its other start.

Centre Vanni Lenarduzzi had opened the scoring early in the first half and Dean Stokes, with only the third goal this season against former-Canadian national goalkeeper Peter Greco, had equalized shortly before halftime.

Boxing Club-goalkeeper Kjeld Brodsgaard also played a strong game, stopping flashy Sergio Zanatta on several occasions.

But the Boxing Club forwards — the top scoring unit in the 12-team league — couldn't penetrate the tough Italia defensive wall.

The win boosted Italia into a three-way deadlock for first place in the first division with Victoria Gorge-Molsons and Vancouver Pegasus.

Boxing Club, which can pull into the lead with a win Saturday at Royal Athletic Park against Pegasus, is in fourth spot, one point behind the leaders.

In other Sunday games, Pegasus and North Shore Paul's played to a scoreless draw; Westminster Blues hammered Simon Fraser Clansmen 5-1; and Vancouver Columbians and University of B.C. Thunderbirds fought to a 2-2 draw.

Reserve Clause Limit Aim of Legislation

OTTAWA (UPI) — Consumers Affairs Minister Herb Gray introduced an amendment to the Combines Investigation Act Monday which would limit the reserve clause in amateur and professional sports contracts.

A provision in the new bill brings professional and amateur sports under its terms for the first time and while it does not outlaw the reserve clause, it would allow a player to take any dispute to court.

Most professional and many amateur contracts contain a clause that states the player cannot join another team in the same league during or after the life of his contract unless he is released or sold by the team which owns him.

The reserve clause was designed to protect the poorer teams from having their players attracted to richer teams by offers of better players' contracts.

"If the affiliation of players to a team were to be determined only by pocket books of the teams, the wealthier teams would wind up with all the best players and the league would not be viable," a consumer and corporate affairs department statement said.

Gray said his proposed amendments would "make it easier for people who move from amateur to professional sports to have a better choice of teams to play with. It limits such things as the reserve clause."

Gray said if a player found his ability to play for the team of his choice has been inhibited by unreasonable terms in his contract, he can take his case to court to obtain his realease.

The new bill states it would be an indictable offense to conspire or to arrange:

● "To limit unreasonably the opportunities for any person to participate as a player or competitor in professional or amateur sports or to impose unreasonable terms or conditions on those persons who so participate.

● "To limit unreasonably the opportunity for any other person to negotiate with and, if agreement is reached, to play for the team or club of his choice in a professional or amateur league."

The amendments exempt arrangements that relate exclusively to the granting and operating of franchises within the same league.

In considering the agreements to determine whether a violation of the act has occurred, the court would be instructed to investigate whether the sport is organized on an international basis and whether the terms drawn up in another country should be applicable in Canada.

The amendments were made in response to recommendations by the report on amateur hockey in Canada and the report of the task force on sports for Canadians.

In Montreal, a spokesman for the National Hockey League said NHL president Clarence Campbell would want to study the details of the proposed amendments before making any comment.

Cowichan Chiefs Island Champs

Red Bellis provided the heroics and Cowichan Chiefs captured the Vancouver Island Bantam Football League championship Sunday at Royal Athletic Park.

Bellis returned a kickoff 75 yards for a touchdown with five minutes remaining to give Cowichan a 21-14 victory over Saanich Vampires.

Both teams advance to the B.C. single-loss elimination semi-finals next Sunday at Swangard Stadium in Burnaby. Vampires play South Vancouver and Cowichan takes on Renfrew PMVA.

Cowichan led, 7-0, in the first quarter on a touchdown and convert by Ross McCauley, but Vampires tied it early in the second quarter on a touchdown by Steve Short and convert by Brad Leason.

Mickey Jahelka, with a touchdown, put the Chiefs ahead, 13-7, and McCauley added a single to give Cowichan a 14-7 lead at halftime.

Saanich came back with a touchdown by quarterback Randy Smith and convert by Leason tie the game in the fourth quarter, but Bellis returned the ensuing kickoff for the winning score.

Saanich Braves outshot Esquimalt A and W better than three to one Sunday but it took a late goal from Lorne Halme to win the game.

The score was 0-0, at the end of the first period and 1-1 at the end of the second.

Brentwood Topples St. Georges

Brentwood College came up with its best game of the season Saturday and handed St. Georges of Vancouver its first rugby defeat in two years.

Brentwood had a strong second half to defeat St. Georges, 12-7, in an Independent Schools League game in Vancouver.

Doug Stewart had a try and Randy Horne a penalty goal for St. Georges, who led, 7-3, at halftime.

Badminton Exhibitions This Week

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two badminton champions from the Soviet Union will play four top-rated Canadians in White Rock Wednesday and on Thursday in Port Alberni.

The visiting Russians are Konstantin Vavilly and Nikolay Pestekhonov. Both nights, the Russians will meet Wayne MacDonnell and Bruce Rollick, both of Vancouver, in singles matches, and twins Geoff and Greg Harris of Edmonton in doubles.

Kathy Caps Big Year

APOPKA, Fla. (AP) — Top money-winner Kathy Whitworth pulled out of a back-nine log-jam Sunday with birdies on three of the final six holes and won the $50,000 Lady Errol Golf Classic.

It was the tall Texan's seventh Ladies Professional Golf Association victory of the season, boosting her 1973 earnings to a record $82,864.

Her closing two-under-par 70 on the 6235-yard course gave her a three-under 213 for 54 holes in the final tournament of the season.

Crenshaw Outlasts Veterans To Win First Tourney as Pro

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Rookie Ben Crenshaw fashioned a four-under par 67 and scored a two-stroke victory Sunday in the San Antonio-Texas Open golf tournament.

The victory was worth $25,000 of the total purse of $125,000 for Crenshaw.

He's one of the youngest players ever to win a pro-tour title and the win came just one week after Crenshaw received his pro tour card.

Veteran pros George Archer and Orville Moody each had a shareof the lead at one time or another, but Crenshaw pulled away with birdies on two of the last three holes.

Moody, the 1969 U.S. Open champion, was second for the third time this year with a 67 for 272. Archer, a former Masters champion who trailed Crenshaw by a single stroke when the last round started, was antother stroke back with a 69-273.

Rod Funseth, had a 69 and was lone at 276. Jack Ewing had the day's best round, a 66, and tied Dave Eichelberger at 277. Eichelberger put together a 68.

City Swimmer Sets Records

VANCOUVER — Alison Noble of Victoria set two of three national age-class records at an invitational meet staged by Canadian Dolphins Swim Club on the weekend.

The 12-year-old member of Victoria Flying "Y" club cut one-tenth of a second off the 50-metre backstroke record by covering the distance in 33.6 seconds on Sunday. Colette Duhamel of Montreal set the record in 1969.

Miss Noble won the 100-metre backstroke on Saturday, taking 1.2 seconds off the mark set this year by Kathy Smith of Edmonton.

Also establishing a national mark was Vancouver's Janka Samuhel, who topped her own record for 12-year-olds in the 100-metre butterfly with a time of 1:12.4.

The Vodka that leaves you breathless.

WE WANT TO KEEP BREATHING!

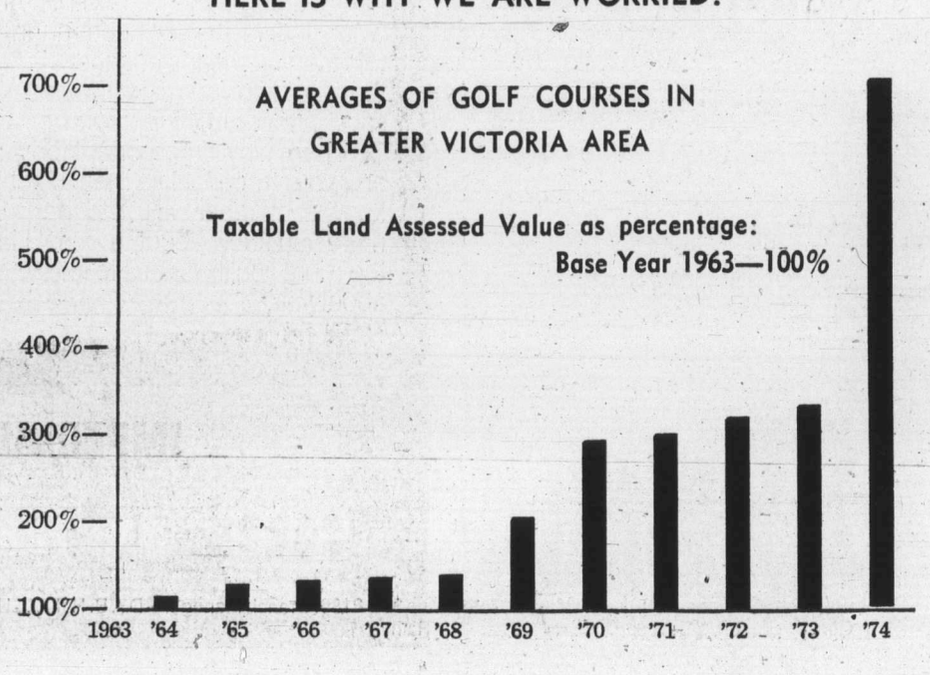

CAN WE AFFORD TO HAVE:
- Our golf courses turned into housing developments?
- Tremendously increased greens fees to our golfers?

OUR GOLF COURSES PROVIDE:
- Means of keeping thousands of our youngsters off the street
- Recreational opportunities for all ages
- Social atmosphere and physical recreation for senior citizens
- Recreational facilities for visitors and tourists
- Jobs for thousands of people on year round basis

CONSIDER THESE FACTS:
- Trees and grass of one of our golf courses filter our polluting gasses and provide enough pure oxygen to supply over 10,000 persons per day
- Our increased leisure time demands more golf courses—not less

RECENT CHANGES IN LEGISLATION WILL RESULT IN:
- Doubling of land assessments on all golf courses
- Lack of construction of new golf courses so badly needed

HERE IS WHY WE ARE WORRIED!

WE NEED YOUR HELP! TO GET THE MESSAGE ACROSS TO THE GOVERNMENT, we must let them know that the ENTIRE PUBLIC is aroused.

LET THE GOVERNMENT KNOW TODAY THAT YOU SUPPORT THE CAUSE! WRITE THE PREMIER OR YOUR M.L.A.

The Honourable David Barrett
Premier, Province of British Columbia
Parliament Buildings
Victoria, B.C.

Dear Mr. Barrett:

I am certainly in sympathy with thoughts expressed in the brief recently presented to you by the British Columbia Golf Association relative to tax relief for golf courses in the Province.

Every golf course in our area is virtually saturated! We need more golf courses to accommodate those of us who want to participate in this healthy, outdoor activity. We cannot afford to see our present golf courses turned into housing developments. They are a very valuable ecological asset to our area.

As an individual golfer, I cannot afford to pay the increased cost for each round of golf I play if the total tax increases are passed along to me.

We need our large green belts just to keep breathing. Please treat our golf courses the same as you plan to do our farm lands and parks.

Yours very truly,

Provincial COURT

Two Colwood area youths admitted Monday in Victoria Provincial Court they took a safe containing more than $1,000 Oct. 20 from Bob's Burgers, 1681 Island Highway.

The two, Andrew Bernard Harling, 19, of 775 Station, and Steven Gregory Kuro, 17, of 1092 Jenkins, pleaded guilty to a joint Colwood break-in charge containing four counts of theft and one of intent to steal.

Statements to Judge William Ostler were that police later were taken to two caches and a home where a total of $1,060 was recovered. Break-ins other than the one at Bob's Burgers occurred Sept. 18 to 20 and involved theft of more than $82 in cash from three businesses.

Harling and Kuro were remanded in custody by Ostler to Nov. 20 for pre-sentence reports and sentence.

Seven persons were fined $75 each by Ostler following pleas of guilty in six separate cases of possession of a narcotic, with small amounts involved in all.

Hashish was the narcotic found when Heather Mary Galbraith and Rodney Martin Nyberg, both 18 and Sooke residents, were stopped Sunday in Victoria. Marijuana was involved for David Edward Jones, 20, of 310 Robert, checked Thursday in Esquimalt.

The others, all stopped in Victoria for marijuana possession, were Patrick David Bumphrey, 23, of 250 Government, checked Oct. 18; Dennis Edward LaFont, 20, of 816 Tolmie, and Isaac Behar, 23, of Port Alberni, both stopped Friday, and Anthony Leverne Kuwicka, 17, of Vancouver, checked Sunday.

□

In traffic court, Dale Alonzo Wellar, 31, of Nanaimo, pleaded guilty before Judge Harold Alder to a charge of impaired driving Oct. 27 in Victoria and was sentenced to 14 days in jail and a six-month driving ban.

□

Three others who pleaded guilty to separate charges of impaired driving were fined $350 each and given full or partial three-month driving bans. They were Frank Couth Griffiths, 51, of 5324 Parker, stopped Sunday in Saanich; Robert Laird Doyle, 18, of 3987 Panther, checked Saturday in Saanich, and Mark Graham Newton, 18, of 591 Aurora, stopped Saturday in Victoria.

Foul Play Not Suspect In Floating-Body Case

Victoria police said late Monday foul play is not suspected in the death of a man whose body was found earlier in the day floating in the Inner Harbor.

The discovery was made off the foot of Wharf Street by an employee of the Seaspan International marine company.

Police said clothing still on the body contained a wallet which had in it identification of an Ontario man aged about 35. It was expected medical tests to confirm whether the identification was that of the dead man would take several days. The body had been in the water about six weeks.

Icy Roads No Threat

Dummy Causes Car Crash

Despite icy conditions on Greater Victoria roads during the weekend, the cause of most damaging accident was not the weather but a "body."

Victoria police said Sandra Rawnsley, 3255 Cook Street, was alone in her car and driving it on Cook near Vista Heights at about 11:30 p.m. Saturday when she saw what seemed to be a body on the street and swerved to avoid it, losing control.

The car climbed a grass embankment, flipped on its right side and slid 60 feet to the Vista Heights intersection.

The driver was treated for neck and back injuries and police found shirt, pants, rubber boots and assorted rags formed together like a body.

Officers said the source of the "body" was being investigated but no action would be taken against the driver.

Police forces from Sooke to Sidney reported several dozen traffic accidents on icy and slippery roads but said most were "fender benders" with minor injuries and damage.

One officer said police experience has been that motorists generally drive more carefully in dangerous weather periods than normally, adding: "It's practically the only time they obey all the laws."

Derailment Blocks Line

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The derailment of a coal train has blocked the Canadian Pacific Railway main line between Lytton and North Bend in the Fraser Canyon. The derailment occurred Sunday night with no injuries. The line was expected to be blocked for at least 24 hours.

Computers May Test Drivers

A four-man Victoria team has been awarded a $28,000 grant from B.C. Automobile Insurance Board to research conversion of a car into a simulator measuring drivers' reactions to emergency situations on film.

The grant for the pilot project, covering a six-month period, goes to psychiatrist Dr. Philip Ney, psychologist Paul Nelson, Robert Main, the film director, and design engineer Doug Alexander.

Nelson said Monday the simulator — if proved feasible — could help examiners decide on "borderline" cases. He said it was not just a case of weeding out bad drivers but also one of giving licences to those who could drive safely but who had been denied licences under the present test system.

Driver Bans Found Legal

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada Monday upheld the right of provinces to suspend driving privileges of mtoirists convicted of impaired driving.

The ban would apply for 24 hours a day during the suspension period despite a 1972 amendment to the Criminal Code permitting judges to order that convicted persons may drive during working hours.

In upholding the validity of both the Ontario Highway Act which calls for total suspension of driving by convicted motorists, and of the 1972 federal law allowing restricted driving, the court majority said:

"It is true that this means that as long as the provincial licence suspension is in effect, the person concerned gets no benefit from the indulgence granted under the federal legislation."

The court also said that provincial law calling for automatic suspension of driving privileges upon conviction of impaired driving shall apply even though the presiding judge makes no orders for suspension.

In a dissenting judgment, Mr. Justice Wilfred Judson said the two laws "are in direct conflict, and the federal legislation must prevail."

"The power of a province to impose an automatic suspension must give way to an order for punishment validly made under the Criminal Code and to that extent, the provincial suspension is inoperative," said Judson.

The issue came to the high court after Gordon Russell Ross of Windsor, Ont., was convicted of impaired driving and had his licence suspended for six months.

How to talk to your Imperial Life man about your life, your wife and your family.

Openly.

Because both of you have one thing in mind, to do what's best for you, your wife and your family.

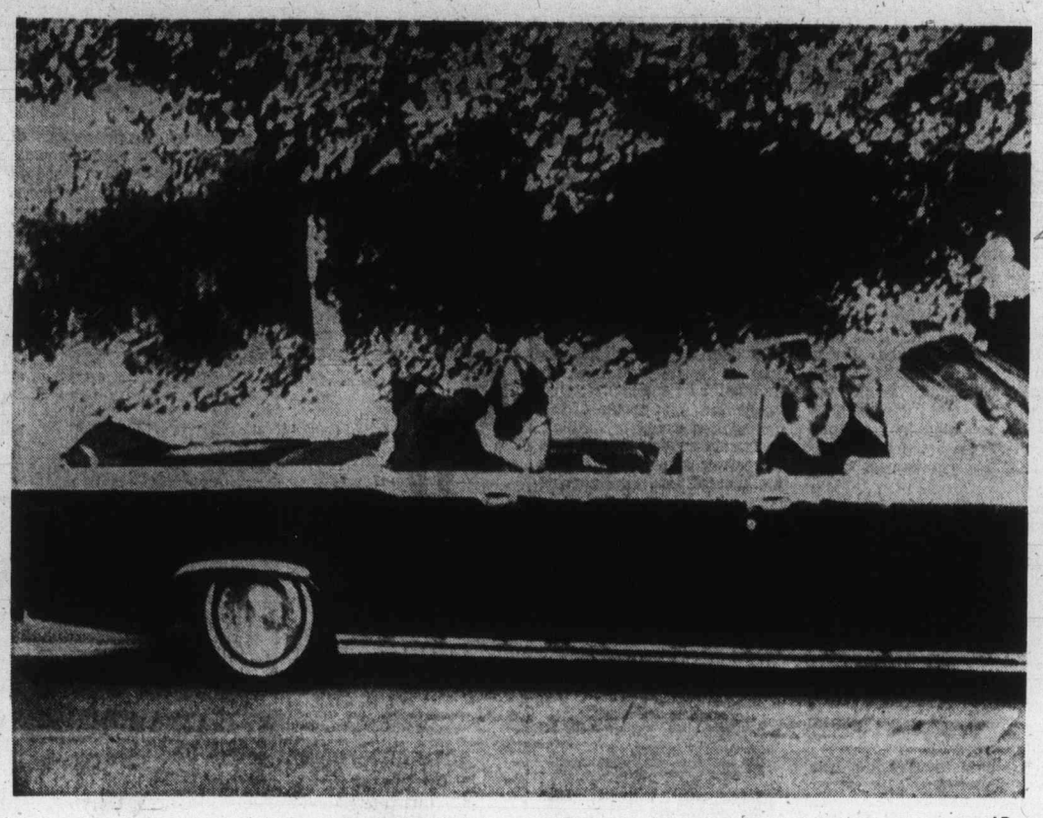

And you'll notice an Imperial Life agent isn't just an insurance salesman. We put him through an extensive training program. We teach him all he has to know about life insurance. And he has on call a team of specialists—lawyers, accountants, estate planning experts.

We continually keep him up-to-date on the latest and most important developments. Like, how to design an insurance program that takes into consideration Registered Savings Plans. Government pensions. Effective use of your company's group benefits. Tax laws. And when your insurance needs change, this training means our agent is ready to help you make the necessary changes in your program.

That's why it's important for you and your Imperial Life man to get to know each other well. And the more you know about Imperial Life, the more you'll want us to know about you.

Film Slant

This is how assassination of President Kennedy in Dallas, Tex. is recreated for movie Executive Action, which is being billed as "probably most controversial film of our time." Film's thesis is that Lee Harvey Oswald did not act alone in killing Kennedy, hence conspiracy was involved.

Stripping 'No Cinch'

TORONTO (CP) — Stripping isn't as easy as it looks, says Moma Lana, a 180-pound Toronto stripper. "Anyone can stand up on stage and take her clothes off. Striptease has to be more to really tease."

The 27-year-old stripper said in an interview there is a lack of competent exotic dancers with interesting routines. She said she watched other strippers for a year before she worked out her caveman act, one of the few comedy strip acts in Toronto.

"We just can't find enough trained girls who can dance and have a good stage presence," he said. "Good dancers aren't necessarily good strippers."

Starvin' Marvin's runs six two-hour shows daily, each with five dancers. Russell said he sponsors amateur nights in hope of turning up new talent.

"What's lacking is a good training ground but I don't know of any dancing schools that would take their training on," he said.

Lou Landers, proprietor of the Victory Burlesque said he sponsors four amateur weeks a year to recruit new talent. He feels the shortage is because there are too many strip theatres around in relation to the number of dancers.

"This problem will probably always be with us," he said.

Ralph Parcells, manager of Le Strip, disagrees, saying that the drought in exotic dancers won't last because "as long as women are exhibitionists there will be strippers."

MGM's Roar Receding?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Next year Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will mark its 50th anniversary, and the film crowd has been wondering if there will be a company left to celebrate it.

With the resignation last week of MGM president James Aubrey, fears for the survival of the venerable studio continued to grow. This despite the claim of Aubrey's successor, Frank Rosenfelt, that "the roar of Leo the Lion will not be reduced to a weak meow."

But observers found concern in the fact that Rosenfelt is a lawyer, and lawyers are well suited for presiding over the liquidation of companies.

A sentimental note was sounded by James Stewart, who began his film career at MGM in 1935 and has lately returned for a television series, Hawkins.

"Now that I see the place as it is and remember what it was when I first saw it as a contract player, the whole thing makes me sad. I'm very sorry," said Stewart, one of MGM's galaxy of stars when it was the most prosperous and prestigious company in Hollywood.

Aubrey's resignation was greeted with no regret by the many film makers who battled over Aubrey's post-production cutting of their work. Such directors as Blake Edwards, Ralph Nelson and Sam Peckinpah have blasted the MGM management for tampering with their films.

Although Aubrey was replaced as president by Rosenfelt, the post of chief executive officer has been assumed by Kirk 'Kerkorian, a Las Vegas, Nev., financier who owns 48 per cent of MGM.

Industry sources believed Kerkorian's main interest in MGM was as a base to build his $107 million Grand Hotel, scheduled to open in Las Vegas Dec. 5 and named for an Academy-Award-winning MGM film of 1932.

During Aubrey's $4,000-a-week service to MGM, he sold the studio's props, costumes and back lot; music publishing and record-making companies; foreign theatres and a studio in England.

Last month he announced that MGM was going out of the film distribution business after 49 years and the company made a deal with United Artists to release its past and future movies for the next 10 years.

The selloff of assets helped keep MGM in the profit column and reduced its debt, but Aubrey was unable to provide the company with money-making films.

Mason Lost Decision To Burr

HOLLYWOOD (Reuter) — Perry Mason, the invincible courtroom lawyer who has won every one of his cases in books and television, has finally lost — to himself.

CBS Television says it is dropping a new Perry Mason series starring Monte Markham because of low ratings in the viewer charts.

Producer Cornwell Jackson, explaining why the show closed after 14 weeks, said: "We had to work against the image of the old Perry Mason programs."

The old black and white programs, starring Raymond Burr as Perry Mason, are still showing in re-runs in the United States and round the world.

Bastion to Lido Singer's Trail

By ERITH SMITH
Colonist Reporter

When Ross Petty played the male lead in Bastion Theatre's Little Mary Sunshine — a sendup of the old romantic musicals — he hardly thought he'd wind up a few years later as principal singer at the Lido in Paris.

The contrast between the crinolined leading lady of Sunshine to the head-dressed bare Bluebell dancers of the Lido was sharp, but the experience was valuable.

Ross was back in Victoria "on a nostalgia trip" for the weekend, he said in an interview Monday.

Stage Training

"It was Peter Mannering and Bastion that gave me my first real stage training," he said, "and I'll be forever grateful."

Born in Winnipeg, Ross attended school there and graduated from University of Manitoba. His first taste of theatre came with Gilbert and Sullivan musicals — in that city, traditionally the field of high school and university players.

"When I was just 15," Ross went on, "I went down to the Rainbow Stage to audition for a part in Student Prince, which Peter Mannering was directing.

Forgot Lyrics

"With visions of the lead in mind, I sang the Drinking Song — and of course forgot the lyrics. But Peter was very kind, urged me to have another go at it, and finally accepted me for the chorus.

"That was what brought me to Victoria six years ago — to work again with Peter. And I was fortunate to get six good plays here with Bastion: Sunshine, Bells Are Ringing, Barefoot in the Park, Camelot, Taming of the Shrew and The Hostage."

From Victoria, Ross headed east to become one of the singers with Les Feux Follets, then beginning a tour of Europe in which he shared.

Busy Years

When the company returned to Canada, Ross stayed on in England to spend a busy couple of years there.

On stage he was in the West End musical Belle Star with Betty Grable and was featured singer in a nightclub tour that included Glasgow, Liverpool and Luton. On film, he was in The Private Lives of Sherlock Holmes and Maybe Tomorrow.

Back in Canada for a couple of years starting in 1970, Ross became a regular on the Tommy Hunter television show, besides guest appearances on Music Album and Elwood Glover's Luncheon Date, and in the 1970 Miss Canada and Miss Teen Canada shows.

Singer Sought

Ross went back to England on vacation in 1972 and dropped in on his London agent who told him the Lido in Paris was looking for a singer.

Ross flew over, introduced himself to the Lido producers.

"They wined me and dined me, took me to the show, auditioned me backstage and gave me a contract.

"It was quite an experience, singing with all those undressed girls dancing around me. They say that after a while you think of them as just like furniture — but it didn't happen to me.

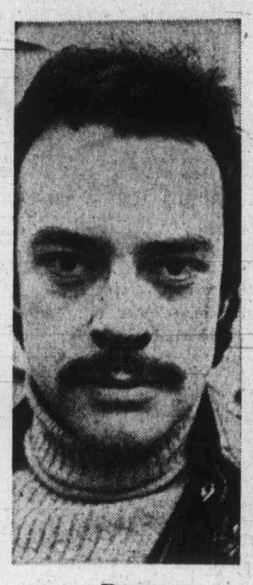

Famous People

"Probably my most exciting experience was opening night at the Lido. In the audience, sitting very close to the stage, were the late Duke of Windsor and his duchess, Brigitte Bardot, Jerry Lewis, Liza Minelli, Yul Brynner and other famous people. And there was I, singing for them!"

Next for Ross came an engagement at the Palm Beach Casino at Cannes on the French Riviera, fronting a revue of more "dancing ladies."

Then it was back to North America and musical comedy for Ross, and he was featured in the east in three shows: Finian's Rainbow, Promises Promises, and Applause.

Calgary was his next stop and there, just recently, he was pleased to have a turn at something "a little more solid" — the show Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris, performed at the Alberta Theatre Centre.

Teachers' Job Plea In Court Wednesday

An appeal by Greater Victoria school board against a board of reference decision reinstating two teachers who were fired last year will be heard in Victoria County Court Wednesday.

The teachers — Bona Macmurchie and Evelyn Ball — were dismissed by the school board on July 15, 1972, for "neglect of duty."

The two women, who live together, had been sent to Arizona in November, 1971, by their doctor to recover from influenza. They took the matter up with a provincial board of reference in August, 1972, when they returned to Victoria and the board ruled that they should be reinstated in their jobs.

The school board decided immediately to appeal and refused to hire them until the appeal is heard in county court.

Since then, the teachers and representatives of the board have appeared before the B.C. Court of Appeal where the board asked permission to introduce new evidence at the appeal hearing.

Servants' Merits To Score

By CLAUDE ADAMS
Colonist Legislature Staff

Applicants for civil service jobs would be judged on seniority and other points of merit, not only on the results of examinations, under legislation introduced Monday in the B.C. Legislature.

In what is seen as a major concession to the B.C. Government Employees Union, factors like seniority, skill, and education would be weighed, and any dispute would be settled by a committee with an equal number of union and government members.

The legislation is called the Public Service Act and it falls in line with measures still before the house to give 38,000 B.C. civil servants access to collective bargaining for the first time.

Another key aspect of the act is a proposed public service grievance board, consisting of three government-appointed members, one of them a union man.

It would "investigate, hear and determine" grievances submitted by employees, and its decisions would be final and binding on all parties.

At present complaints are heard by a board of reference and there is an avenue of appeal to the cabinet.

Other new points in the bill:

- Creation of a public service commission with five members (instead of three) who would hold office for a maximum of 10 years. This commission is the chief administrative body of the civil service.
- Restricting civil service jobs to Canadian citizens. If no qualified Canadian citizens apply for an opening, the commission would be entitled to appoint another person as a temporary apointment. Under the present law, civil service jobs are open to all British subjects.
- Two other reasons for suspension of a civil servant would be enshrined in law—incompetence, and laying of a criminal charge which would render that person "unsuitable to perform his duties."
- A new structure of remuneration for dependants of a civil servant who dies while in the public service, based on one month's salary for every year of his employment, up to the equivalent of six months' pay.

Under the present law, the maximum is three months pay.

Death Re-Visits Victoria Family

Death struck a Victoria family Monday for the second time in a week when a Calgary businessman died in his home of a heart attack a few hours after returning from a trip to Victoria to attend the funeral of a younger brother.

The story involved two former Victoria policemen — Hollie MacArthur, 47, of Calgary, who was with the police force from mid-1950 to early 1956, and Murray MacArthur, 43, of Victoria, a constable from 1954 until ill-health forced his departure from the force last June.

Murray died in hospital early Oct. 29 from an internal ailment and was buried Wednesday following funeral services at McCalls' chapel, Vancouver and Johnson.

Hollie, western Canada sales manager for a Montreal engineering firm, attended the funeral and flew home Sunday. Pain awakened him at about 2 a.m. Monday and he collapsed and died soon after.

A service for Hollie will be held Wednesday in Calgary and funeral rites will take place later in Victoria, also at McCalls, with burial at Royal Oak.

After leaving the Victoria force in 1956, Hollie went to Calgary to form a business with his oldest brother James. Hollie underwent an open-heart operation several years ago.

Drugs Case Drags

The case of 14 persons charged in connection with a $1 million marijuana seizure in Quatsino Sound last summer bogged down in legal arguments Monday when the hearing opened in North Vancouver Provincial Court before Judge J. N. Bartman.

The hearing was adjourned until today for defence arguments that proceedings against American citizens among the accused cannot be taken without permission of the solicitor-general of Canada.

Lawyer Sidney Simons referred to a section of the criminal code stating that such permission is required in cases alleged to have taken place within Canada's inland waters or territorial seas.

Earlier, defence lawyers lost a motion that all charges be declared void for not specifying which drugs were allegedly involved.

The charges allege that 10 of the accused conspired at Quatsino Sound and elsewhere in British Columbia between Sept. 30, 1972 and July 1, 1973 to import cannabis resin into Canada and that they allegedly conspired to possess the drug for the purpose of trafficking.

Charged with the second count of conspiracy to possess cannabis resin for the purpose of trafficking are American citizens George Steven McDonald, Glen Elton Davis, Frank Comarmy and Richard William Burgess.

Many of the accused were arrested aboard the converted minesweeper Marysville, seized by RCMP in Quatsino Sound several days before a drug cache was found on the shores of the sound.

Leisure System Recommended As Region Unit

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

Greater Victoria's fragmented recreational facilities, amalgamated into one intermunicipal leisure system, according to a recreation study to be released today.

This regional approach to recreation, the study says, would improve Greater Victoria's recreation system, prevent the overlapping of programs, eliminate conflicts between municipalities, and allow much better planning of future needs in the field of recreation and leisure.

The report was prepared by Colin Campbell of University of Victoria's geography department. It was co-ordinated by the provincial government's community recreation branch and received a $17,000 grant from the federal health and welfare department.

The study urges the four major municipalities—Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt—to immediately begin discussions aimed at amalgamating their recreation facilities, programs and plans.

Other recommendations are:

- Establishment of an information centre where people can find out what recreation facilities are available throughout Greater Victoria.
- Co-ordination of filling vacancies on sports teams.
- Expansion of the concept of leisure activities by developing activity halls for hiking, jogging or bicycling, and by building more imaginative playgrounds, similar to the European adventure playgrounds.
- More attention to the creation of indoor facilities, like tennis courts and squash courts, often regarded by municipal councils as "white elephants."
- Improvement of signs directing people to recreation facilities available in Greater Victoria.

The report says the time has come for "complete reappraisal" of the area's leisure system.

"Leisure planning is more than just a competition to build more facilities from brick and mortar. It is appropriate to question whether we should spend money on 'leisure hardware' such as swimming pools, when a large proportion of the population remains unaware of existing opportunities and is repelled by the austerity of existing structures," the study says.

About one-third of the residents of the four central municipalities, the report goes on, "have no idea where major recreation facilities are even located."

Low-income groups and older people, it says, are particularly unaware of existing facilities.

Regarding use of those facilities, the report says: "Oak Bay residents seem to have a voracious appetite for recreation and are over-represented in the markets of almost half the facilities and areas investigated."

The study backs up its recommendation for amalgamating the area's recreation system this way:

"There is no doubt that people regard the Greater Victoria region as a single leisure system and for the most part they are not confined by municipal boundaries in their use of facilities."

The report will be presented to a meeting today of the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee.

Two Escape Injury In Apartment Fire

Two men escaped injury early Sunday, and damage was estimated at close to $20,000 when a fire of unknown origin damaged an apartment in a building at 841 Esquimalt.

Esquimalt firemen said the blaze began in the living room of John Picken, 29, and Robert Cockerton, 25. Damage was confined to the one suite in the building.

All-Candidates Meeting Erupts

Evening for Angry Words

An all-candidates meeting in Newcombe Auditorium, Provincial Museum, ended in a flurry of angry words Monday night when a Victoria alderman in the audience objected to the way one candidate cross-questioned a city alderman on stage.

"It's a damned disgrace to ask questions like that," thundered Ald. Alf Hood, who is not in this year's aldermanic race, from the audience.

The question was posed by candidate Henry Bitterman to incumbent Ald. Mike Young. Bitterman asked Young if he was working for a group interested in purchasing tracts of land to be used for parking areas in the city.

Young replied that, if he was referring to city council, the answer would have to be yes. But, if he was referring to any other group, the answer was no.

In Negative

It was then that Hood jumped up with his angry remarks.

"The candidate should get better information before he asks questions like this at such a time," he said. "When we find this type of personal attack taking place, it comes to a very sad state of affairs."

"Oh, sit down," a man sitting in the audience called out. "What are you doing now?"

The meeting, up to this point quite orderly, even jovial at times, was brought to a close by the moderator, radioman John Mackin.

All candidates for city council, with the exception of Mayor Peter Pollen, attended the meeting, sponsored by James Bay Community Association.

Only about 40 persons attended, including candidates, press and radio. It was explained that the congregation of James Bay United Church, many also members of the association, was having a concert celebrating the anniversary of the church.

Some Points

William Hollick, opposing Pollen for the mayor's office, told the meeting he wanted more efficient operation of city services, an increase in business activity and revenues and a convention centre which would create its own work force and increase business.

Young said he would like to see a continuation of the development of a downtown policy, a continued study of how highrises, garden apartments and other types of housing can be interspersed in the community, and a satisfactory plan for waterfront development.

Margaret Richards said the city needed a more efficient sewer system, better conditions for senior citizens, more housing for young families and senior citizens, preferably downtown.

Kay Lines said there should be "another kind of voice at city hall" with new alderman and a "change of pace." She said she believes in equal pay for equal work at city hall.

300 a Year

Garth Mayhew said building of apartment units should be limited to 300 a year. Applications for buildings should be screened and only the "most esthetic" plans allowed to proceed.

Ronald Spence said he would resign his job as a teacher if elected to give full time to being an alderman. He believed aldermen should each be made responsible for the problems of a certain community and he would go out and talk to the people face-to-face.

Ed Kop said that, in all the talk about highrises and zoning, "we forgot the people." He would seek more stress on recreation because the population growth has outstripped recreation facilities.

Incumbent Ald. William Tindall said he would like to see the work continued that council now is engaged in. He told Spence that an alderman's stipend is not sufficient for him to devote all his time to the job.

Ward System

Incumbent Ald. Malcolm Anderson said he agreed with the idea of a ward system, even though it had been turned down in Vancouver and probably would be here if it came up. "But I think it has a good case," he said, "in the discovering of problems in each area of the city."

Bitterman said he advocated "throwing out" any cultural facility sponsored by the city, such as the McPherson Playhouse, if it loses money. "Let those who like symphony music pay for it," he said, "and not expect the millworkers and the garbage men to do it."

Robert Ellis said the key issue is a desperate need for housing. "And we need a healthy downtown core," he said, adding that 63 per cent of property taxes are paid by downtown businesses. He would also like to see an improved transit system.

Greenhouses

Bill Scott said he would like to see complexes built containing schools, offices, shopping centres and apartments with greenhouses on the roof.

They would be owned by the public and erected in "settled parts" of the city. He would like to see the recruitment of young people into Maple Leaf Guards, similar to the Chinese young people's groups, to protect them from "the impending disaster of drugs."

Road Closed

Tyee Road between Bay and Wilson Victoria West, has been closed for sewer construction work. Victoria's traffic engineering department says the street will be reopened Monday.

Riding Academy Issue Trots Up Blind Alley

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

If the Victoria Riding Academy is allowed to continue in operation for 10 years, the horses will produce a pile of horse manure equivalent in size to an 18-storey high-rise, along with enough "liquid assets" to fill 81 average size swimming pools, Oak Bay council was told Monday night.

But if it goes out of operation, aldermen were also told, then many youngsters are likely to be out on the streets drinking and generally getting into trouble instead of peacefully riding their horses.

Riding Use

Aldermen considered the two opinions, after a 75-minute public hearing to rezone the property from highrise to riding academy use, and failed to reach a conclusion.

The matter was referred back to committee for further consideration.

About 50 people—half of them youngsters who patronize the academy—attended the meeting.

They described the nine-acre property variously as a "jewel," a great place for kids, and a rat-infested, fly-breeding, cholera-spreading barnyard.

Several neighbors complained about sanitary conditions at the academy and of rats and flies which they said came from the premises. Other nearby residents said there were no disagreeable effects from the academy.

Floyd Fairclough, 3648 Crestview, launched the longest and most comprehensive attack on the continuation of the "barn use" as he dubbed the rezoning.

Quoting from a study of animal management, he said one horse produces two cubic feet of manure daily, taking into consideration the sawdust or other bedding used.

Manure Pile

There are 75 horses at the academy and there has been a suggestion that the proprietors should get a 10-year lease which would lead to 540,000 cubic feet of manure or a pile of manure 100 feet square and 162 feet high.

It could form a tourist attraction to rival the pyramids of Egypt, and people could watch in amazement, said Fairclough, as the rats slide down the pile.

In addition, he said, 75 horses would produce 1,620,000 gallons of "liquid assets" in 10 years or enough urine to fill 81 pools.

Fairclough also accused council of using the publicly-owned property to subsidize private industry, in renting the property for $200 monthly, and not asking for property taxes.

If council went ahead with the bylaw, said Fairclough, the academy would be "perhaps the only place in North America where horses would have a million-dollar park."

And he asked: "Is the danger of disease with the assistance of rats and flies to spread it worth the risk? Do you wish to complete with Rome and Naples for cholera?"

Too Hot

Heather Richards, 1701 Halroyd, who has been connected with the academy for some years said the fly problem has been rectified, and in any cases flies do not breed in manure piles—it's too hot there for them.

The manure itself was not a problem, she said—gardeners are thankful to get it.

Some speakers suggested that, while they opposed the present apartment zoning they would be happy to see town houses or single family residences built on the property.

Recreation

There were other suggestions that the land should be zoned for general recreation rather than for the use of one particular group.

Concern was expressed about the ability of present proprietors to pay full taxes on the property if it is rezoned and they have a long-term lease.

Gary Bentham, 1404 Harrison, an architectural design consultant, said he had spoken to the proprietors and needed improvements would cost well over $50,000. He said an approach had been planned to the provincial government to see if subsidies would be available.

Young Backers

One said that, although she helped clean the stables, she had never seen a rat but she "had heard that there are rats at the Empress Hotel."

Another said that if she hadn't been able to go riding she would probably have spent her spare time drinking.

It was decided, with Ald. Brian Smith opposing, not to proceed with the bylaw but to refer it back to the zoning committee.

Pool Backers Told To Be 'Patriotic'

Strawberry Vale residents pressing for a swimming pool and other "improvements" in their area were faced with a plea for greater municipal community spirit by Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis at Monday's council meeting.

The residents, members of Strawberry Vale school auxiliary, had written council they were "very unhappy" that a swimming pool adjacent to the proposed Saanich community school had been left off the upcoming municipal referendum.

(The referendum, which goes before the taxpayers Nov. 17, will call for expenditure of $4,365,000 on capital projects, mainly roads and drainage work.)

The residents claimed that their area "has had few improvements over the last three or four years without a great deal of public outcry."

However council, which voted unanimously to "receive and file" the residents' correspondence, defended its record of achievement in the area.

Curtis went one step further and urged the various Saanich neighborhoods to stop thinking of themselves in "compartmentalized" isolation, but, instead, as members of the municipality at large.

He urged a Saanich patriotism: "No council can do everything for every area and the challenge for this community is to realize that it is a collection of areas."

Both Curtis and other council members pointed out that figures for ice time in Greater Victoria showed the need for another ice arena in Saanich to be included in the referendum.

The need for an additional swimming pool was not felt to be so great, though council left the door open for a swimming pool adjacent to the community school at Burnside and Acorn saying that it could be added later.

The residents' letter, however, pointed out that a 1972 survey had shown a swimming pool to be the most-needed area facility and one wanted more than the $250,000 auditorium adjoining the school which is included in a separate ballot on the referendum.

The letter also spoke of the problem of juvenile delinquency in the area which the residents feel could be solved if there were more recreational facilities.

Islanders Face More Snow, Icy Roads

More snow, continued low temperatures, icy roads — that's the weather outlook until at least Saturday for Vancouver Island, including the Victoria area which was recovering Monday from its earliest-ever snowfall.

In the Victoria area, a total of 3½ inches of snow fell between late Saturday night and Monday morning.

Earliest recorded snowfall in the Capital Region had been Nov. 6 in 1902 when three-tenths of an inch fell, according to the weather office at Pat Bay airport.

The weather forecast is for temperatures five to 10 degrees below the normal for this time of year and continued snow showers throughout the Island.

Responsible is a mass of cold air from the Gulf of Alaska. Weather officials say the low pressure area is hanging 150 miles off the northern end of Vancouver Island and doesn't seem to be moving.

Wednesday's outlook in the Victoria area is for clouds, with some sunny periods. The situation remains the same for the west and east coast areas of Vancouver Island.

The Malahat is also closed to vehicles without snow tires or chains.

Erma Bombeck

I didn't decide to become a "woman of mystery" until the class prophecy in my high school yearbook left a blank space behind my name. It seemed as good a time as any.

When I began the column I was careful to reveal only what I wanted people to know. For instance, only a few close friends realize I use waxed dental floss . . . how I used to nip at the vanilla when the children were teething. Privacy is important to me.

Since I started to lecture all that has changed. It's like facing the police in your underwear.

After one lecture, a woman raised her hand and asked, "What zodiac sign were you born under?" When I told her she smiled a little crooked smile (maybe it was gas) and said, "I knew it," and sat down. Then she nudged her companion in the ribs and said, "Didn't I tell you, Pauline?"

I couldn't stand it. "What do you mean by a crack like that?" I pursued.

She arose again and announced, "I knew you were oversexed and your feet hurt and your sign just proved it."

In spite of the fact that the two traits didn't even go together the audience began to laugh, the waitresses fell apart, and my husband . . . that fool laughed until he got sick.

After that I felt my whole personality was being undressed. Perfect strangers would inform me, "You hate New Year's Eve, don't you, because your sign can't stand noise," or "Watch your pocketbook between the 10th and 19th. You can't help yourself. Oh, and lay off the cucumbers until you're on the cusp."

I couldn't fight them. When I signed a book at a lecture, a woman examined my handwriting and said, "You love animals and parades but somewhere in your bureau drawers are quilts, needlepoints, sweaters and mending that have been there for 10 years. Luvie, you never finish anything."

I wanted to finish her, but another lady came up and said, "Watch it, honey, you're doing it again."

"Doing what?" I asked nervously.

"Crossing your legs. In body English that's very revealing. How long have you been married?"

I bit my lip and began to fiddle with my hair.

She nudged her friend, "See that, Grace, didn't I tell you?"

My mystique was dying before my eyes. It was only a matter of time before she would discover that my feet were killing me.

Government Reacts With Price Controls

PARIS (Reuter) — Price controls on some of the main items in French shopping baskets went into effect Saturday.

The government acted after the cost of living rose by 0.9 per cent in September-roughly equivalent to 10 per cent annually. Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing said the controls—on such staples as beef, vegetables, fruit, bread, cheese as well as shoes and other goods—will be applied vigorously.

Doctor Warns:

Obesity the Price Of Bottle-Feeding

LONDON (Reuter) — Women who choose not to breast feed their children for fear of losing their figure run the risk of getting fat, a British doctor warned Monday.

"For the mother who intends to bottle-feed, the accumulation of fat is an embarrassment and the resulting obesity is the price she has to pay for abandoning her reproductive cycle at the half-way stage," he said.

Dr. Donald Naismith, senior lecturer in the department of nutrition at Queen Elizabeth College, London University, said women should be encouraged to return to the practice of suckling their young. He was delivering an award-winning paper at a meeting of the royal Society.

$1 Million Tax Free

MONTREAL (UPI) — A lottery to raise money for the '76 Summer Olympics with a top prize of $1 million tax free at each of six drawings was announced Monday by lottery general manager Julien Cote. Second and third prizes will be $500,000 and $250,000 respectively and officials estimated that one out of every 100 ticket holders would win at least $100. Tickets, which cost $10 apiece, will go on sale Dec. 5.

Actress Sue Lyon escorted by family friends

Bride and Groom Go Separate Ways

CANON CITY, Colo. (UPI) — Actress Sue Lyon married convicted murderer Gary (Cotton) Adamson in a 15-minute wedding Sunday night. The bride spent her wedding night in a motel room. The bridegroom slept is his jail cell.

The double-ring ceremony was performed in a gold-carpeted conference room at the Colorado state penitentiary in the presence of nine other inmates, Adamson's mother and five sisters, and penitentiary officials.

Reporters and photographers agreed to stay out of the room after warden Gordon Heggie told them Adamson, serving a 20-to-40-year term for second-degree murder and aggravated robbery, made a "serious threat to react" if newsmen were present.

The bride, wearing a full-length dress of beige Belgian lace and a white veil, and the bridegroom, dressed in dark blue suit, fed each other pieces of a four-tier wedding cake at a 45-minute reception. Guests were served soda pop.

A minor flareup occurred when UPI photographer Joe Marquette asked persons accompanying Miss Lyon to move away so he could take pictures.

Warden Heggie said Colorado law made no provision for conjugal visits and that no exceptions would be made for Miss Lyon because of her star status.

The actress, who soared to fame at the age of 14 with her protrayal of the nymphet in Lolita, said she and Adamson will work for conjugal visits in the state.

Finnish convertible chair-bed by Fanti shows predisposition to stripes

Maybe Success Has Spoiled Danish Design

By JAKE NICHOLSON
Christian Science Monitor

COPENHAGEN, Denmark — Is commercial success fatal to imaginative design?

This question comes to mind when one looks at the tastefully laid out Scandinavian furniture from Denmark, Sweden, and Finland assembled here in Copenhagen. It's an impressive exhibition of well-made furniture and fabrics and is a continuing sales success story.

"The total Scandinavian furniture export increased by 26 per cent last year," says P. Jeppesen, president of the Danish Furniture Manufacturers Association. But he also had to admit that during recent years centres have arisen for far more modern furniture than the Scandinavian.

When one thinks of modern Scandinavian furniture, one thinks of a comfortable. well-made, clean-looking, wooden chair that was developed in the 1950s. And this is what it looks like today. Only the wood has changed, there's rosewood and teak being used and more light oak and ash, as well as white pine. There are other pieces in steel, aluminum, or fibreglass.

For exhibition purposes only, one manufacturer, Fritz Hansen Eft, instead of showing chairs on its stand, created a darkened room with mirrors on all surfaces. One enters with a torch (flashlight) into an arena of sensory impressions, with almost an infinity of perspectives. But the chairs in the showroom outside Copenhagen are not new. They are the laminated wood and steel seats which have become famous all over the world. This year. however, they are available in a new range of 11 glowing colors.

Another manufacturer, Cado, in its spacious old barn set in translucent beechwood outside Copenhagen, does have something new. It's an injection molded frame chair designed by Kay Korbing to meet the new fire regulations for safety at sea.

The chairs are being used on the new Sagafjord liner under construction in Newcastle, England, for the Norwegian American line. Cado also shows new brown and beige colors in its all-fibreglass 290 chair. In its red, white, and blue versions, the 290 chair has been used in the Union Jack lounge of P and O's Spirit of London liner now cruising from California.

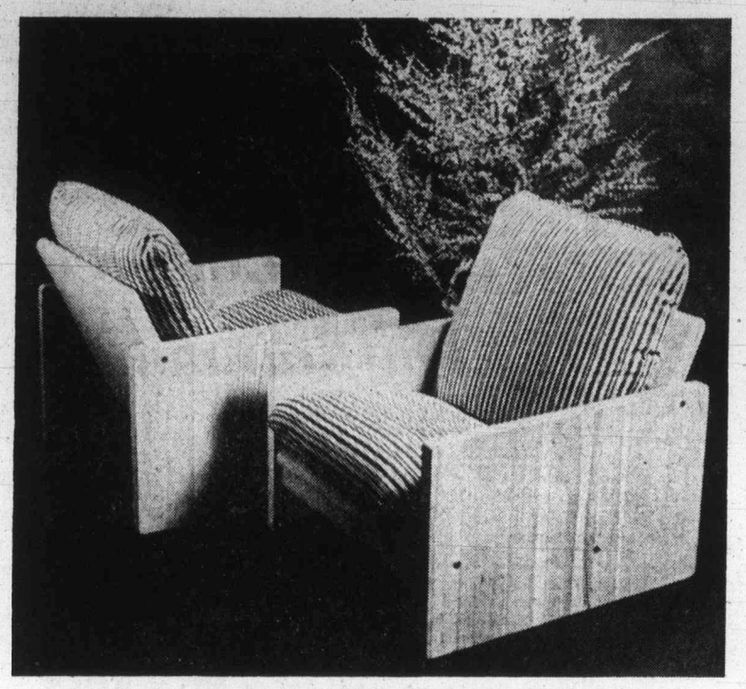

But these advanced chairs are intended more for use in public areas than in the home. For home use settees and chairs have become less hefty with more use of loose cushions, in keeping with today's informal living. Colors are soft and dusky. Donkey brown, together with chocolate and white. is a favorite combination for upholstery and carpets. The dusky colors provide a good background and leave you free to add whatever accent you wish with bright or soft colors in curtains or cushions.

One sees more delicate fresh greens and yellows, often with a floral motif. But Scandinavians cannot get far away from definite patterns like stripes. Kinnasand of Sweden is presenting its Cotton Blues range. It is designed to express in textiles the feeling of blues music that is sometimes simple and sometimes swirls out in a cascade of color to unite in the most beautiful harmonies.

Scandinavian light fittings reflect the beam of new forms and finishes from Italy. Those manufactured at home look bulbous in their shiny reds, oranges, and yellows. The white pleated paper shades are still there, but where has all the copper gone? Has it been lost in Ian Smith's Rhodesia with the sanctions? Somehow no new material has been found to replace its freedom of design and luminosity.

Finnish furniture always includes some heavy wooden pieces, along with some of the ultramodern designs for which the Finns have been famous for some time. One wonders how the Russians get on with it, as the bulk of Finnish exports go to the Soviet Union.

Scandinavian is always stimulating visually. The Danes have a feeling for placing their single-storey white farms in just the right place in the emerald fields, just as they have for displaying goods in their shop windows—sparse, attractive, and with a sense of fun. They make you feel that you must buy. If prosperity has made people cautious and conservative, perhaps being part of a wider common market will bring competition with new ideas from the south and west, and give the spur to design initiative without losing the high standard of quality.

Insist on Job Rights Business Women Told

The future of Canada lies in the way young women cope with their jobs and positions, Sylva Gelber, director of the women's bureau, federal department of labor, said in Victoria over the weekend.

Ms. Gelber spoke at a breakfast meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club starting activities of Business Women's Week, observed across Canada.

Young women today must accept the challenge and insist on the right to employment and advancement on the basis of ability and performance and not sex preference, she told her audience of 70 at the Empress Hotel.

She said that only four per cent of all employed women are in senior administrative and policy-making positions, yet women make up more than one third of the labor force.

Referring to "sex ghettos" in health and related professions, Ms. Gelber said not more than 10 per cent of doctors are women, yet nearly 100 per cent of nurses are women.

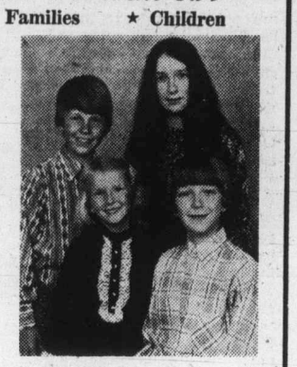

Teaching used to be a woman's profession at all levels, but the pattern in recent years, following an influx of men, was for women to hold only minor jobs.

Candidates of the club-sponsored Young Career Women contest were introduced. The winner will be announced at a public meeting Thursday in Newcombe auditorium, provincial museum.

'Hairloom' Uncovered

DORCHESTER, England (CP) — A fourth-century hairstyle, as worn by a woman living in Roman Britain 1,600 years ago, has been recovered intact by archeologists in Dorset. The woman, in her early 40s, wore her chestnut hair in three plaits, each between seven and eight inches long and piled on the crown of her head.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I have never seen this problem in your column. Maybe no one else had ever had it. It is quite unusual.

We lost Dad when I was 15. I am 20 now. When Dad died, one of my men teachers became like a father to me. I went to him with my problems and he was just wonderful.

My boyfriend and I plan to marry next year. I want this teacher to give me in marriage, but I'm afraid it might create hard feelings in the family. I have an uncle who might feel put out. But I do want to give this teacher the honor — and let him know what he has meant to me. What do you say? — Hoping.

Dear Hope: Your mother should be consulted. Her feelings are important. I suspect she'd prefer that your uncle give you in marriage, particularly if he is your dad's brother.

The teacher could be invited to sit with the family and be included in the pre-nuptial affairs, as if he were an uncle. (If he is married, his wife must, of course, be included.)

Dear Ann Landers: How old does a man have to be before he gets some brains? I was happily married for 38 years. We always worked on the farm together. The thought never crossed my mind that my husband would cheat on me. Then some nice neighborly people bought the place next to ours and the next thing I knew my husband had quite an affair going with their 30-year-old, unmarried daughter. It went on for two years (me dumb as a doorpost until I caught them in the hayloft). The following week my husband had a heart attack that kept him in bed for eight months, plus another year to recuperate.

He promised the Lord if he ever got well he'd lead a Christian life. Well, Ann, he behaved for the next few years, and then another couple moved into the vicinity. We met them at church. The woman is in her mid-50s and plays the piano rather well so we invited them over for a musical evening. (My husband is good on the guitar and I play the zither.)

I walked out of the room for a minute and when I returned I saw my husband give her a love-pat on the rear. Ann, it can't be sex in any other way but in his head, but it shocked me that he would act up again — if he could.

Please tell me how to think about this. — Farmer's Wife.

Dear F.W.: Just tell him to keep his hands to himself because that woman's husband isn't blind and he might not take kindly to such gestures, in addition to which it's an insult to you.

Teacher Option Urged

Harvey Schroeder (SC — Chilliwack) said Monday teachers should be allowed to opt out of the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

He said there may be some teachers whose consciences might be offended by membership in the federation and they should be allowed exemption as is provided for trade union membership under the Labor Code of British Columbia Act now awaiting third and final reading at the session.

Schools Act

The Social Credit MLA was speaking during second reading debate of amendments to the Public Schools Act, one of which would restore compulsory membership in the federation for all B.C. teachers. The previous government had made membership voluntary in 1971.

Schroeder said there were probably very few teachers who would opt out but the rights of minorities should be protected.

In opening the debate, Education Minister Eileen Dailly said restoration of compulsory membership will, in the long run, be of benefit to the children because it will allow the teachers to police their own ranks.

Job Easier

Mrs. Dailly said the teachers have watched over their own while membership was not compulsory but having all teachers belong to the federation and subject to the group's professional code of ethics will make the teachers' job that much easier.

The minister also mentioned another section of the legislation which provides that certain school districts, paying a low school tax now, will be asked to levy a basic mill rate which now stands at 24.7 mills.

Five Districts

This applies particularly to five school districts — Gulf Islands, Kitimat, Fort George, Lillooet and Vancouver Island West — which have been leving a tax for school operating costs considerably below the basic rate.

Mrs. Dailly said the extra revenue collected from the increased levies will be put into consolidated revenue and distributed among all the districts.

Schroeder and Pat McGeer (L—Vancouver — Point Grey) suggested the extra money raised could be given to the independent schools, which recive no financial support from the government.

Victoria Beauty Third in Canada

Additional honors came to Victoria Monday night from Toronto where Alison Pennie, 19, was chosen third runnerup out of 28 girls for the title, Miss Canada.

Winner, and Miss Canada 1974, was Blair Lancaster, also 19, a hazel-eyed brunette from Burlington, Ont. She was crowned by Miss Canada 1973, Victoria's Gilllian Regehr.

Miss Regehr, incidentally, almost choked up during her farewell words to the audience, as she thanked her family and friends in Victoria and the "second family" with whom she stayed in Toronto during her reign, for their support in the past "wonderful year."

"It's been a time of growth," she said, "both for the mind and the soul."

Alison sang, as her share of the talent division of the contest, her own medley of "happiness" songs. A graduate of Claremont senior high school, she was born and raised in Dartmouth, N.S., is training as a teacher at University of Victoria. She counts sports and singing as her hobbies.

Pageant host Jim Perry, announcing the decision of the five judges, named Lyne Renaud, 18, of Hull, Que., as first runer-up. If for any reason Blair Lancaster cannot carry on, Lyne will succeed to the Miss Canada title.

Barbara Borycki, 18, of Saskatoon, who demonstrated

Miss Victoria
. . . third runnerup

Monday a great potential as an actress in her talent offering, was chosen second runer-up.

Midway through the television showing, a women's liberationist ran towards the stage and hurled little bags of flour, some landing on the stage and others landing among photographers nearby.

Human Rights Act 'Thin Soup'

In the Legislature

New human rights legislation was given second reading Monday in the B.C. Legislature but opposition MLAs charged the bill didn't go far enough in guaranteeing protection against discrimination.

The Human Rights Code of B.C. Act replaces the old Human Rights Act. New features include stiff fines and a ban on discrimination in employment because of political belief or criminal record.

"It's an improvement over the old legislation but in itself it's pretty thin soup," said Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver-Point Grey).

The bill is silent on three significant areas where action is needed soon, he said.

There is no provision for a citizen to sue the crown, no establishment of legal aid for the needy and no ombudsman, though the public is demanding these, said Gardom.

Rosemary Brown (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) praised the legislation. She expected "all kinds of exciting and revolutionary changes within the civil service" as a result of the code's requirement of equal pay for equal work by women.

Saying she is glad the new law will apply to government-funded agencies such as universities, Ms. Brown felt that Simon Fraser University, Burnaby, where she worked for a time, "represents the kind of male chauvinist stronghold that we simply have to get at through this act."

She said that at Simon Fraser, not one woman is a full professor or department head.

Liberal leader David Anderson saw a conflict between the code and the Public Service Act which Provincial Secretary Ernest Hall introduced Monday. The act says only Canadian citizens shall be given permanent civil service jobs.

The code bans discrimination in employment on the basis of place of origin. Anderson also said the government is going to have to "depart pretty rapidly" from deals with unions that gave women less pay than men for the same jobs.

He referred to the Queen's Printer, where apprentice women bookbinders got 85 cents less an hour than men and $2.14 an hour less when fully trained — a case first raised in the house last week by Ms. Brown.

Premier Barrett said that if the code had been law 13 years ago, when he was a social worker at Oakalla jail, Burnaby, working for the provincial government, he wouldn't be in the Legislature today.

He claimed he was fired from his job for his political beliefs and speaking out for changes. "Being a socialist in B.C. was worse than being black," said Barrett.

It was a far more subtle form of discrimination than a color bar, the premier said.

"I was fired for my politics by the previous administration — I was denied the right to speak out."

He said there is still a great deal of discrimination against socialists in the province but cited no examples. The previous administration had no scruples about hiring "all kinds of people" with ties to Social Credit, he added.

Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said to wipe out discrimination is "a monstrous job, for which this act is scarcely adequate."

He criticized the act for including the words "reasonable cause" in sections governing hiring and renting, "words that lawyers love and have always been the escape hatch for people who want to avoid the force of law."

The section on rentals "starts out with brave words," said Williams but then adds a list of grounds on which discrimination isn't allowed — race, religion, color, ancestry or place of origin.

He asked why attach a list at all — "just say there shall be no discrimination. Period."

Williams suggested that with the list of grounds attached, a prejudiced landlord could get around it by denying tenancy because the person who wished to rent had a beard.

Boom Lowered On Rainmakers

The B.C. government moved Monday to extend its sovereignty up to the clouds.

Worried about American talk of seeding clouds over the Skagit Valley and the Columbia River basin, Resources Minister Robert Williams introduced a bill that amounts to a "hands off" order to foreign rainmakers. Referring to cloud seeding, the bill says that anyone planning to carry out "weather modifcation" must first get approval from the minister.

The minister would have three options: refuse to grant a permit, grant the permit in whole or in part, the require the applicant to put up financial security in an amount set by the minister.

"We don't want non-nationals determining our weather patterns, or how they are used," Williams said in an interview.

He noted that a public hearing in Washington state at the weekend had included discussion of the feasibility of cloud seeding to increase rainfall. B.C. was just protecting itself against any eventuality, added Williams.

Theft Case On Remand

A 25-year-old Cowichan Bay man was remanded without plea to Thursday when he appeared in Sidney Provincial Court Monday charged with the theft of more than $11,000 from K and R Food Store, Ganges.

Sidney RCMP said Leslie Kjosness was arrested Saturday night at Swartz Bay ferry terminal within one hour of discovery of the theft. All the money was recovered.

M.V. Chesnut's Garden Notes

In speaking of the application of fertilizers, lime, insecticides and other garden chemicals, the government bulletins and technical journals will almost always recommend the proper dosage in terms of pounds per acre, which is, of course, absolutely meaningless to the backyard gardener.

In this column, I always make a point of breaking down the dosages to ounces per square yard, and then, because the average home gardener has no convenient mans of weighing his chemicals and fertilizers, I convert the ounces to cupfuls or tablespoonfuls per square yard.

This business of the square yard needs a bit of thinking about, though, for time and time again I have been horrified by some novice's interpretation of this seemingly precise specification.

A square yard is a square three feet by three feet — nine square feet — an area which most home gardeners judge at a glance and sadly under-estimate, resulting in a serious overdose of fertilizer or lime.

On top of this, the novice gardener seems to be animated by the surprisingly deep-rooted conviction that if a little fertilizer or insecticide is a good thing, a lot is better, so he scatters the stuff with a heavy hand. The results are burnt lawns, unthrifty plants and sick soils.

An overdose of garden chemicals may have an immediate and disastrous effect, or it may be slow, long-lasting and cumulative.

Ammonium sulphate fertilizer, for instance, is very strong and highly concentrated, with two tablespoonfuls supplying about as much nitrogen as a bucketful of old, rotted farmyard manure, and in a much more readily available form.

The result of an overdose of this fertilizer — or any highly soluble chemical — ti to make the soil mosture thicker and richer than the sap in the plant roots.

Now, it is a law in physics that a rich solution will pull moisture out of a thin solution in an attempt to equalize the density, so instead of the roots taking IN moisture for the plants, the denser soil solution will actually pull moisture OUT of the roots, whereupon the plant dies.

This is why lawns are so often "burnt" following an overdose of ammonium sulphate or any other highly soluble chemical.

Repeated overdoses of hydrated lime may not show immediate symptoms but its effect is cumulative, and even the lime-loving plants may develop chlorosis — pale, anemic foilage due to a lack of iron, which has been rendered insoluble and unavailable to the plants by the action of the lime.

Overdoses of soil insecticides and fungicides are sometimes especially long-lasting and may affect the health of the soil for as long as five years.

One trouble, though, is that we so seldom garden by the square yard; in the vegetable plot, for instance, we are more often confronted with strips of soil nine inches wide in which the rows of plants are growing.

A recommended dosage in terms of "per square yard" should be converted, in this case, to "per four linear yards" or "per four yards run," with half the dosage applied to each side of the row.

Small dosages should be bulked out with sand or dissolved in water for more accurate application.

Jack Smith

Now and then someone writes to reproach me for some amiable reference to beer or wine, or even spirits. It is their contention that these words are likely to reach the eyes of children, and ruin their lives.

As if that wasn't enough to worry me, a man named Harry Partridge recently tried to prove to me that drink ruined the late Ernest Hemingway.

"I challenge you," he wrote, "to open any book by Hemingway and read more than five pages at random without running into . . . wines, liquors, brandies, whiskies, beers and sundry other gargles . . . It's merely an item of interest with me, as I'm a teetotaller myself."

I have enough worries, without worrying about poor Hemingway. But I wondered if Partridge was right, just as a matter of literary curiosity, and finally I took A Moveable Feast from the shelf and opened it at random to page 16. Bingo. "(Miss Stein) always gave me the natural eau-de-vie, insisting on refilling my glass, and I looked at the pictures and we talked."

Page 83 — "The waiter stood there and Ford told him he would have a chambery cassis. "No. Make it a fine a l'eau,' Ford said. 'A fine a l'eau for monsier,' the waiter confirmed the order."

I especially like that one because Hemingway gets three drinks into one paragraph while poor old Ford Maddox Ford is only getting one out of it.

So Partridge has a point. But A Moveable Feast is a collection of sketches about Hemingway's life as a young man in Paris in the '20s. An Anglican bishop couldn't write a memoir about life in Paris in the '20s without getting in an occasional eau-de-vie. Perhaps it was an unfair test.

I looked for my copy of The Sun Also Rises but couldn't find it. Anyway, though I hadn't read the book since high school, I recollected that Jake Barnes and his buddies did enough boozing to last most authors a lifetime.

I did find a copy of A Farewell to Arms. Like Jake Barnes, Lieut. Henry had his reasons for drinking, but as I remembered he was in an Italian hospital much of the time, with a nurse whose name I could remember only as Helen Hayes. I don't know about Italian hospitals, but it isn't easy to get a snort of anything drinkable in any local hospital.

By pure chance I opened the book to page 280 and intruded on this dialogue:

"Have we finished the champagne?"

"Almost."

"Should we drink some more? Then I must dress."

"Perhaps we'd better not now."

"You are sure you don't want more?"

"Yes."

Out of context, that isn't fair to anyone. It's the end of a truly poignant scene. But I think it is significant that Henry decided not to have another drink. In those early masterpieces, when Hemingway could resist the temptation to put another drink on a page, he kept us all intoxicated, but never drunk.

I think Partridge is wrong, but that may be because he's a teetotaller. I doubt if he could have lived through a winter in Paris in a flat over a sawmill without taking a nip.

No, it wasn't drinking that ruined Hemingway; it was writing about it. My critics might be right. I may cut down.

As you know, he spent more than a week trying to hire a "free and independent" special prosecutor to freely and independently investigate him. He wished to do this for the good of the country and before congress beat him to it.

Unfortunately, Time magazine reported that he had to reject the very first applicant for "his political leanings." While Time didn't name this first choice, the following White House tape, found on the discount counter of The Snadley Klaberhorn Record Emporium, should make one thing perfectly clear.

★ ★ ★

"Pull up a chair, son, and speak directly into the bud vase. Let me say I think you're just the young man I've been looking for. How would you like to freely and independently investigate me?"

"Gosh, sir, why me?"

"Well, son, you're a clean-cut, energetic, young lawyer without a blemish on your record. You had the good sense to marry extremely well. But, above all, it's your name. The polls show that when it comes to free and independent investigators, it's a name that inspires public confidence."

★ ★ ★

"Yes, sir. I can see your point there."

"Fine. Now do you think, son, that you have the moral fibre to poke and probe into every nook and cranny of my life without fear or favor, let the chips fall where they may?"

"Yes, sir!"

"I mean, of course, without sticking your nose into my papers, tapes, friends, real estate transactions, campaign contributions and other matters that don't concern you. Now, what did you think about my handing over those tapes to Judge Sirica?"

"A brilliant move, sir. If those papers you turned over to the National Archives were worth a $570,000 tax write-off, those tapes should net you a cool million at the very least."

"Good thinking, son! You're hired."

Golly, that's great, sir. I've always loved investigating people ever since I was a member of Nader's Raiders."

"Nader's Raiders? Good grief! I'd forgotten you were once one of those radicals."

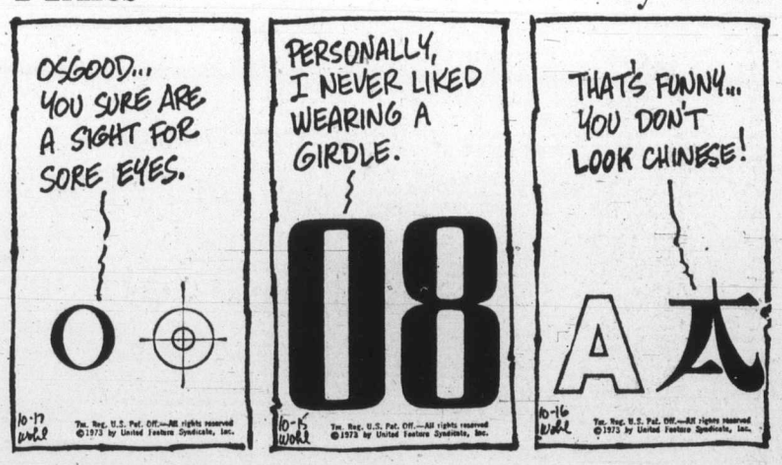

"But, sir, having been a Nader's Raider certainly makes me qualified to be a free and independent investigator."

"No, Ed, I'm afraid it makes you overqualified. Well, give my love to Trish and, on your way out, do me a favor,"

"What's that, sir?"

"Send my other son-in-law, David, in."

Would you believe that you could take a long sentence in prison better than a short stay in jail? Most people wouldn't — indeed, most don't even know the difference between the two.

One man who does know is Dr. Karl Menninger, who has looked into the problem deeply, especially in his book of a few years ago, The Crime of Punishment. Now, in his new book, Whatever Became of Sin? (which I will comment on in a future column), he repeats his indictment in a few terse paragraphs I cannot refrain from quoting in full:

"The public refuses to abandon its pleasant fantasy that jails are just little local lockups where miscreants and suspects may spend a night or even a week and be the more wary of sin and police thereafter. People refuse to believe that jails are almost without exception horrible, destructive, ruinous, hideous atrocities of which every citizen should be ashamed.

"I say the public refuses to believe it in spite of thousands of reports, because if they did, jails would be outlawed tomorrow by public demand. If every minister would visit the local jail twice a year, and urged his congregation to do so, there would be a similar revolution.

"The average citizen goes along in his thinking with those ignorant, lazy, or cruel judges who say, 'A few weeks or months in our little jail may do you some good. Then, if you persist in your wicked ways, you will be given the severe treatment of the penitentiary!'

"Actually the worst penitentiary is less harmful to most young offenders than the best of jails! Jails ruin young men. Can't the public grasp this indisputable fact? How can a decent prison attempting a rehabilitation program do anything for a boy who comes to it from a jail where he has been raped, battered, vomited and urinated upon, mauled and corrupted by some of the old-timers in the bullpen?

"Even without the abuse and harassment of other inmates, the horrible confinement in hot, stuffy, crowded, dark, vermin-infested iron cages is a terrible experience — literally a form of torture.

"When one considers that this is all illegal, since the law does not stipulate these iniquitous concomitants of detention in any sentence, our sinfulness in permitting the situation to continue in our society, and at our expense, seems very evident and very great."

Karl Menninger is no "bleeding heart"; he believes in moral, as well as legal, responsibility for our acts, as his new book fully shows. But he is a realist, in recognizing that certain kinds of punishment are a worse crime than any they seem to rectify or revenge.

BARBER OR BARBER STY

Bruce Lowther

ALL SORTS: The three weekday-evening games of baseball's world series were big ratings winners for NBC. Only one rival program out-rated baseball that Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday—The Waltons on CBS. I find that fascinating: a frankly sentimental show beats 'em all.

Speaking of ratings, Dean Martin's roasts have made him first in his new Friday time period when it was expected this might be his last year . . . anthologies aren't doing as well as expected; in particular, the ABC Tuesday and Wednesday movies have fallen from past popularity.

The ratings-poor NBC Follies has signed Sammy Davis as its fulltime star but had to promise a full season and a midseason time change to get him . . . ABC expects to replace low-rated Jack Paar with entertainment specials and chillers, which have gone over well with late-night viewers.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Saturday's answer—Alvah Bessie, Herbert Biberman, Lester Cole, Edward Dymtryk, Ring Lardner, Jr., John Howard Lawson, Albert Maltz, Sam Ornetz, Adrian Scott and Dalton Trumbo were The Hollywood Ten of the late 1940s. Writers and directors, they were blacklisted for refusing to tell Congress if they were Communists but Trumbo came back to win an Oscar.

Today's question—The movies Fourteen Hours, Weekend at the Waldorf, Separate Tables, Grand Hotel and Room Service have something in common. Name it; the answer Wednesday.

"The Rookies' is on."

Tuesday Highlights

NOTE: Seattle election returns will delay Marcus Welby and the late-night chiller on Channel 4, while Channel 5 will cancel Police Story and delay Johnny Carson and Channel 7 hasn't said what it will do. A reminder that the only reports on Watergate and other U.S. problems may be on Channel 9 at 10 p.m. but no definite programs have been reported.

● C-8:00 p.m.—PBS repeats the excellent hostages tragedy of a few seasons ago, Montserrat, with Kier Dullea—9.

C-9:45—KIRO may have a special, a movie or election results—7.

C-10:00—KVOS Tuesday Movie has a Shaft—12.

C-12:00—ABC's late-night chiller is One Deadly Owner, featuring Donna Mills as a girl whose newly-bought car has a mind of its own—4.

CABLE 10—7:00 p.m., Premiere of Eksperiment Esperanto with the Victoria Esperanto Club; 7:30, Rosemary Wormald's Floral Creations; 8:00, German Diary; 8:30, new time for The Sky Tonight with Ken Chilton; 9:00, Helen Biernes and Outlook.

Tuesday Movies

C-9:30 a.m.—Brigadoon (fairly good 1954 musical), Gene Kelly, Van Johnson, Cyd Charisse. With all that beautiful music, it should have been better—4.

C-12:45 noon—I Love a Mystery (awful 1967 Jack-Doc-Reggie flop), Ida Luino, many other victims. So bad it wasn't shown until 1972—6, 8.

1:30 p.m.—Dante's Inferno (1935 fantasy-drama, old but intriguing), Spencer Tracy and teenage Rita (Hayworth) Cansino—13.

C-3:30—The Last Voyage (only fair 1960 liner in trouble), Robert Stack, Edmond O'Brien, Dorothy Malone. Friend of mine says there was a sign over the bar on the Titanic: Sorry, No Ice—5.

C-3:30—Nobody's Perfect (imperfect 1967 stolen-Buddha comedy), Doug McClure, David Hartman, Nancy Kwan—7.

C-7:00—Hardcase (1971 Clint Walker western). A Walker western is never great but also is never bad—12.

C-8:00—By Love Possessed (rotten 1961 soaper), Lana Turner, many more victims. If you want to see a really bad movie, watch this dog—13.

C-8:30—The Girl Most Likely To (new ugly-duckling-gets-revenge), Stockard Channing, Edward Asner. Try it—4.

C-11:30—Buckskin (below-par 1968 western), Barry Sullivan, Joan Caulfield, Wendell Corey. Most buckskin has 100 scents—12.

C-12:00—Company of Killers (1969 psycho loose, not bad), Van Johnson, Ray Milland, John Saxon. Rough but well directed—6, 8.

C-12:00—Gentlemen Prefer Blondes (1953 Marilyn Monroe-Jane Russell antique). I wouldn't know—7.

C-1:45 a.m.—The Jokers (amusing 1967 Crown Jewels caper), Oliver Reed, Michael Crawford. I wonder how things in Glocca Morra really are?—6, 8.

Tuesday Radio

7:00—The Vancouver Symphony Orchestra and Shostakovitch's 10th symphony—CBU-FM (105.7).

●—Recommended; C—Color.

WONDERFUL POTENTIAL
LOVELY 3 BEDROOM QUARTERS
5 STORES, 2.46 ACRES — $115
This is fantastic opportunity. Over 30,000 sq. ft. of commercial zoning with 155' frontage on major thoroughfare. Huge 5,000 sq. ft. building has a replacement cost of about $80,000. Full high basement under only 50%. Back 70,000 sq. ft., might be able to be subdivided off. This price includes really fine living quarters, with huge kitchen, living room, family room, or 3rd bedroom with fireplace. Also includes grocery business that needs complete revamping to supermarket stature, and food take-out operation that is closed, but must be opened immediately. You won't believe this until you see it. What a family opportunity to start hardware, sporting goods, and nursery plus a terrific grocery business. $80,000 mortgage indicated available. Trade your house in for $30,000 equity. F. WILLS at 598-3344.

68-UNIT DINING LOUNGE
RENOWNED-STRIKING INTERIOR
PENTHOUSE QUARTERS
This is one of the areas most strinking licensed dining lounges, with a very large functional kitchen. Owner must sell due to health reasons. Second storey penthouse style living quarters are beautiful. Main level also has small office with own 2-piece bathroom, plus one bedroom self contained suite. You should really expand dining lounge into this area. Separate matching building has great possibilities. Situated on four lots with two road frontages, all zoned commercial. Good financing available, and owners will trade for apartment block or motel. Asking $179,500. F. WILLS at 598-3344.

DOWNTOWN! PROFITABLE!

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—THE BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily. Monday through Saturday call:

THE HOTCAKE

Our $47,500 Beach Drive Apartment

that's selling like there's no tomorrow

Sure this apartment would sell like a "hotcake" anywhere but put it on Beach Drive in Oak Bay where the high cost of land doesn't usually allow for so much space and value at such a moderate price — and you can really see what the excitement is all about.

The ROYAL ALEXANDRA has three other one and two-bedroom models from just $29,900-$49,900.

Come see them quick, because we don't have them long. They're selling like hotcakes.

Zambian XI Out-Charmed

LUSAKA (UPI) — Zambian soccer fans watching the Zambia-Zaire World cup series match halted the game briefly Sunday by rusing the Zaire goal-keeper because he had strung charms in the goal.

The fans charged onto the field early in the second half in an attempt to remove the charms, but police pushed them back into the stands. Zaire won the match, 2-0.

Integration of Services Eyes for Valley Region

By GORDON HAMILTON
Colonist Duncan Bureau

DUNCAN — Community involvement will be the key phrase at a meeting scheduled for Wednesday night which will focus attention on the establishment of a community resources board in the Cowichan Valley.

The meeting, to be held at 7 p.m. in the Cowichan Opportunity Centre, is expected to attract representatives from at least 20 local service organizations as well as members of the interested public.

"The purpose of the meeting is to focus on how to best establish an effective community resource board in the Cowichan Valley, what would be the best way to establish a representative organization," said Jack Hutton, of the Duncan Mental Health Centre.

Hutton, along with members of other community services, has been working behind the scenes since last June to help establish a co-ordinating centre for the different organizations.

He said such a board, if established, could conceivably include development of a complete network of social services, all locally controlled, jurisdiction over distribution of public funds and responsibility to the community, as well as the minister of human resources.

"What we are trying to do is to bring about more community involvement. The provincial government says the community should be caring for its own. With a community resources board, the local area could have the responsibility for establishing programs and priorities," said Hutton.

Essentially, the purpose of the board would be to bring local co-ordination and centralization of the many social services in the Cowichan Valley and a sharing of knowledge.

"From my point of view, it would bring about a more co-ordinated and integrated service in our own region. This would be through a process of interaction with various service groups, sharing of information about endividual services and programs, including their successes as well as failures, and researching service problem areas," he said.

Describing the present state of community resource co-ordination in the valley, Hutton said, "I don't even have an adequate list of who's who, and what's available here, and I'm in the business of counselling people."

Hutton stressed the aim of Wednesday's meeting would not be just to establish another board which will make decisions for the community, but one which will hopefully be of the community."

"There is a difference between doing something for people, and something with the people requiring services," said Hutton. "We want the community involved, not just the social agencies. If people feel the needs are not being met, now is the time to stand up and say what you think."

North Cowichan Candidate:

'People's Wishes Ignored'

NORTH COWICHAN — "I am concerned that council does not pay enough attention to the wishes of the people," said George Whittaker, 58-year-old retired contractor, who for the third time is trying to unseat Mayor Gerry Smith.

The two other previous attempts to gain the mayor's seat were in 1969 and in 1971.

To clarify his statement, Whittaker said, "For instance, the Kingsview issue (proposed housing development at Maple Bay Road) was not accordingly advertised. It is likely that had a proper hearing been held before any commitment was made by council to the people (developers), and if council would have heard what the residents thought, they probably could have come up with something everybody could have lived with."

Whattaker strongly advocates that every citizen in a muncipality be listened to.

"Everybody's opinion should be worthwhile to be heard," he said. He added that "if we are going to maintain the principles of grassroot government, then those people elected not only have to have the ability but they also have to have the time to fill the office. Otherwise, by default, we fall into dictatorship of bureaucracy."

He said that if the elected people do not perform the duties to which they were elected, the bureaucracy will perform the duties for them.

Whittaker is also running for a seat on the Cowichan Valley Regional Board in the Nov. 17 civic elections.

"I would like to see that the police should be under the regional board. Certainly, it is time that we had better accommodation for the police but I don't agree that they have to have a crime laboratory up here."

Whittaker is opposed to an earlier proposal to centralize the police force in a public safety building near the municipal hall. "It would be quite wrong to move the police from Chemainus."

In his opinion, other services also should be administered by the municipality are concerned, including water supply, sewage treatment and a recreational complex.

"At the present time, Duncan and North Cowichan are resisting benefits that could be derived by allowing the regional board to perform some of the functions now being performed by the two municipalities. The existence of any municipality is not a sacred matter.

"A municipality should be merely a tool for the welfare of the residents in that area and if it does not produce the best possible service for the tax money, then the municpality is a failure," Whittaker concluded.

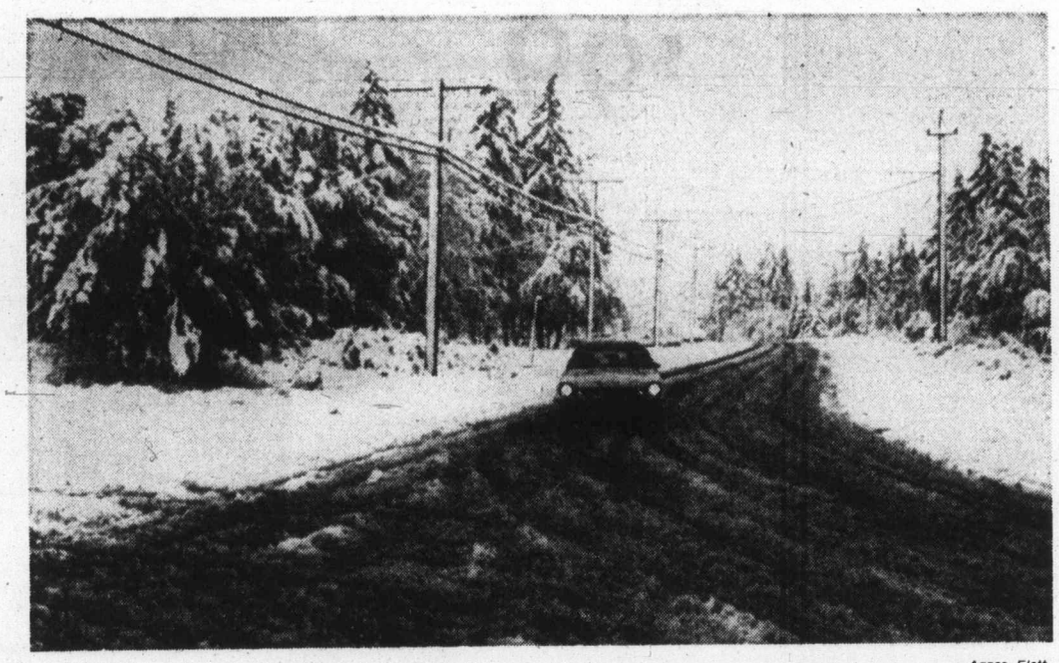

Bigger Grants For Libraries

NORTH COWICHAN — Reporting from the fall meeting of the B.C. Library Association at Victoria over the weekend, North Cowichan Ald. Margaret Robertson said, "I am very pleased to hear from the Library Development Commission that there will be a higher percentage of provincial grants to public library systems."

Mrs. Robertson was chairman of the provincial committee to gather reaction to the five-year proposal presented by the Library Development Commission. This study has been completed.

"Because the Vancouver Island Regional Library is an old established system covering five regional districts, we expect a substantial increase in our provincial grant," she said.

She pointed out once more that in B.C. the provincial government library grant of six per cent is lower than that of other poorer Canadian provinces.

Vancouver Logger Jailed for Heroin

CAMPBELL RIVER — A Vancouver logger was sentenced to nine months in prison in Provincial Court here Friday after pleading guilty to a charge of possession of heroin.

Judge Roderick Haig-Brown told 49-year-old Carl Huntley that he could not take a lighter view and assess a fine because of a previous conviction for the same offense.

Haig-Brown told Huntley he would have to pass a jail sentence as a deterrent for others.

The court was told that Huntley was arrested Oct. 29 in a drug raid on a room of a local hotel.

Police officers found a balloon containing two caps of heroin, a couple of spoons and two needles, one of which had been used, in the room registered to Huntley.

The court was told that in addition to the previous drug conviction, Huntley had been imprisoned for 18 months for a charge of theft over $50 in 1972.

Ivan Arthur Peters will be tried Dec. 21.

Nastase Rallies To Down Smith

PARIS (AP) — Top-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania rallied for a 4-6, 6-1, 3-6, 6-0, 6-2 victory over defending-champion Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C. Sunday and won the French indoor open tennis championship.

Roberts Out With Injury

MONTREAL (CP) — Veteran Jim Roberts, a defenceman and right winger with Montreal Canadiens, will be missing from the lineup for 10 days because of pinched nerve in his neck, the National Hockey League club said Monday. Roberts was injured during Saturday night's game here against California Golden Seals.

Logger Pulled Out of Flood

CAMPBELL RIVER — A dramatic helicopter rescue was made Oct. 27 to pull a marooned man from a flash flood that had surrounded a logging camp in Toba Inlet about 45 miles north- east of Campbell River.

Police received a call from a man identified as S. Lowe of Mission, B.C. that he was cut off from his boat and a rising flood of water, debris and mud was closing in on his trailer at the Rainbow Mountain Logging camp.

At the time of the call to RCMP, Lowe reported that about half the camp was covered by a mud slide.

He was returned to Campbell River and put up in a hotel here.

During heavy rains, the creek brought down a considerable amount of debris that became lodged near the top of the waterfall.

A dam built up behind the jam, and the creek escaped by diverting down a switchbacking logging road, effectively surrounding the camp.

Lowe was cut off from all avenues of escape, and then mud started to slide over the encircled camp area.

Lowe was alone in the camp doing caretakers duties there.

There has not been any estimate of the amount of damage to the logging camp, or of what equipment was destroyed in the flood and mud slide.

Brother's Mercy Killer Goes Free

Zygmaniak, 23, was acquitted on grounds of temporary insanity. He had admitted shoooting his 26-year-old brother, George, last June in hospital.

Jury Foreman James Clark, who announced the verdict, said it reflected the panel's feeling that he was insane at the time of the shooting. Clark said the jury feels Zygmaniak no longer is insane.

Zygmaniak's family, including his widowed mother Sonia and his brother's widow, wept when the verdict was announced.

"I feel relieved a little bit," Zygmaniak said. "I feel much better. That's all I want to say now."

He said he plans to return to his construction job. His boss, contractor, Orlando Lynn, testified at his trial.

Zygmaniak had his arms around his girlfriend, Elaine Schmidt, also a witness for the defence. She broke down and cried in the witness box while describing Zygmaniak's mental anguish over the shooting of his brother in Jersey Shore Medical Centre.

George had been paralysed from the neck down as a result of a motorcycle accident at the Zygmaniak home in Perrineville, N.J., on June 17.

Lester, carrying a concealed, sawed-off shotgun, walked into the hospital June 20 and shot and fatally wounded his brother. Lester described the killing to the jury this way:

"I walked over and asked him if he was in pain. He nodded he was. I asked, 'A lot of pain, George?" He nodded again.

"I went to him and I said 'Well, I'm here today to end your pain. Is that all right with you?' He nodded yes, and the next I knew I had shot him."

Peace Message Temporarily Scuttled

Ship Won't Make Waves

For all its messages of goodwill and what was perhaps the best rock music in the Middle East, the 8,000-ton converted freighter went out of business as an offshore radio station because no one cared enough to support it financially.

It sailed into the port of Ashdod Sunday, blasting out John and Yoko Lennon's rock hit, Give Peace a Chance. The peace ship made its debut in mid-May with the same tune.

"That's all folks," said Nathan, the ship's Israeli captain. "Now we wish salaam, shalom and peace, and rest assured we will return." Salaam and shalom are the Arabic and Hebrew words, respectively, for peace.

"To all our friends in Beirut, in Damascus, in Amman, in Tel Aviv and Jerusalem, in Cairo—throughout this whole region," Nathan said, "we end this program with love and peace to all of you."

And so he did. His return to the eastern Mediterranean was, he said, dependent on how much money he could raise in Marseille and Rotterdam, his next ports of call once the ship gets refitted in Ashdod. Nathan set no time limit on his stay in Israel.

He said lack of money was responsible for the sinking of the peace propect. He launched it after a year of preparation with a vow never to put into an Israeli or Arab port until peace came to the Middle East.

The ship suffered at the outset from financial difficulties that led to the attrition of its crew—first one, then other members quit. Nathan said in his parting message that he could not continue to operate the vessel because there was not enough money.

Many of his potential donors have been at the front lines of both sides for a month, cutting into the funds. Additionally, war taxes levied by Israel and Egypt have diverted money that could have been doled out as charity to keep the radio going.

He had raised, Nathan said, only $1,900 out of the $71,400 he needed to run the white vessel, with the words "Peace Ship" emblazoned in black lettering on its sides.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Belgians Join Dutch

Sunday Cars Curbed

BRUSSELS (AP) — Belgium joined the Netherlands Monday in adopting a ban on Sunday driving and other strong measures to meet the Arab squeeze on oil supplies.

West Germany was said to be contemplating similar measures.

Common Market foreign ministers met to discuss the crisis, and planned more meetings today. Market countries get about 80 per cent of their oil from the Arabs. This supply has been cut by about 15 per cent.

Qualified oil sources in Kuwait said further cuts of about one million barrels a day are likely. Arab oil exporters announcee Monday they were bringing their total production cut to 25 per cent, on the basis of September figures, including oil embargoes to the United States and the Netherlands.

Belgium, which has three months of oil stocks, is in a difficult situation because the bulk of its supplies of crude oil goes through the Netherlands.

Beside the Sunday driving ban, the Belgian measures to conserve fuel include more restrictive speed limits, less road transport, a reduction in home heating and perhaps some extras school closing days. Some steps are obligatory, other merely recommendations.

The ban on Sunday driving, the only measure for which a date was decided, will start Nov. 18.

Before Monday's Arab decidision to impose further oil production cuts, sources said the total reductions had reached about 20 per cent. A 5-per-cent additional cut was to follow in December.

Budget Sky-High For U.S. Arms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has sent a $21.3 billion Military Procurement Bill to President Nixon for signature despite a warning the military budget "is about to explode."

Even as the 69-12 vote was being tallied Monday, Deputy Defence Secretary William Clements argued for a $2.4 billion addition to supply arms to Israel and Cambodia and acknowledged the total expenditure on their behalf would probably go much higher.

Though the procurement bill, which is only one part of the defence budget, was cut $660 million from Nixon's original request of $22 billion, senate and house conferees gave the Pentagon every major weapons system it asked for and threw in one it didn't want—the A7 attack bomber.

Seale Testimony: Judge Upset Him

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former Black Panther chairman Bobby Seale said Monday he was frightened of being "railroaded to jail" when he called the judge at the 1969 Chicago Seven conspiracy trial a "racist pig."

Seale, testifying for the defence at the contempt of court trial of five former members of the Chicago Seven and two of their attorneys, said he was angered by a remark by U.S. District Court Judge Julius Hoffman that "showed he was a racist pig."

Seale was also upset at the time by Hoffman's refusal to let him act as his own lawyer.

Seale, whose courtroom outbursts four years ago were so vehement that he was gagged and shackled to his chair, testified that Hoffman showed racism when a black woman told the judge she had worked for prosecutor Thomas Foran.

At the time Hoffman replied, "Oh, you were a maid for Mr. Foran?"

Speaking politely and so softly that at times his attorney had to ask him to speak louder, Seale testified Monday:

"If you are sitting in a courtroom being tried for something you didn't do and you can see racism displayed by the judge, you speak up. I was frightened I would be railroaded to jail but when you are frightened you start speaking out against it. Sure I was scared . . ."

When Hoffman rejected Seale's repeated requests four years ago for permission to act as his own lawyer, Seale brought the trial to a virtual standstill with his vehement accusations that Hoffman and the government attorneys were "racists," "fascists" and "lying pigs."

Meat Wrappers Suffer Asthma

CHICAGO (UPI) — Butchers and workers who wrap pre-cut, pre-packaged meats with vinyl plastic may be exposed to a new disease: "meat-wrappers' asthma," a study indicated Monday.

William Sokol, Yossef Aelony and Gilden Beall of Harbor General Hospital, Torrance, Calif., said the illness was triggered by fumes released when workers cut the plastic wrapper with a hot wire. The report was published in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Mandatory Allocation Plan Ready

Canadians Face Rationing If Oil 25 Per Cent Short

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will introduce energy rationing if oil supplies fall 25 per cent below normal demand this winter, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Monday night.

Also, a "mandatory allocation program" will be put into effect if the shortage passes 10 per cent, he told the Commons.

He said the government didn't expect to use either program, but precautionary preparations were being made by a special committee representing all relevant government departments. Industry support had been enlisted through a technical advisory committee set up earlier.

He gave no details of either the rationing or "mandatory allocation" plans, except that the latter would be imposed at the wholesale level.

Under the mandatory scheme, wholesale supplies would be reduced but essential services would be maintained, he said.

In the event of interruptions requiring less serious action than either of these two programs, he said, private citizens and leaders in government and industry would be asked to take voluntary measures.

Consumption might be cut by 10 per cent by a voluntary program, he said.

Right To Sue Pledged—But Not by Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Acting Attorney-General Robert Bork insisted Monday that new special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski would be allowed to sue President Nixon for documents he considered necessary to his investigation, but admitted he had never discussed the matter with Nixon.

Bork gave the assurance after a member of a House judiciary subcommittee read to him from Nixon's last news conference a statement that:

"We will not provide presidential documents to a special prosecutor. We will provide as we have in great numbers all kinds of documents from the White House. But if it is a document involving a conversation with the president, I would have to stand on the principle of confidentiality."

Bork and Archibald Cox, whose ouster as special prosecutor Oct. 20 precipitated more than a dozen bills to create an independent office of special prosecutor, were the last major witnesses before the subcommittee begins writing legislation Wednesday.

Jaworski, meanwhile, was sworn in during a brief ceremony at a federal courthouse. Jaworski said he was meeting with members of his staff and would arrange a conference with Cox in the near future.

Bork said that before Jaworski was announced as Cox's successor, he and Jaworski met with Deputy Attorney-General Henry Petersen, Nixon's chief of staff Alexander Haig and White House lawyers Leonard Garment and Fred Buzhardt.

"I stated to the gentlemen who were sitting with Jaworski and myself that it must be understood he has the power to go to court," Bork said.

Asked by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, (D—N.Y.) what their response was, Bork said they agreed with him.

'Can you turn me into a frog?'

Evidence Killed By Dean

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Watergate prosecutors said Monday that former White House counsel John Dean found and destroyed evidence belonging to bugging conspirator E. Howard Hunt late last January, after Hunt pleaded guilty in the plot.

Assistant special prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste told a federal court hearing that Dean had found the materials in a folder containing President Nixon's personal estate planning file—but he stressed to reporters later there was "No indication" Nixon ever saw the Hunt documents.

The disclosure came at the opening of a hearing before chief U.S. District Judge John Sirica on motions by Hunt and four of his co-conspirators to erase their convictions. Hunt's lawyer Sidney Sachs said the destruction of the evidence was further proof all charges should be dismissed.

"These proceedings are a web of fraud and corruption," Sachs said. "As each day passes, it becomes clearer that this goes to the very top of the government."

Six Months For Segretti

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Donald Segretti, the mastermind of the political dirty tricks program during President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign, was sentenced to six months in prison Monday for violating federal election laws.

Segretti pleaded guilty Oct. 1 to one count of conspiracy to distribute unlawful political material, and two counts of distributing that material.

The flames were fed by 20-mile-per-hour winds and posed serious threat to other buildings. It took firemen four hours to get the blaze under control. There were no known injuries.

Refined Oil Stops If Arabs Insist

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada would cut off the export of refined petroleum products to the United States if Arab countries made it a condition for continuing crude oil shipments to Canadian refiners, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Monday.

"We'd have to in that case," he said in an interview. But he added that Canada would not cut off crude oil exports if an Arab ultimatium were received.

He was quoted earlier in the day as saying Canada would cut off all exports, but he called this a bad misunderstanding.

"No we wouldn't do that."

He said this is a hypothetical situation but the goverment would not cut off U.S. customers who rely totally on Canadian crude.

He also said there is no indication that any curtailent will be necessary in the level of refined products exported.

He said a weekend report that Saudi Arabia had threatened to cut off crude oil shipments to any country supplying the U.S. with crude or refined products was "Not in accordance with reports from diplomatic sources."

Canada exports more than one million barrels of oil daily to the U.S. and imports roughly the same amount to refineries in Eastern Canada. About 30 per cent of the imports come from Arab states.

Strachan Lied, Says Socred

Body To Decide Issue

By BARBARA McLINTOCK
Colonist Legislature Staff.

A special committee of the B.C. Legislature will start sitting this morning to determine whether Transport Minister Robert Strachan lied to the house in the question of a B.C. Ferries management study.

The charge of lying to the house is one of the most serious that can be made against a cabinet minister, and the committee's inquiries could conceivably lead to the resignation of either Strachan or the member who made the charge, Socred Robert McClelland.

The Langley member was suspended from the Legislature for Wednesday afternoon's sitting after he refused to withdraw the allegation that Strachan lied, but was readmitted to the evening sitting.

Both McClelland (Langley) and Strachan made public documents which they claimed supported their points of view — McClelland that the minister authorized a mangement study of the B.C. ferry system, Strachan that he had never done so.

The documents will be placed before the all-party committee, which also has the power to call witnesses and examine other evidence. After it has concluded its hearings, it will judge whether Strachan did, in fact, lie to the house.

If it is found he did, Strachan will be in contempt of the house, and it will be up to the house to decide what further action to take.

Legislative sources indicated Strachan could be required to apologize to the house, or he could be censured. But such a finding would make it necessary for the minister to decide whether he could continue as a minister, the sources said.

If the committee finds, on the other hand, that Strachan did not lie, McClelland would be required to withdraw his charges and aplogize to Strachan and to the house. But for him, too, the matter might be so serious he would have to consider resigning, said the sources.

Root of the problem is a management study of the system begun, according to Strachan, without his approval early in October.

The minister said outside the house that Ferries general manager Monty Aldous had definitely proceeded with the study without Strachan's knowledge.

Moreover, Strachan said, Aldous had written to him more than a week after the

Egyptian Thrust May Light Fuse

Egyptian infantry backed by tanks carried out a series of attacks along the Suez Canal front Monday and in some isolated cases succeeded in penetrating Israeli lines and holding onto their gains, an Israeli military spokesman reported in Tel Aviv. War talk increased on both sides.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said the Egyptians launched four attacks against Israeli lines—one of them a series of company-sized assaults lasting six hours. Israel protested the alleged violations to the UN truce force.

The Israeli spokesman said the Egyptian army is fully deployed in attack positions along the entire canal front and on the road to Cairo, but would be met and crushed. The Israelis said it was quiet on the Syrian front where Israel told the international Red Cross the Syrians had murdered 12 Israeli war prisoners.

The latest alleged violations of the 12-day-old ceasefire came as U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger, who completed four days of almost non-stop negotiations among the Egyptians, Syrians and Israelis in Washington, flew to the Middle East on a peace mission, and Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir arrived home in Tel Aviv from her Washington visit. 'Bait and Switch' Outlawed by Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The government launched its new business competition policy Monday with a bill aimed at protecting consumers and small businessmen against unfair pricing and advertising practices.

Introducing the bill in the Commons, Consumer Affairs minister Herb Gray said a second stage will follow — including changes in laws against company mergers.

He told reporters it would be unrealistic to expect that second bill before a year from now. And he called on supporters of the legislation to voice their feeling and help prevent the fate that befell the last competition bill, debated out of the Commons last year.

The bill-amendments to the Combines Investigation Act — would forbid misleading advertising with provisions that officials say are tougher than those in the existing law.

It would provide new protection for consumers in guarantees and warranties.

If put into effect, temperatures would be lowered three to five degrees in federal, provincial and commercial buildings. Homeowners would be asked to take similar steps, but no one would be expected to keep themostats below 70 degrees.

He said serious interruptions may occur if supply conditions worsen among Arab producers.

But the situation remained unclear.

He spoke during a three-hour emergency debate won by T.C. Douglas (NDP—Nanaimo - Cowichan - The Islands).

He said Arab suppliers, who account for about 30 per cent of the one million barrels of oil imported daly, have broken purchasing countries into three classes in imposing war-related oil sanctions—friendly, neutral and embargoed.

Canada falls into the neutral category, but it is still not clear what this means in terms of long-term supply, he said.

However, if the 25-per cent production cut adopted by Arab producers continued through winter and a further five-per-cent cut is added each month as announced, it will amount to a 21-per-cent cut over-all in shipments to consuming countries, he said.

For Canada, he added, the government estimates this could result in a heating oil shortage of "something under 10 per cent."

To reduce the potential impact the government is stepping up efforts to increase the flow of Western Canada oil to eastern Canada, he said.

Traditionally, all areas east of the Ottawa Valley, have been supplied by imported oil while markets to the west have been supplied by western oil.

The interprovincial pipeline from Alberta now extends to Toronto and there is no capacity to transfer large volumes of crude oil to eastern markets.

However, tankers using the St. Lawrence seaway are expected to move 60,000 to 80,000 barrels a day to Montreal during November, he said. This would continue until normal seaway freeze-up about mid-December.

He said the government is "chartering tanker space" to add a further 10,000 barrels a day to this total, and other steps are being explored to increase the flow.

Department officials have said there is no way enough oil can be moved without a pipeline to offset a serious supply interruption in the east.

There was a brief question period during which Macdonald told Eudore Allard (SC—Rimouski) that the two major railways and other transport companies will meet in Ottawa today to discuss how much oil they can move into eastern Canada if a serious shortage develops.

Refinery Output Hit by Oil Cuts

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Standard Oil Co. Ohio said Monday the worldwide shortage of crude oil has forced it to reduce refinery operations by 10 per cent and its gasoline sales the same amount.

Its Wilmington, Del., subsidiary, BP Oil Corp., would reduce its gasoline sales to 85 per cent of its supply to customers in November a year ago, the firm also announced.

All Sohio gasoline customers were being limited Monday to 90 per cent of their November, 1972, purchases, the Sohio spokesman said.

He said Sohio, "unlike most other U.S. refiners, must buy the bulk of its crude oil from domestic and foreign sources" and so has "been forced to rely increasingly on crude supplies from the Middle East and North Africa . . ."

Both firms indicated further reductions may come.

But Sohio's president, Alton Whitehouse, said his firm has "idle capacity that could produce a substantial part of the products needed if more crude oil were available."

He said Sohio's daily crude oil processing during the past third quarter was about 371 million barrels daily, compared with about 399 million in the third quarter a year earlier.

A spokesmen for BP Oil said that firm's single refinery "depends entirely on foreign crude sources."

Sohio announced recently it would limit wholesale supplies of the distillate fuels—mainly diesel and jet fuel, heating oil and kerosene—to 75 per cent of November, 1972, orders under a federal mandatory allocation system.

BP Oil said it adopted a 67 per cent allocation program for distillates last week because of reduced availability of crude oil.

Fights Flare

The official Iraqi news agency predicted Kissinger's visit to Morrocco, Tunisia, Egypt, Jordan and Syria would be fruitless and said "fighting between the Arab countries and Israel may be resumed at any moment." Iraq, one of Egypt's allies, refused to accept the ceasefire.

In another development, Arab oil producing states cut oil production 25 per cent and an official Egyptian government spokesman said in Cairo an Arab oil embargo would increase until the United States takes an "even-handed" policy in the Middle East. The Arabs have been extremely critical of U.S. military aid to Israel.

Egypt has demanded that Israel return to the Oct. 22 ceasefire lines, a withdrawal that would free the trapped Egyptian 3rd Army.

Strachan Issue

study had begun, asking for permission to start it, saying, "I feel we should not proceed without your specific approval for the study."

However, McClelland and other Socreds insisted that it was impossible that Strachan could not have known of such a major study within a few days after it had begun.

The following is a chronology of events surrounding the charges, determined from documents presented by both sides:

Oct. 1 — Frank Machin of the Victoria management consultant firm of F. R. Machin and Associates, discussed with ferries system employee Tom Mainer a possible management study of the ferry system, and particularly of problems of overtime.

Oct. 4 — Machin met with ferries operations manager Bill Weston to discuss terms of reference for the study. These were all to deal with overtime problems.

The same day, Weston sent out a memorandum "to whom it may concern in the British Columbia Ferries." The memo was designed "to serve to introduce" Machin and his workers, who had "been engaged by British Columbia Ferries management" to conduct the study.

Oct. 10 — Machin wrote to Weston, confirming the assignment, discussing details and estimating a fee of about $39,000 for the study. Machin emphasized that the study would be kept confidential, "and I would like to stress to you the need for confidentiality on the part of those persons whom we have to interview."

Oct. 11 — McClelland raised the question in the house for the first time, and Strachan said he intended to have some kind of a management study done.

Strachan said he took this to mean, however, a conciliation study on employees' grievances—which, he said, he still intends to have done.

Oct. 12 — Weston wrote to Aldous, informing him of the choice of Machin to do the study, and stating that the fee was "not exorbitant." However, he suggested that "some statement, either within the ferry system or even publicly, be made that this study is being undertaken; otherwise the facts could be wrongly reported by the media to the embarrassment of all concerned."

The same day, Aldous wrote Strachan asking for Strachan's express permission to carry out such a study, which he felt was essential. Aldous ended his letter: "I await your instructions as to whether or not to proceed."

Oct. 15 — Strachan received Aldous' letter of Oct. 12, but Strachan ignored it since he did not feel the study should take place. This, he said, is the first indication he has had that such a study is even being considered, and it made no mention of the fact that the study is already underway.

Oct. 30 — Weston again wrote Strachan, asking for immediate approval to undertake the study and urging that, if the survey went ahead, some sort of news release be issued.

Oct. 31 — Strachan received a memo from his executive assistant, Pete Loudon, saying that he had talked to Weston who urgently needed a reply on the whole question. Loudon's memo stated that Aldous had given Weston the go-ahead to conduct the study and "Weston at that point gathered that the project had your approval."

Strachan said this was the first time he was aware the study had been going on. He wrote back to Loudon:

"In view of Aldous' statement (in Oct. 12 memo) that he should not proceed without my okay, why did they go ahead? I think it's asking for trouble at this time. Did I give the okay? I don't recollect doing so."

'Bait and Switch'

belling goods with more than one price and charging the highest, the bill would force stores to charge the lowest price marked on a product.

And it would ban or restrict a variety of pricing and selling techniques, including pyramid selling, referral selling and "bait and switch" selling.

It introudced a bill in June, 1971, that also covered mergers.

That legislation, which would have permitted anti-competitive mergers when they promised better efficiency or other benefits, was bitterly opposed by businesses, and was allowed to die on the Commons order paper last year.

The new bill would forbid the making of a claim to the public about a product or service "that is false or misleading in any material respect," say documents accompanying the bill.

That includes "the general impression conveyed" — not just the literal wording of claims. And it includes salesmen's pitches as well as printed advertising.

Phyllis Young, B.C. minister without portfolio responsible for consumer affairs, said she was pleased to see a uniform code across Canada which would beef up protection to consumers and businessmen.

She referred particularly to the unified cross-country ban or restriction on a variety of pricing and selling techniques which covered pyramid selling, referral selling and "bait and switch" selling.

Evelyn Root, a Vanocuver newspaper columnist and one of the chief agitators to outlaw double-pricing in food stores, hailed the proposed legislation as "a real victory for the food prices review board," of which she is a member.

Mrs. Root said the board has been biding its time for this type of legislation and would continue to track down all practices detrimental to "straight forward" consumer shopping.

Another consumer advocate, Ruth Lotzkar, president of the 20,000-member provincial branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada, said she hoped the changes were strong enough to be effective and could be enforced immediately.

"I hope the government will have sufficient inspectors to follow the act through—right up to the courts if necessary."

On the section that deals with added protection to consumers in warranties and guarantees, Mrs. Lotzkar said if certain companies did not comply with government laws, their names should be made public to warn unsuspecting consumers.

Two Back Barrett On Oil Talk Bid

Premier Barrett's call for a federal-provincial conference to discuss rising fuel prices has received support from the premiers of Newfoundland and Ontario.

Barrett sent telegrams last week to all provincial premiers and Prime Minister Trudeau, suggesting the meeting.

In the B.C. Legislature Monday, Barrett said in reply to a question that he had heard from Ontario Premier William Davis supporting the idea of a conference, and an acknowledgement of receipt of the telegram from Trudeau's office.

In St. John's Nfld., meanwhile Premier Frank Moores said he was sending a message to Barrett that he would welcome any attempt to relieve the impact of increased gasoline and heating oil prices.

Moores said the federal government could help offset increased fuel costs by reducing the tax on imported fuel products, especially since Ottawa had a budget surplus.

Oil Cuts to U.S.

supporting Israel in the latest Arab-Israeli war.

Arab oil-producing countries also have cut production 25 per cent in a pressure move to force Israel to abandon occupied Arab lands.

The reduction, which are to increase five per cent a month, do not apply to countries" but could affect affect them at least partially.

Oil that normally would go to the U.S. is being used to fill "friendly countries" but could say there could be some impact if production cuts exceed the amount available from this source.

Both Macdonald and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday they think Canada will not be labelled "unfriendly" by the Arabs.

One contentious point is the Montreal-Portland, Me., pipeline which carries imported oil to Montreal refineries.

Attempts are being made to explain that the oil "comes in bond" for direct transfer to Montreal and none is used in the U.S., Macdonald said.

Sharp said some Arab countries understand this, but others are not sure and some "certification" could be needed to satisfy them.

Canada does not want to damage relations with the U.S. by shutting off or reducing oil exports, he added. It wants to avoid unfriendly relations with both sides in the dispute.

In the Commons Monday, New Democrat Leader David Lewis said there are reports that Venezuela, Canada's largest crude oil supplier, may be reducing production levels.

Macdonald said later he has heard nothing officially but is checking.

"The entire government is behind the minister," he told the House.

Alberta cut off energy talks with Ottawa Friday after the government raised its controversial 40-cents-a-barrel crude oil export tax to $1.90.

Joe Clark (PC—Rocky Mountain) said Trudeau or some other minister should meet personally with Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed to iron out the matter.

He suggested Finance minister John Turner, but Trudeau turned down the idea, putting his support behind Macdonald.

A Simple Procedure

Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is the hymen so fragile that it can accidentally be broken by a woman who is still a virgin?

Please explain as there are many who have seriously searched for an answer, but to no avail. — J.T.R.

Reading this column regularly would have answered that question quite a number of times in the past, but here goes again. There is a very substantial difference in the thickness and toughness of the hymen, and in many cases it is perfectly possible for some rough-housing or minor accident to rupture the hymen, often when a girl is quite young.

And there are a few cases in which the hymen is so tough that the bride has to have a physician sever it. It's a simple procedure, however.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 22 and have just found out that I have retinal degeneration near the macula. I have been told I have about 20 years before I go blind. From what I have been told this is hereditary but I know of no one in my family who has had it.

I have two children and would like to know the chances of this being passed on to them — MRS. K.S.

I presume that you are referring to retinitis pigmentosa which affects young persons and is an inherited disorder. A lot of research is being done on this. Among the findings I have most recently heard about, hypothyroidism (low thyroid activity) may be a factor.

Treatment with Cytomel (a synthetic thyroid substance) and vitamin A is reported to be effective. And reduction of light reaching the retina is accomplished by wearing dark glasses.

Finley Fighting Tax Battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles O. Finley, whose Oakland Athletics won their second consecutive world championship last month, now is trying to win a battle in the tax courts.

Records of the U.S. tax court here show that the Internal Revenue Service is trying to collect more than $546,000 in back taxes which it alleges are owed for 1967 and 1968 by Charles O. Finley and Co. Inc., of which Finley is president.

In a second case, the IRS contends the Finley corporation also owes taxes on accumulated earnings for 1960, 1963, 1964, 1965 and 1966.

Finley contends his corporation doesn't owe the money and has filed a counter-claim against the IRS for a refund on alleged over-assessment of $97,889 in 1967 and $237,045 for 1965.

Both cases are to be tried in Chicago, where the Finley corporation maintains its headquarters. No date for the trial is recorded here.

At issue in the two tax cases is whether Finley owes taxes on accumulated earnings of his corporation, which the IRS contended was created to avoid income tax payments.

But in that case, the IRS contends the Finley corporation did not declare a single dividend during those years to holders of its stock, all of which was owned by Finley and members of his immediate family.

Because no dividends were paid and no taxes were due on them, the IRS said, the "stockholders avoided income taxes in substantial amounts" for those years.

Bruins Assign Sanderson To American League Club

Boston Bruins have assigned Derek Sanderson to Boston Braves but it's doubtful if the colorful centre will report to the American Hockey League club.

Managing director Harry Sinden said Monday that Sanderson cleared waivers by all other National Hockey League teams and was expected to start working out with the Braves today.

But Sanderson, who has been rumored to be on the trading block, was reported to be in New York on Monday and his attorney, Bob Woolf, said Sanderson had no indication he was to be sent to the Braves. It is believed Sanderson, Woolf and Sinden will meet today.

He has not played in any of the Bruins' 12 games this season.

The announcement gave no reason for sending Sanderson to the Braves but Sinden said that "Derek's back is okay now. However, he's not in shape to play in the National Hockey League."

Sinden added that Sanderson "cleared waivers" last weekend and, although several teams entered claims, "they were withdrawn before the waiver period expired."

There have been rumors that Sanderson was to be traded to New York Rangers but these were never confirmed or denied by the Bruins.

Sanderson also spent some time with the Braves last season after jumping back to the Bruins from Philadelphia Blazers of the World Hockey Association.

The 27-year-old Sanderson's best season was 1970-71, when he scored 29 goals and drew 34 assists in 71 games. In 1971-72, he had 25 goals and 33 assists.

After that season, Sanderson jumped to the WHA, signing a $1 million contract with the Blazers. But after a back injury and problems with the Blazer front office, Sanderson moved back to the Bruins.

Even with Sanderson out of the lineup, Bruins have been near the top of the East Division for all of the young season and presently hold a one-point edge over Montreal Canadiens.

The goals boosted Esposito into a seven-point lead over linemate Ken Hodge in the individual scoring race. Esposito, scoring at least one point in each of the first 12 games, has 28 points.

In other games Sunday, Canadiens and Buffalo Sabres tied, 1-1, Philadelphia Flyers blanked Pittsburgh Penguins, 7-0; Atlanta Flames shut out Detroit Red Wings, 2-0; and Chicago Black Hawks scored a 4-1 win over the sagging Rangers.

The stumpy quarterbacking veteran who last year took over from the injured Bruce Lemmerman to guide the Eskimos into a first-place point tie in the Western Football Conference, Sunday led them to the conference championship.

Using the pass only sparingly but connecting for three touchdown throws as a crunching ground game kept the Saskatchewan defence in trouble, Wilkinson was in charge all the way for a 28-16 triumph over the Roughriders.

It brought the Edmonton club their second successive point tie for the lead, but this time it was good enough to bring the official first-place rating because of a 2-1 series edge over Riders. A year ago, Winnipeg Blue Bombers were the official winners.

Sunday's victory, gained before 21,234 fans who ignored the near-zero temperature and the 20-mile-an-hour wind in Edmonton, gave Eskimos a two-week layoff. Riders and the B.C. Lions meet in Regina next Sunday to decide the other team for the conference final, scheduled in Edmonton on Nov. 18.

It looked for a while Sunday as if the Riders, beaten Grey Cup finalists last year, were going to take over. But it turned on two plays, the first late in the first quarter and the other early in the second quarter, and the Saskatchewan team never recovered.

Riders led, 3-0, and were on the move when George Reed fumbled on the Edmonton 22-yard line late in the first quarter, and Sam Britts, a key man in the tough Edmonton defence, got the ball back for his side.

Eskimos didn't take over then, but Riders never recovered after Ron Estay broke through early in the second quarter to dump quarterback Ron Lancaster for a 17-yard loss. It was 25-3 before the Riders, desperately throwing the ball, got on the scoreboard again.

In the meantime, Wilkinson used the blocking of Calvin Harrell and the running of Roy Bell to play a possession game which left Riders helpless. Bell, leading ground-gainer in the CFL this year, pounded for 174 yards in 27 carries and also also contributed a 64-yard kickoff return. Harrell got 31 yards in five carries and caught three passes for 43 yards when he was given time off from his blocking duties. And one of his receptions, a 13-yarder, brought Eskimos their first touchdown.

Gary Lefebvre and Tyrone Walls, on plays covering 41 and eight yards respectively, pulled in the other scoring passes thrown by Wilkinson. Dave Cutler, who set a CFL record of 32 field goals for a season, provided the other Edmonton points with three-pointers from 49 and 46 yards, three converts and a single point.

Riders, who got only 48 yards rushing with Reed stopped at 22 yards for 10 carries, piled up good air yardage, but most of it came late in the game in the losing effort to come from behind. Reed scored from one yard four minutes into the fourth quarter to get them to 9-25, and Bob Pearce pulled in an eight-yard touchdown pass from Lancaster with less than three minutes left.

Miscues Costly For Als in East

During the last few Canadian football League seasons, one of the biggest problems plaguing Montreal Alouettes has been turnovers.

They lost the ball five times Sunday — three in fumbles, once on a blocked kick and the other on a pass interception — and lost, 25-13, to Hamilton Tiger-Cats before 30,240 fans at Ivor Wynne Stadium.

The loss cost the Alouettes second place in the four-team Eastern conference and the home-field advantage for the EFC's sudden-death semi-final next Sunday.

Montreal will have to travel to Toronto to meet the Argonauts. The Argos moved into second place Saturday with an 18-3 win over Winnipeg Blue bombers of the Western conference in the final interlocking game of the year.

The outcome of that game eliminated Hamilton from the playoffs and Tiger-Cats became the fourth straight Grey Cup champions to miss playoffs the following year.

Ottawa won it all in 1969 and missed the playoffs in 1970. Montreal followed by winning in 1970 and missing in 1971. And then Calgary won in 1971 and missed in 1972.

On Sunday, the Tiger-Cats converted the blocked punt and two fumbles on three successive Montreal sequences into a pair of touchdowns and a field goal in the fourth quarter to erase a 13-8 deficit.

Back up quarterback Steve Etter put Hamilton ahead to stay when he barged over from two yards out after John Williams had blocked Wally Buono's punt and Hamilton took over on the Montreal 12-yard line.

Hull Fires Four Goals As Jets Top Quebec

The Golden Jet scored four goals to spark Winnipeg Jets to an 8-2, World Hockey Association victory over the Nordiques before 8020 delighted fans in Winnipeg.

The victory put the Jets in second place in the West, three points behind Edmonton Oilers, who edged Minnesota Fighting Saints, 4-3, in Minnesota.

In other games Sunday, New England Whalers recaptured first place in the East by blasting Cleveland Crusaders, 7-5, at Boston; visiting Toronto Toros dumped Los Angeles Sharks, 6-3; and New York Golden Blades beat Vancouver Blazers, 4-3, in a battle of cellar-dwellers in Vancouver.

Hull added one assist to his four goals and moved into a four-way tie for fifth place in the WHA scoring race, five points behind leader Serge Bernier of the Nordiques.

Bernier has eight goals and 13 assists, while Hull has 11 goals and five assists.

At Winnipeg, both clubs started fast, scoring four goals in the first 12 minutes. Hull scored on his first shot and then the Nordiques beat Winnipeg goaltender Joe Daley with their first two shots.

After the close first period, however, the Nordiques began to tire and rookie Ron Snell broke the 2-2 tie at 2:11 of the second period.

Hull got two goals in succession in the second period and then added another in the third period.

At Vancouver, the Blazers were all over the Golden Blades, firing 55 shots at New York goalkeeper Joe Junkin but Mike Laughton's second goal of the game at 16:02 of the third period gave the Blades the win. Vancouver defenceman Dave Hutchison hit the goalpost just seconds before Laughton scored.

The loss was the seventh straight for the last-place Blazers.

Suspensions Recommended

TORONTO (CP) — Referee-in-chief Vern Buffey of the World Hockey Association says he will recommend suspensions for two players involved in a stick-swinging duel during Sunday night's game between Toronto Toros and Los Angeles Sharks.

Buffey was in the stands to watch the third-period skirmish between Toronto's Guy Trottier and Los Angeles' Ted McCaskill.

Trevino Fires 69 For Aussie Win

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Colorful Lee Trevino played his second straight round without a bogey, shooting a five-under-par 68 Sunday, and scored a four-stroke victory in a $74,500 international golf tournament.

Trevino, who had shared the third-round lead with fellow-American Jim Colbert, finished with a 72-hole total of 277, 15-under-par over the rain-inundated, 6850-yard, par-73 Lakes Golf Course.

Stewart Ginn of Australia, one stroke back starting the final round, recorded a 71 and was second at 281. Australians also took the next two places, with Graham Marsh third at 285, followed by Bill Dunk at 287.

The 32-year-old Colbert staggered in with an 80 and wound up in a tie for seventh at 289.

Trevino, the favorite with the gallery of 2000 as he entertained them with constant conversation, vaulted into command with birdies at the par-four, 420-yard 12th hole, the par-four, 376-yard 13th and the par-five, 544-yard 14th hole.

Trevino received $14,900 plus a new car. Scores of other Americans included Gay Brewers at 292, Jerry Breaux at 293 and Cesar Sanudo and 61-year-old Sam Snead, each at 294.

Going Home Today

Martha King of Alert Bay and baby daughter born on jetliner will be released today from Vancouver General Hospital, hospital spokesman said Monday night. Baby was born 20,000 feet above B.C. coast on Pacific Western Airlines flight from Port Hardy to Vancouver. Meanwhile, Mrs. George Jack of Mayne Island and her baby boy remain in good condition in Hospital at Ganges on Saltspring Island. The baby was born Friday in rowboat during trip to hospital.

Integration of Services Eyes for Valley Region

By GORDON HAMILTON
Colonist Duncan Bureau

DUNCAN — Community involvement will be the key phrase at a meeting scheduled for Wednesday night which will focus attention on the establishment of a community resources board in the Cowichan Valley.

The meeting, to be held at 7 p.m. in the Cowichan Opportunity Centre, is expected to attract representatives from at least 20 local service organizations as well as members of the interested public.

"The purpose of the meeting is to focus on how to best establish an effective community resource board in the Cowichan Valley, what would be the best way to establish a representative organization," said Jack Hutton, of the Duncan Mental Health Centre.

Hutton, along with members of other community services, has been working behind the scenes since last June to help establish a co-ordinating centre for the different organizations.

He said such a board, if estabished, could conceivably include development of a complete network of social services, all locally controlled, jurisdiction over distribution of public funds and responsibility to the community, as well as the minister of human resources.

"What we are trying to do is to bring about more community involvement. The provincial government says the community should be caring for its own. With a community resources board, the local area could have the responsibility for establishing programs and priorities," said Hutton.

Essentially, the purpose of the board would be to bring local co-ordination and centralization of the many social services in the Cowichan Valley and a sharing of knowledge.

"From my point of view, it would bring about a more co-ordinated and integrated service in our own region. This would be through a process of interaction with various service groups, sharing of information about endividual services and programs, including their successes as well as failures, and researching service problem areas," he said.

Describing the present state of community resource co-ordination in the valley, Hutton said, "I don't even have an adequate list of who's who, and what's available here, and I'm in the business of counselling people."

Hutton stressed the aim of Wednesday's meeting would not be just to establish another board which will make decisions for the community, but one which will hopefully be of the community."

"There is a difference between doing something for people, and something with the people requiring services," said Hutton. "We want the community involved, not just the social agencies. If people feel the needs are not being met, now is the time to stand up and say what you think."

North Cowichan Candidate:

'People's Wishes Ignored'

NORTH COWICHAN — "I am concerned that council does not pay enough attention to the wishes of the people," said George Whittaker, 58-year-old retired contractor, who for the third time is trying to unseat Mayor Gerry Smith.

The two other previous attempts to gain the mayor's seat were in 1969 and in 1971.

To clarify his statement, Whittaker said, "For instance, the Kingsview issue (proposed housing development at Maple Bay Road) was not accordingly advertised. It is likely that had a proper hearing been held before any commitment was made by council to the people (developers), and if council would have heard what the residents thought, they probably could have come up with something everybody could have lived with."

Whattaker strongly advocates that every citizen in a muncipality be listened to.

"Everybody's opinion should be worthwhile to be heard," he said. He added that "if we are going to maintain the principles of grassroot government, then those people elected not only have to have the ability but they also have to have the time to fill the office. Otherwise, by default, we fall into dictatorship of bureaucracy."

He said that if the elected people do not perform the duties to which they were elected, the bureaucracy will perform the duties for them.

Whittaker is also running for a seat on the Cowichan Valley Regional Board in the Nov. 17 civic elections.

"I would like to see that the police should be under the regional board. Certainly, it is time that we had better accommodation for the police but I don't agree that they have to have a crime laboratory up here."

Whittaker is opposed to an earlier proposal to centralize the police force in a public safety building near the municipal hall. "It would be quite wrong to move the police from Chemainus."

In his opinion, other services also should be administered by the municipality are concerned, including water supply, sewage treatment and a recreational complex.

"At the present time, Duncan and North Cowichan are resisting benefits that could be derived by allowing the regional board to perform some of the functions now being performed by the two municipalities. The existence of any municipality is not a sacred matter.

"A municipality should be merely a tool for the welfare of the residents in that area and if it does not produce the best possible service for the tax money, then the municpality is a failure," Whittaker concluded.

Bigger Grants For Libraries

NORTH COWICHAN — Reporting from the fall meeting of the B.C. Library Association at Victoria over the weekend, North Cowichan Ald. Margaret Robertson said, "I am very pleased to hear from the Library Development Commission that there will be a higher percentage of provincial grants to public library systems."

Mrs. Robertson was chairman of the provincial committee to gather reaction to the five-year proposal presented by the Library Development Commission. This study has been completed.

"Because the Vancouver Island Regional Library is an old established system covering five regional districts, we expect a substantial increase in our provincial grant," she said.

She pointed out once more that in B.C. the provincial government library grant of six per cent is lower than that of other poorer Canadian provinces.

Seizure Made in Quasino Sound

Marysville Drug Trial Begins

The case of 14 persons charged in connection with a $1 million marijuana seizure in Quatsino Sound last summer bogged down in legal arguements Monday when the hearing opened in North Vancouver Provincial Court before Judge J. N. Bartman.

The hearing was adjourned until today for defence arguments that proceedings against American citizens among the accused cannot be taken without permission of the solicitor-general of Canada.

Lawyer Sidney Simons referred to a section of the criminal code stating that such permission is required in cases alleged to have taken place within Canada's inland waters or territorial seas.

Earlier, defence lawyers lost a motion that all charges be declared void for not specifying which drugs were allegedly involved.

The charges allege that 10 of the accused conspired at Quatsino Sound and elsewhere in British Columbia between Sept. 30, 1972 and July 1, 1973 to import cannabis resin into Canada and that they allegedly conspired to possess the drug for the purpose of trafficking.

Charged with the second count of conspiracy to possess cannabis resin for the purpose of trafficking are American citizens George Steven McDonald, Glen Elton Davis, Frank Comarmy and Richard William Burgess.

Many of the accused were arrested aboard the converted minesweeper Marysville, seized by RCMP in Quatsino Sound several days before a drug cache was found on the shores of the sound.

Logger Pulled Out of Flood

CAMPBELL RIVER — A dramatic helicopter rescue was made Oct. 27 to pull a marooned man from a flash flood that had surrounded a logging camp in Toba Inlet about 45 miles north- east of Campbell River.

Police received a call from a man identified as S. Lowe of Mission, B.C. that he was cut off from his boat and a rising flood of water, debris and mud was closing in on his trailer at the Rainbow Mountain Logging camp.

At the time of the call to RCMP, Lowe reported that about half the camp was covered by a mud slide.

He was returned to Campbell River and put up in a hotel here.

During heavy rains, the creek brought down a considerable amount of debris that became lodged near the top of the waterfall.

A dam built up behind the jam, and the creek escaped by diverting down a switch-backing logging road, effectively surrounding the camp.

Lowe was cut off from all avenues of escape, and then mud started to slide over the encircled camp area.

Lowe was alone in the camp doing caretakers duties there.

There has not been any estimate of the amount of damage to the logging camp, or of what equipment was destroyed in the flood and mud slide.

Vancouver Logger Jailed for Heroin

CAMPBELL RIVER — A Vancouver logger was sentenced to nine months in prison in Provincial Court here Friday after pleading guilty to a charge of possession of heroin.

Judge Roderick Haig-Brown told 49-year-old Carl Huntley that he could not take a lighter view and assess a fine because of a previous conviction for the same offense.

Haig-Brown told Huntley he would have to pass a jail sentence as a deterrent for others.

The court was told that Huntley was arrested Oct. 29 in a drug raid on a room of a local hotel.

Police officers found a balloon containing two caps of heroin, a couple of spoons and two needles, one of which had been used, in the room registered to Huntley.

The court was told that in addition to the previous drug conviction, Huntley had been imprisoned for 18 months for a charge of theft over $50 in 1972.

Swim Workshop At Port Hardy

The program was sponsored by the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association, and was designed to give both adults and children an opportunity to learn more about competitive swimming.

Since the opening of a new municipal pool here last spring, interest in the sport has grown steadily.

Nanaimo's Metral Drive: Cold mass is holding steady

More Cold and Snow Expected All Week

More snow, continued low temperatures, icy roads — that's the weather outlook until at least Saturday for Vancouver Island, including the Victoria area which was recovering Monday from its earliest-ever snowfall.

In the Victoria area, a total of 3½ inches of snow fell between late Saturday night and Monday morning.

Earliest recorded snowfall in the Capital Region had been Nov. 6 in 1902 when three-tenths of an inch fell, according to the weather office at Pat Bay airport.

The weather forecast is for temperatures five to 10 degrees below the normal for this time of year and continued snow showers throughout the Island.

Responsible is a mass of cold air from the Gulf of Alaska. Weather officials say the low pressure area is hanging 150 miles off the northern end of Vancoueer Island and doesn't seem to be moving.

Wednesday's outlook in the Victoria area is for clouds, with some sunny periods. The situation remains the same for the west and east coast areas of Vancouver Island.

Records at Island weather stations showed temperatures recorded during the weekend were the coldest in many areas since 1971 and in the Victoria area since 1945.

The continued cold snap is going to cause problems for motorists and RCMP stations are warning that snow tires and chains in some areas are mandatory where highways departmnt warning signs have been placed, including the Gold River-Campbell River road and the Kelsey Bay-Campbell River road.

Chains are also required in the Forbidden Plateau area in Courtenay.

The Malahat is also closed to vehicles without snow tires or chains.

Colwood police said that during the day there is a danger of drivers hitting ice at corners which have not been thawed by sun.

Long distance phone calls were particularly high over the weekend with 14,000 customer-dialed calls, and 4,200 operator-handed calls. Information handled more than 8,000 calls. The calls were an average of 50 percent higher than a usual weekend.

Elements Fail To Stop Intrepid Walkathoners

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

It was a hard day to be outdoors.

Ask any of the more than 500 Scouts, Cubs and other people from all over Greater Victoria who walked 20 miles Saturday in the cold and the wind to raise money for this year's United Way campaign.

How come they were in such high spirits along the 20-mile route? And how come they were still laughing and joking when they arrived at the finish line, Scout House at 1034 Johnson?

It was 5:50 p.m., more than nine hours after the walkathon began, and about 6½ hours after the first jogger completed the route, when Chris came limping into the home stretch down Johnson.

"I did the whole 20 miles, dad," he announced to his father, waiting for him at the Scout House.

Asked what the most difficult part of the walk was, Chris said, "Getting up again after sitting down to eat a hamburger" at a drive-in along the route.

Part of his troop was sitting in the large waiting-room. There was Glen Gibson, 10, Rob Ridley, 11, and his brother Russ, 13, and Dean Brooks, 12. None of them were what you might call beat.

"Sure we got sore feet, but that's about all," said Glen.

The surprisingly good condition of this year's walkers was pointed out by Jim Tyre, one of the St. John Ambulance attendants who supervised the route.

"Hardly anyone dropped out this year. We had one boy who tripped and ended up with a swollen ankle, but no way was he going to quit," said Tyre.

Doug Lewis, regional Scout commissioner, said he didn't know yet how much money was raised by the walkathon but he was sure it would top last year's $7,200.

He said "quite a bit of money" was riding on people like Victoria Ald. Mike Young and provincial Liberal leader David Anderson who also completed the 20-mile trek.

But Lewis said the most important contributors to the event were the boys.

"I think the enthusiasm of these kids is just beyond belief. They made this thing into a real adventure," he said.

Greater Victoria United Way spokesmen, meanwhile, announced that up until Friday night, a total of $459,674 had been collected, 67.5 per cent of the $680,000 goal.

Woman on Women:

Not Just Beautiful But Beautiful People

By JON FERRY
Colonist Reporter

I wasn't the only male to attend the Saturday session of a two-day "women-are-persons" conference at the University of Victoria.

There were, I was told, some twenty such people somewhere among the females.

I was, however, the only male—or female—to be conned into lifting a heavyish coffee-making machine and the only person to be unceremoniously ejected from a discussion group.

The group was discussing the "raising of women's consciousness" and it was felt by the group leader that the other females "might be inhibited if there was a male in the room."

The Saturday session of a two-day conference on women's rights—sponsored by Canadian Union of Public Employees and Status of Women Action Group (S.W.A.G.)—was lucky to have speakers like Kathleen Ruff and Sylva Gelber.

Both had a sense of humor.

Ms. Gelber, head of the federal labor department's women's bureau, and a tough women's rights fighter from way back, would do well in the advice columns of a newspaper.

She has that warm gruff voice that spits commonsense.

She completed a no-nonsense, solid sort of speech and then invited the audience (in the Elliot building at University of Victoria) to "throw questions" at her.

One of the first to hurl a question was a rather forlorn "young woman" who had the unfortunate experience of running foul of Quebec divorce law and an unsympathetic lawyer who told her to "burn your bra and go to Women's Lib."

"I don't like your lawyer's advice and I wouldn't have paid his bill," said Ms. Gelber.

Ms. Ruff, the closing speaker, also came over as a woman who doesn't say two words when one will do.

She galloped through a speech which outlined some of the major clauses in the new B.C. Human Rights Bill — introduced for first reading on Halloween night — and some of the more obvious "exterior" injustices women face.

She then pointed out many of the internally-held prejudices voiced against Canadian women.

Ms. Ruff cited the sarcasm and ridicule which greeted the women's rights movement, commented on the male 'burn-your-bra' syndrome and the "unhealthy obsession in Canadian society with women's underwear."

Angered by an advertisement which appeared in the Colonist calling for a waitress who was "outgoing yet feminine", Ruff told the meeting she submitted a "spoof" advertisement of her own to the newspaper.

She said the ad was for male waiters who were "outgoing and masculine. The advertising manager, said Ms. Ruff, was "absolutely shocked and horrified."

I came away from the conference agreeing with Ms. Ruff that women are not just beautiful, "they are beautiful people" — even if they do tend to like "raising their consciousness" in private.

'Buy Canadian' Plea Draws Trustee's Ire

Greater Victoria public library trustee Alan Newberry said he had the feeling he was at a political rally "with these emotional appeals to Canadianism and motherhood."

Newberry, speaking as a panel member Saturday afternoon at the fall meeting of the B.C. Library Association in the Empress Hotel, was reacting to statements by a previous panel made up of publishers' representatives. Some had indicated libraries should buy their books in Canada.

"Why not use the same criterion as a reader?" Newberry asked. "Why not look for what is the best book?"

He said he felt that the publishers' representatives were saying that if one buys in another country, one is not in step with Canadian nationalism.

"The minister of education is concerned with the number of items bought outside B.C. and outside Canada," he said. "In the last few days she has sent out a directive which says 'Don't buy outside Canada if you can get it in Canada for the same price.' I agree with that."

But it's not just the dollars and it's not just nationalism either, Newberry said.

"You have a challenge. You live in a competitive world, so let's deal in Canada on a free enterprise basis."

John Backhouse, chief librarian of the Prince George library, said he had heard it all before, the comments and the reactions when librarians and the book industry are brought together.

"I have a confession to make," he said. "I buy around."

He said the industry "has to perform, the service must be improved."

Referring to the statement by one representative that purchasing books in foreign countries would provoke legislation to stop it, he said: "It seems strange that private enterprise acts to restrict private enterprise. I don't want to see legislation. It would probably result in even poorer service and richer top executives in Canada.

"Introducing nationalism into this subject and telling us that they are trying to perform a public service doesn't hold much water for me."

He said that under existing circumstances he would "continue to buy around until there is a better supply with good service and reasonable markups."

He said he had a word for publishers — "clean up your own shop; clean up your own act."

RCMP Holds Suspect In $11,000 Theft

Sidney RCMP are holding a man in connection with a $1,000 break-in and theft that took place in Ganges on Saltspring Island Saturday night.

Ganges RCMP said the suspect was arrested by Sidney police while leaving the Swartz Bay ferry shortly after the break-in occurred. at K and R Food Store, a chain market with its main office in Duncan.

They said the time of the break-in was between 7 and 8 p.m.

Tyson said "because of the freezing weather" he went back to check the water tops and found the back door had been forced open.

4,304 Lonely Miles

Doughty Pedaller

Twenty-two-year-old Japanese university graduate Nobuyuki Kouva left New York July 19.

Three and a half months, 4,304 miles, three wheels, and seven flat tires later he rode his bicycle into Victoria.

Kouva, interviewed Saturday about 24 hours after his arrival in Victoria from Nanaimo, said the trip had cost him $3,000, and some "cold" and "lonely" nights.

On the plus side he had met many good "cycling and social friends" and gained some "happy memories."

Kouva says he will leave Victoria early next week to ride down to Los Angeles from where his 10-speed bicycle will be shipped back to Japan.

He will then continue on a hitch hike tour of the world which started June, 1972 and which he hopes will contine until the summer of 1975.

Others To Blame

Trustees Slapped 'Wrongly'

Greater Victoria school board is being slapped down because of what other boards are doing, chairman Peter Bunn said Saturday night.

He was objecting to three memorandums sent to school districts by the education department last week.

Two memorandums prohibit further hiring of classroom aides under the federal Local Initiatives Program and grants to outside agencies other than the B.C. Association for the Mentally Retarded and the B.C. School Trustees Association.

The third makes it mandatory to get approval from the department for expenditures supporting student travel outside the province and to notify the department if trips within B.C. but outside the general locality of the school district are being financed.

Regarding L.I.P. grants, Bunn said he felt the reason for prohibiting acceptance of them was that "certain school boards have employed unemployed teachers as aides. Vancouver has done this and I imagine the teachers' federation has recommended to the minister that she put an end to this sort of thing."

Greater Victoria school board, in hiring its aides under the L.I.P. program, has never done this, he said, "because we feel this is just not the thing to do."

It was poor judgment on the part of other districts to do this, he said and "we will suffer from the misjudgment of others."

On grants for overseas travel, he said his board had set up a fund some years ago which was used to pay the final five per cent for air fare for students.

"Only air fare is paid for and only for students, not for teachers or chaperones," Bunn said. "We felt this was reasonable when the students had worked for the other 95 per cent of their fare."

But there have been districts whose boards have put up most of the fare, he said. One sent 30 students to France and paid most of the air fare.

"Here again we get slapped down for what others are doing," the chairman said.

The board would write the department and ask permission to honor such commitments made for next summer in the provisional budget for 1974 drawn up in September, Bunn said.

On the question of grants, Bunn said he felt the department's memorandum pointed up "a narrow interpretation" of the Public Schools Act.

"It's certainly within the bounds of the act. I argue not on the legality but on the educational value students will get from our grants to the art gallery and the symphony."

This is the first year such grants were made by the board, he said, and it "is an incredible thing that it hasn't happened before."

It's a very small sum of money, about $3,000 in a budget of $30 million and it's being done all over the world, said Bunn.

"I was glad that finally the school system was joining with our two main cultural groups here. It was an attempt by the school board to change the cultural wilderness in the schools.

"It's absurd not to join with them. I'm very sorry for this very shortsighted approach. It's annoying when good commonsense is mashed into the ground."

Woman Dies from House-Fire Injuries

A 42-year-old Victoria woman died in Victoria General Hospital Saturday afternoon after being burned in an early-morning fire at a two-storey wood frame house at 1770 Fort.

She and her mother, Mrs. Hazel McCauley, 65, were asleep in the house's first-floor bedrooms when the fire broke out shortly after 4 a.m., Victoria firemen said.

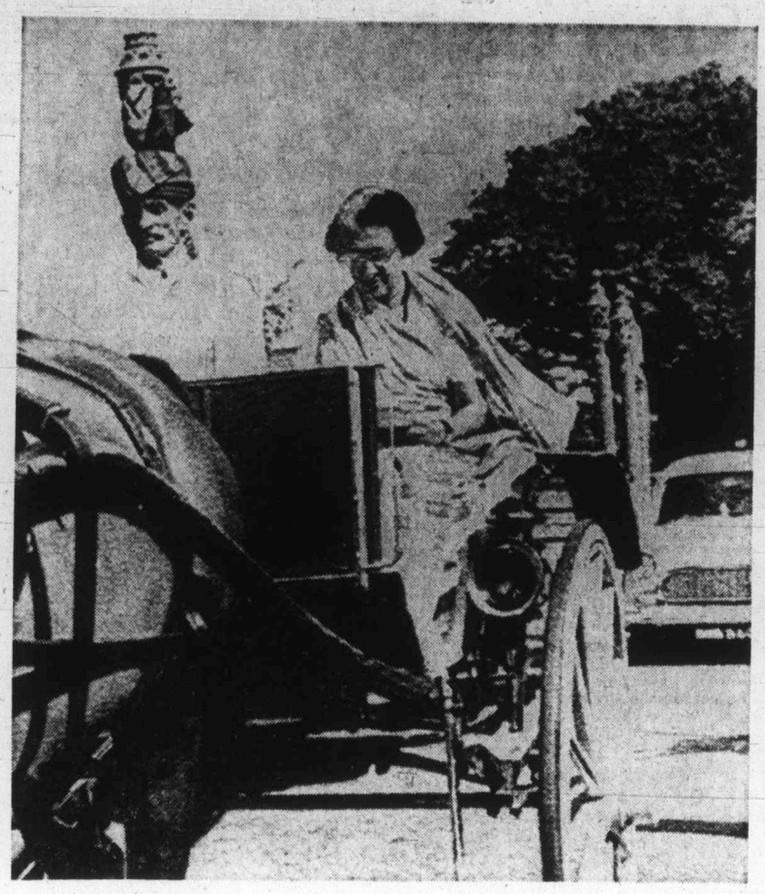

Mrs. McCauley was listed in good condition with arm and hand burns in Royal Jubilee Hospital Saturday.

Mrs. Park's 21-year-old son, Larry, who discovered the fire upon returning home from work, was treated for smoke inhalation and released.

Firemen said damage to the house, estimated at $10,000, was mostly confined to the downstairs bedroom area.

Cause of the fire has not been determined, but careless smoking is one possibility being investigated.

Brother's Mercy Killer Goes Free

Zygmaniak, 23, was acquitted on grounds of temporary insanity. He had admitted shoooting his 26-year-old brother, George, last June in hospital.

Jury Foreman James Clark, who announced the verdict, said it reflected the panel's feeling that he was insane at the time of the shooting. Clark said the jury feels Zygmaniak no longer is insane.

Zygmaniak's family, including his widowed mother Sonia and his brother's widow, wept when the verdict was announced.

"I feel relieved a little bit," Zygmaniak said. "I feel much better. That's all I want to say now."

He said he plans to return to his construction job. His boss, contractor, Orlando Lynn, testified at his trial.

Zygmaniak had his arms around his girlfriend, Elaine Schmidt, also a witness for the defence. She broke down and cried in the witness box while describing Zygmaniak's mental anguish over the shooting of his brother in Jersey Shore Medical Centre.

George had been paralysed from the neck down as a result of a motorcycle accident at the Zygmaniak home in Perrineville, N.J., on June 17.

Lester, carrying a concealed, sawed-off shotgun, walked into the hospital June 20 and shot and fatally wounded his brother. Lester described the killing to the jury this way:

"I walked over and asked him if he was in pain. He nodded he was. I asked, 'A lot of pain, George?" He nodded again.

"I went to him and I said 'Well, I'm here today to end your pain. Is that all right with you?' He nodded yes, and the next I knew I had shot him."

Peace Message Temporarily Scuttled

Ship Won't Make Waves

For all its messages of goodwill and what was perhaps the best rock music in the Middle East, the 8,000-ton converted freighter went out of business as an offshore radio station because no one cared enough to support it financially.

It sailed into the port of Ashdod Sunday, blasting out John and Yoko Lennon's rock hit, Give Peace a Chance. The peace ship made its debut in mid-May with the same tune.

"That's all folks," said Nathan, the ship's Israeli captain. "Now we wish salaam, shalom and peace, and rest assured we will return." Salaam and shalom are the Arabic and Hebrew words, respectively, for peace.

"To all our friends in Beirut, in Damascus, in Amman, in Tel Aviv and Jerusalem, in Cairo—throughout this whole region," Nathan said, "we end this program with love and peace to all of you."

And so he did. His return to the eastern Mediterranean was, he said, dependent on how much money he could raise in Marseille and Rotterdam, his next ports of call once the ship gets refitted in Ashdod. Nathan set no time limit on his stay in Israel.

He said lack of money was responsible for the sinking of the peace propect. He launched it after a year of preparation with a vow never to put into an Israeli or Arab port until peace came to the Middle East.

The ship suffered at the outset from financial difficulties that led to the attrition of its crew—first one, then other members quit. Nathan said in his parting message that he could not continue to operate the vessel because there was not enough money.

Many of his potential donors have been at the front lines of both sides for a month, cutting into the funds. Additionally, war taxes levied by Israel and Egypt have diverted money that could have been doled out as charity to keep the radio going.

He had raised, Nathan said, only $1,900 out of the $71,400 he needed to run the white vessel, with the words "Peace Ship" emblazoned in black lettering on its sides.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Belgians Join Dutch

Sunday Cars Curbed

BRUSSELS (AP) — Belgium joined the Netherlands Monday in adopting a ban on Sunday driving and other strong measures to meet the Arab squeeze on oil supplies.

West Germany was said to be contemplating similar measures.

Common Market foreign ministers met to discuss the crisis, and planned more meetings today. Market countries get about 80 per cent of their oil from the Arabs. This supply has been cut by about 15 per cent.

Qualified oil sources in Kuwait said further cuts of about one million barrels a day are likely. Arab oil exporters announcee Monday they were bringing their total production cut to 25 per cent, on the basis of September figures, including oil embargoes to the United States and the Netherlands.

Belgium, which has three months of oil stocks, is in a difficult situation because the bulk of its supplies of crude oil goes through the Netherlands.

Beside the Sunday driving ban, the Belgian measures to conserve fuel include more restrictive speed limits, less road transport, a reduction in home heating and perhaps some extras school closing days. Some steps are obligatory, other merely recommendations.

The ban on Sunday driving, the only measure for which a date was decided, will start Nov. 18.

Before Monday's Arab decidision to impose further oil production cuts, sources said the total reductions had reached about 20 per cent. A 5-per-cent additional cut was to follow in December.

Budget Sky-High For U.S. Arms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has sent a $21.3 billion Military Procurement Bill to President Nixon for signature despite a warning the military budget "is about to explode."

Even as the 69-12 vote was being tallied Monday, Deputy Defence Secretary William Clements argued for a $2.4 billion addition to supply arms to Israel and Cambodia and acknowledged the total expenditure on their behalf would probably go much higher.

Though the procurement bill, which is only one part of the defence budget, was cut $660 million from Nixon's original request of $22 billion, senate and house conferees gave the Pentagon every major weapons system it asked for and threw in one it didn't want—the A7 attack bomber.

Seale Testimony: Judge Upset Him

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former Black Panther chairman Bobby Seale said Monday he was frightened of being "railroaded to jail" when he called the judge at the 1969 Chicago Seven conspiracy trial a "racist pig."

Seale, testifying for the defence at the contempt of court trial of five former members of the Chicago Seven and two of their attorneys, said he was angered by a remark by U.S. District Court Judge Julius Hoffman that "showed he was a racist pig."

Seale was also upset at the time by Hoffman's refusal to let him act as his own lawyer.

Seale, whose courtroom outbursts four years ago were so vehement that he was gagged and shackled to his chair, testified that Hoffman showed racism when a black woman told the judge she had worked for prosecutor Thomas Foran.

At the time Hoffman replied, "Oh, you were a maid for Mr. Foran?"

Speaking politely and so softly that at times his attorney had to ask him to speak louder, Seale testified Monday:

"If you are sitting in a courtroom being tried for something you didn't do and you can see racism displayed by the judge, you speak up. I was frightened I would be railroaded to jail but when you are frightened you start speaking out against it. Sure I was scared . . ."

When Hoffman rejected Seale's repeated requests four years ago for permission to act as his own lawyer, Seale brought the trial to a virtual standstill with his vehement accusations that Hoffman and the government attorneys were "racists," "fascists" and "lying pigs."

Meat Wrappers Suffer Asthma

CHICAGO (UPI) — Butchers and workers who wrap pre-cut, pre-packaged meats with vinyl plastic may be exposed to a new disease: "meat-wrappers' asthma," a study indicated Monday.

William Sokol, Yossef Aelony and Gilden Beall of Harbor General Hospital, Torrance, Calif., said the illness was triggered by fumes released when workers cut the plastic wrapper with a hot wire. The report was published in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Mandatory Allocation Plan Ready

Canadians Face Rationing If Oil 25 Per Cent Short

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will introduce energy rationing if oil supplies fall 25 per cent below normal demand this winter, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Monday night.

Also, a "mandatory allocation program" will be put into effect if the shortage passes 10 per cent, he told the Commons.

He said the government didn't expect to use either program, but precautionary preparations were being made by a special committee representing all relevant government departments. Industry support had been enlisted through a technical advisory committee set up earlier.

He gave no details of either the rationing or "mandatory allocation" plans, except that the latter would be imposed at the wholesale level.

Under the mandatory scheme, wholesale supplies would be reduced but essential services would be maintained, he said.

In the event of interruptions requiring less serious action than either of these two programs, he said, private citizens and leaders in government and industry would be asked to take voluntary measures.

Consumption might be cut by 10 per cent by a voluntary program, he said.

Right To Sue Pledged—But Not by Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Acting Attorney-General Robert Bork insisted Monday that new special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski would be allowed to sue President Nixon for documents he considered necessary to his investigation, but admitted he had never discussed the matter with Nixon.

Bork gave the assurance after a member of a House judiciary subcommittee read to him from Nixon's last news conference a statement that:

"We will not provide presidential documents to a special prosecutor. We will provide as we have in great numbers all kinds of documents from the White House. But if it is a document involving a conversation with the president, I would have to stand on the principle of confidentiality."

Bork and Archibald Cox, whose ouster as special prosecutor Oct. 20 precipitated more than a dozen bills to create an independent office of special prosecutor, were the last major witnesses before the subcommittee begins writing legislation Wednesday.

Jaworski, meanwhile, was sworn in during a brief ceremony at a federal courthouse. Jaworski said he was meeting with members of his staff and would arrange a conference with Cox in the near future.

Bork said that before Jaworski was announced as Cox's successor, he and Jaworski met with Deputy Attorney-General Henry Petersen, Nixon's chief of staff Alexander Haig and White House lawyers Leonard Garment and Fred Buzhardt.

"I stated to the gentlemen who were sitting with Jaworski and myself that it must be understood he has the power to go to court," Bork said.

Asked by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, (D—N.Y.) what their response was, Bork said they agreed with him.

Evidence Killed By Dean

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Watergate prosecutors said Monday that former White House counsel John Dean found and destroyed evidence belonging to bugging conspirator E. Howard Hunt late last January, after Hunt pleaded guilty in the plot.

Assistant special prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste told a federal court hearing that Dean had found the materials in a folder containing President Nixon's personal estate planning file—but he stressed to reporters later there was "no indication" Nixon ever saw the Hunt documents.

The disclosure came at the opening of a hearing before chief U.S. District Judge John Sirica on motions by Hunt and four of his co-conspirators to erase their convictions. Hunt's lawyer Sidney Sachs said the destruction of the evidence was further proof all charges should be dismissed.

"These proceedings are a web of fraud and corruption," Sachs said. "As each day passes, it becomes clearer that this goes to the very top of the government."

Six Months For Segretti

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Donald Segretti, the mastermind of the political dirty tricks program during President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign, was sentenced to six months in prison Monday for violating federal election laws.

Segretti pleaded guilty Oct. 1 to one count of conspiracy to distribute unlawful political material, and two counts of distributing that material.

City's Heart On Fire

Buildings in downtown Indianapolis, Ind., explode in flames as fire broke out in Grant Building during noon hour Monday. The flames were fed by 20-mile-per-hour winds and posed serious threat to other buildings. It took firemen four hours to get the blaze under control. There were no known injuries.

Egyptian Thrust May Light Fuse

UPI

Egyptian infantry backed by tanks carried out a series of attacks along the Suez Canal front Monday and in some isolated cases succeeded in penetrating Israeli lines and holding onto their gains, an Israeli military spokesman reported in Tel Aviv. War talk increased on both sides.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said the Egyptians launched four attacks against Israeli lines—one of them a series of company-sized assaults lasting six hours. Israel protested the alleged violations to the UN truce force.

The Israeli spokesman said the Egyptian army is fully deployed in attack positions along the entire canal front and on the road to Cairo, but would be met and crushed. The Israelis said it was quiet on the Syrian front where Israel told the international Red Cross the Syrians had murdered 12 Israeli war prisoners.

The latest alleged violations of the 12-day-old ceasefire came as U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger, who completed four days of almost non-stop negotiations among the Egyptians, Syrians and Israelis in Washington, flew to the Middle East on a peace mission, and Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir arrived home in Tel Aviv from her Washington visit. Strachan Lied, Says Socred

Body To Decide Issue

By BARBARA McLINTOCK
Colonist Legislature Staff

A special committee of the B.C. Legislature will start sitting this morning to determine whether Transport Minister Robert Strachan lied to the house in the question of a B.C. Ferries management study.

The charge of lying to the house is one of the most serious that can be made against a cabinet minister, and the committee's inquiries could conceivably lead to the resignation of either Strachan or the member who made the charge, Socred Robert McClelland.

The Langley member was suspended from the Legislature for Wednesday afternoon's sitting after he refused to withdraw the allegation that Strachan lied, but was readmitted to the evening sitting.

Both McClelland (Langley) and Strachan made public documents which they claimed supported their points of view — McClelland that the minister authorized a mangement study of the B.C. ferry system, Strachan that he had never done so.

The documents will be placed before the all-party committee, which also has the power to call witnesses and examine other evidence. After it has concluded its hearings, it will judge whether Strachan did, in fact, lie to the house.

If it is found he did, Strachan will be in contempt of the house, and it will be up to the house to decide what further action to take.

Legislative sources indicated Strachan could be required to apologize to the house, or he could be censured. But such a finding would make it necessary for the minister to decide whether he could continue as a minister, the sources said.

If the committee finds, on the other hand, that Strachan did not lie, McClelland would be required to withdraw his charges and apologize to Strachan and to the house. But for him, too, the matter might be so serious he would have to consider resigning, said the sources.

Root of the problem is a management study of the system begun, according to Strachan, without his approval early in October.

The minister said outside the house that Ferries general manager Monty Aldous had definitely proceeded with the study without Strachan's knowledge.

Moreover, Strachan said, Aldous had written to him more than a week after the

Refined Oil Stops If Arabs Insist

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada would cut off the export of refined petroleum products to the United States if Arab countries made it a condition for continuing crude oil shipments to Canadian refiners, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Monday.

"We'd have to in that case," he said in an interview. But he added that Canada would not cut off crude oil exports if an Arab ultimatium were received.

He was quoted earlier in the day as saying Canada would cut off all exports, but he called this a bad misunderstanding.

"No, we wouldn't do that."

He said this is a hypothetical situation but the goverment would not cut off U.S. customers who rely totally on Canadian crude.

He also said there is no indication that any curtailment will be necessary in the level of refined products exported.

He said a weekend report that Saudi Arabia had threatened to cut off crude oil shipments to any country supplying the U.S. with crude or refined products was "not in accordance with reports from diplomatic sources."

Canada exports more than one million barrels of oil daily to the U.S. and imports roughly the same amount to refineries in Eastern Canada. About 30 per cent of the imports come from Arab states.

'Bait and Switch' Outlawed by Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The government launched its new business competition policy Monday with a bill aimed at protecting consumers and small businessmen against unfair pricing and advertising practices.

Introducing the bill in the Commons, Consumer Affairs minister Herb Gray said a second stage will follow — including changes in laws against company mergers.

He told reporters it would be unrealistic to expect that second bill before a year from now. And he called on supporters of the legislation to voice their feeling and help prevent the fate that befell the last competition bill, debated out of the Commons last year.

The bill-amendments to the Combines Investigation Act — would forbid misleading advertising with provisions that officials say are tougher than those in the existing law.

It would provide new protection for consumers in guarantees and warranties.
